Resume Battle with Yankees Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The third game of the world series between the exuberant New York Yankees and the somewhat dismayed Chicago Cubs will be played at Wrigley field this afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

Wrigley field! There IS a field, if you ask the Cubs. There, the Cubs say, Charley Root today will pitch them to their first victory of the series. There they will not have to listen to insults about their world series coin distribution being penurious. There will be their friends to cheer their sprightly actions. There, indeed, will they display confidence and courage, for on Wrigley field up till the time they clinched their pennant they played better than .800 baseball, as compared with the .584 percentage with which they won the championship.

Warm Weather Forecast.

There will be nice warm sunshine at Wrigley field this afternoon if the weather man keeps his word. Yesterday the mercury rose into the seventies, and the forecast is for warmer and equally fair weather today. The Cubs love this. There was sunshine in New York Thursday, but it didn't smile on the Cubs, as their partisans know too well. But the Wrigley field sun is a different kind of sun, loaded with Cub happiness and everything.

Root is to be opposed by George Pipgras. And those who go to the records for their baseball comparisons will find that the similarity between these two right handers is striking. Each drew a won or lost decision in 25 ball games. Root won 15 and lost 10, after a bad early season. Pipgras won 16 and lost 9. Root pitched 216 innings and Pipgras 217.

The Cub veteran was the stingier in the matter of allowing hits and runs and bases on balls, but wasn't quite so much of a strikeout pitcher. Root allowed 210 hits to 237 made off Pipgras; Root held his enemies to 100 runs, as compared with 120 made off Pipgras. Charley walked 56 batsmen and George granted free passage to 56. The Yankee fanned 110, as compared to the Cub's 95.

Root Steadier Than Others.

Root won't be as nervous as his predecessors in the series—Bush and Warneke. Pipgras has something to shoot at in the series performances of Ruffing and Gomez. This third game should produce good pitching on both sides.

Until this year Root has been the perennial opener of Cub post-season series—he was the pitcher in the 1929 world series opener and lost a heart breaker to Howard Ehmke and the Athletics. Joe McCarthy, now manager of the Yankees, always started him in th city series and he regularly was Joe's choice for season openers. Joe explained he liked Root in the ceremonial games "because Charley is calm and knows what it's all about."

Manager Charley Grimm wasn't exactly bubbling over when the team arrived home at 12:45 yesterday afternoon, an hour and five minutes ahead of the brutal Yanks. But he made it clear he expects the team to do an about face in the comforting environment of the home campus. Charley carried neither his banjo nor his typewriter, but wasn't in the least dazed as he pushed through the pack of 3,000 fans who went to the La Salle street station to see the north side heroes limp home.

Koenig Eager to Play.

His only announcement about his strategy for the desperate homestand was confirmation of the earlier reports that Root would pitch the home opener. Boss Charley expressed himself as uncertain as to the possibility of Mark Koenig again appearing in the series. Koenig, however, insisted that his wrist injury had recovered enough for him to play and asked for the assignment.

Koenig, incidentally, has been looked upon as the reason the Yanks, especially Babe Ruth, have been so relentless in their riding of the Cubs for their alleged tightwad world's series split which ignored former Manager Rogers Hornsby and gave Koenig only half a share. The Yanks took up Hornsby's cause, too, but most of their cracks were about the chill on Koenig.

Ruth Up Against Cub Partisans.

THOUSANDS HAIL CANDIDATE IN LOOP STREETS

Noisy Welcome Like Old Campaigns.

Ex-Gov. Al Smith yesterday broke a silence begun when his party nominated Gov. Roosevelt, and in a magazine article urged the election of Democratic candidates. He did not mention Roosevelt by name and he decried the candidate's reference to "The forgotten man." (Details on page 8.)

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

A wild, roaring welcome, staged like the great old political parades of the '80s, was given by Chicago Democracy last night to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The city's loop seemed transformed for the time and old timers saw it taking on the dressing of the days of Blaine and Cleveland, with kerosene torches lighting the way, horns blasting and bands playing, and thousands of citizens shouting and shoving and trying to march in it all.

"It's by far the greatest demonstration we've seen," said the happy Roosevelt when at last he was settled in his quarters at the Congress hotel. He congratulated Mayor Cermak on the turnout and the mayor replied that it boded no good for the Hoover ticket.

Chicago Outdoes Other Cities.

Newspaper men who have been buffeted by the crowds which have greeted the Democratic presidential candidate in the western cities on the tour now nearing its end agreed after winning their own way free from the jam that Chicago had outdone all the rest.

Their estimates on the number of people in the crowd, which included not only the whole roster of the Democratic organization, but many Chicagoans of independent political faiths, ran from 100,000 at a minimum up to twice and three times that many.

But, whatever the number of those who turned out, they made a bedlam of it.

Waves to Crowd from Balcony.

The densest jam was encountered at the Congress hotel and it was quite a time before the force of policemen could clear a way for the governor to go through from curb to the hotel door. A minute later he had been whisked up in an elevator to the second floor and he appeared on the balcony fronting on the boulevard.

While spotlights played upon him he smiled that engaging smile which may go down in history in parallel with another famous Roosevelt smile, and he waved energetically to the cheering thousands below.

The official welcome to Chicago was tendered to Gov. Roosevelt in Milwaukee, where a delegation of Chicago leaders of Democracy went to greet him. The group was led by Mayor Cermak and included Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board; County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, candidate for state's attorney; Controller M. S. Szymczak, County Recorder Clayton Smith, and Peter J. Carey, president of the Board of Trade.

Like Old Political Rallies.

Not even the glistening white automobile in which Democracy's hope braved the surging crowds, with Mayor Cermak at his side, and not even the sirens on squad cars and motorcycles could dispel entirely the illusion of an older day in political campaign history.

There was a varied assortment of kerosene torches lighting the presidential candidate's way from the Union depot, where he left the train bringing him from Milwaukee, along Jackson boulevard to Michigan avenue and thence south to the hotel.

Antique shops all over the city had been raided for the ancient flambeaus, and not a few of these kerosene flares, which might have been the same which lighted the way of Cleveland and of Blaine, were held high on new wooden sticks as the holders fought with thousands of others to maintain a semblance of order in their march.

Smoke Blinds Celebrities.

Sadly enough, the flames of these relics were nearly lost in the dazzling brilliance of red stick flares, of which there must have been thousands along the line of the parade. The acrid fumes from the flares hung low over the streets at times, and the celebrities in the parade cars were choked and blinded momentarily when the celebrants afoot shoved their red lights too close to the cars.

And those celebrants! They came

Hoover Plans Several Talks on Iowa Trip

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Short platform appearances and possibly an informal speech or two will be delivered by President Hoover at some of the larger cities during the trip to Des Moines next Tuesday, according to information emanating from administration circles today. It was said that while no advance plans had been made it was considered probable that the President would have a few words to say at either Rock Island or Davenport.

Although extraordinary precautions are being taken to guard the President's safety, Republican officials have decided against suggestions that Mr. Hoover be kept isolated in his car during the trip to Des Moines. Officials, it was said today, are going ahead on the assumption that the President will be given an orderly reception throughout the trip and especially at Des Moines.

Hear Plan to Egg President.

It was learned today, however, that Republican officials have received reports from Des Moines that the prospective participants in the farmers' strike parade are preparing to toss a few eggs at the Republican candidate. According to one man in close touch with the Republican high command, reports received here state that officials of the farm holiday movement have advised their followers to come to town with half a dozen eggs apiece and not to be too particular about their vintage.

Will Assail Roosevelt Position.

Officials who have seen the speech say that the President will attack the Roosevelt position in so far as it has been revealed in the latter's speeches during his current tour of the middle west and far west. The President, it was said, expects to demand that Gov. Roosevelt come out squarely on the bonus issue.

Coolidge Will Speak for Hoover on Oct. 11

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Calvin Coolidge will make his most important contribution to President Hoover's campaign for reelection by an address Tuesday night, Oct. 11, in Madison Square Garden, New York.

It became known today that the assent of Mr. Coolidge to that part of the program built around him has been obtained and that his speech will be broadcast. It is understood he will speak for 35 or 40 minutes.

REGISTER TODAY

The old poll books have been destroyed. Under the quadrennial general registration system all residents of Cook county must register anew in order to be able to vote in the national, state and county election of Nov. 8.

There is a second registration day on Oct. 11; but civic and other organizations urge that you make sure today that your names is placed on the official list of voters and run no risk of missing the second opportunity.

In the territory under the jurisdiction of the election commissioners—Chicago, Berwyn, Cicero, Chicago Heights, Summit, Evergreen Park and Stickney—the regular precinct polling places will be open to registrants from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. In the rest of the county, which is under the jurisdiction of the county clerk, the polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

If in doubt about the address of your polling place telephone the election authorities. The number of the election board is Franklin 4500, that of the county clerk is Franklin 3000.

5 Gunmen Raid Club in Niles, Kill Employe

Five gunmen, one carrying a submachine gun and the others armed with shotguns, invaded the Atlasta Farm Recreation club in Niles shortly before midnight last night, menaced three employés, and shot and killed one of them when he resisted. The club is located in Harts road near the intersection of Milwaukee and Touhy avenues. It occupies an old home set among trees and is said to have a private membership list of nearly 75, many of them Chicagoans.

The victim of the gunmen was Elmer Russell, 40 years old, a waiter. He was struck in the chest and the face by a charge from a shotgun.

Robbery or Booze War?

Police were told that the gunmen were robbers. However, an investigation was being conducted this morning on the possibility that the slayers were booze hoodlums who intended to kill Elmer Gatty, owner of the club, and shot Russell in error.

Russell, Bernard Farrell, an attendant, and Grace Peecher, a colored cook, were closing up the club for the night when the gunmen appeared at the door. As Farrell opened the door the five rushed in. They forced him, Russell, and the cook into a front room.

"What's your name?" he inquired.

"Elmer——" replied Russell. Elmer is Gatty's first name also. According to one account the hoodlum waited to hear no more, but fired, killing the waiter.

Tells of Dispute.

Another account, told by Farrell, was that Russell made a sudden move as if to resist the bandits and was shot. Farrell said the gunmen rifled the till of $125.

Chief William Mandernack of the Niles force, Lieut. James Meyering, and Sergt. L. Roder of the Morton Grove county police, and Chief Deputy Coroner Stephen Kolanowski said that they would question Gatty. They said that they wanted to know if Gatty served liquor in the club and was buying from a group against the wishes of a rival outfit. Police said they found no evidence that the club dispensed other than food. The club is well furnished and caters to an exclusive clientele.

A Pay Day for City, Schools Up to Council

The $4,400,000 needed to give the school teachers, the police, firemen, and other city employés two weeks' salary will be provided by the banks early next week if the city council permits Controller Szymczak to sell 1931 city corporate tax warrants.

"It's all up to the aldermen," said a spokesman for the banks yesterday. "The money has been ready for days, but the banks can't buy board of education tax warrants. They must insist upon city tax warrants."

The council on July 28 advised the controller to discontinue the practice of financing the board of education pay rolls from the city's aggregate of funds until the funds are sufficient to permit the purchase of school board warrants without hampering the financing of the city's pay rolls.

Embarrassed by Pledge.

Mayor Cermak's verbal pledge to the teachers that they would get paid every time the city employés are paid is now said to be embarrassing the city hall leaders. If this arrangement is continued city employés can hope to receive their salaries only up to Sept. 15. They have now been paid up to July 1.

Only $10,000,000 worth of warrants remain which the banks will purchase and the teachers will get $5,500,000 of this if the city continues to purchase board of education warrants as in the past.

By their action last July the aldermen hoped to induce the banks to accept the school board warrants. But the bankers have insisted that these warrants are not a safe investment. The city has $32,000,000 worth of the school board warrants in its treasury now.

Appeals to Aldermen.

Last Wednesday the controller asked the council to release him from his predicament. He requested immediate action, but the request was referred to the finance committee, which has not yet set a date for its next meeting.

The controversy between the banks and the city reached a new height yesterday. Mayor Cermak was angry because he had been informed that no further purchases of warrants would be made until the 1931 tax levy is reduced. He sent out a hurried call for a conference.

"The committee on public expenditures tells us to reduce the levy; that the banks will buy no more warrants until this is done," he said. "But the banks' own attorney, Cutler, has intimated that a reduction of the 1931 levy might affect the 1931 warrants already sold.

"It means that city employés will continue to go hungry. We have cut the cost of government and gone along with all plans of economy. If they keep giving us the run around, the city will go to hell."

Misinformed, Says Committee.

Members of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, which is headed by Fred W. Sargent, said, however, that the mayor had been misinformed. Attorney Henry J. Cutler, the bond expert, had not given an opinion on the effect a reduction of the levy might have on the tax warrants, they declared.

A survey of the situation yesterday indicated that a reduction of the 1931 tax levies of all the local governments is very probable. A sizeable reduction in the levies will lessen the 1931 real estate tax burden by 35 to 40 per cent, compared to the 1930 tax load, according to County Assessor J. L. Jacobs. The reduction of valuations and an increase in personal property listings already has assured some reduction, he pointed out.

The Insull Inquiry

Sensational developments in the Insull case yesterday arose in two investigations:

1—Samuel Insull and his brother, Martin J. Insull, are found to have used $170,222 of Middle West funds to help their brokerage accounts. This was discovered in State's Attorney Swanson's investigation.

2—In the federal court of Judge Lindley it was developed in the testimony of H. L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co. that Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was insolvent Dec. 17, 1931.

Discoveries by State's Attorney Swanson's investigation of the Insull debacle yesterday caused the prosecutor to lay plans for the return of Samuel Insull and his brother, Martin, to Chicago.

The state's attorney charged as a result of the day's disclosures that Samuel Insull "had sanctioned and authorized" the use of funds of several Insull Utility companies to protect some of the personal brokerage accounts of his brother, Martin J. Insull.

Request for Their Return.

It is probable that a request will be sent to Samuel Insull in Paris and to Martin Insull in Orillia, Ontario, Canada, to return and explain. If they do not return on request it is regarded as probable that events in the Criminal Courts building will force the state's attorney to employ sterner measures to bring about the return of the Insulls.

Mr. Swanson's charges involve the abstraction of $170,222 in cash from the Middle West Utilities company and the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company and the use of the money to bolster the trading accounts of Martin J. Insull.

Gets Supplementary Audit.

The prosecutor discovered this transaction and another in which Martin Insull sold some of his reclaimed stocks to one of the Insull companies at an apparent personal profit of some $10,000 in a supplementary audit given him yesterday by Arthur Andersen & Co. The audit is entitled "a special memorandum in re accounts with Martin J. Insull" and is to be filed in the federal courts.

As soon as the charges were made public, Swanson's special "Insull staff," consisting of Prosecutors Charles Bellows, John Hampton, John O'Hora, and Voyle Johnson, began an investigation to determine whether the diversion of funds was in violation of the criminal statutes of the state.

State's Attorney Swanson also indicated that he would have another important announcement to make within a very short time. The prosecutor refused to forecast the nature of this statement, but it was understood in the Criminal Court building that it would have to do with a grand jury investigation of the Insull affairs.

Explains Fund Transfer.

The transfer of funds on which Mr. Swanson based his charges against Samuel Insull was described in detail by Auditor John J. Bailey, the state's attorney's financial expert, as follows:

"Between Dec. 31, 1931, and Feb. 10, 1932, there was advanced to Russell Brewster & Co. and Jackson Brose Boesel Co. $170,222 by the Middle West and Mississippi Valley companies of the Insull group. The Middle West advanced $66,000 and the Mississippi Valley $104,222. These advances were for marginal protection of the private brokerage accounts of Martin J. Insull.

"The audit shows that these advances were on the authority and authorization of Samuel Insull Sr., and the money was taken from these companies for the personal protection of Martin Insull's accounts.

"The audit shows that the stocks apparently in the Martin Insull account were not worth more than $20,000 market value at the time."

The money was advanced to Martin Insull in various ways, the audit reveals. Regarding the funds obtained from the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company the audit says:

"The books of the company (the Mississippi Valley) indicate that Martin J. Insull was indebted to the company as of April 15, 1932, for advances to him, or for his account, made either directly by this company or through the Middle West Utilities company. The dates and amounts of such advances are as follows:

Date.	To.	Amount.
Dec. 31, 1931—	Russell Brewster & Co.	$8,000
Dec. 31, 1931—	Martin J. Insull.....	20,000
Feb. 5, 1932—	Credit to Middle West in reimbursement of an advance to Mr. Insull	30,000
Feb. 10, 1932—	Credit to Middle West in reimbursement of an advance to Mr. Insull	36,000
Feb. 10, 1932—	Russell Brewster & Co.	10,000
Feb. 10, 1932—	Russell Brewster & Co.	36,222
Balance as of April 15, 1932....		$170,222

Regarding the transfer of the company funds for Martin Insull's benefit the audit report contains the following notations:

Explains Second Deal.

"On April 24, 1931, checks were issued to Pynchon & Co., La Salle street brokers, in behalf of Martin Insull's personal accounts. In those accounts were securities of the amount of $314,635, made up of 5,993 shares of Central and Southwest Utilities company common stock worth $112,318, and 5,247 shares of Middle West Utilities common stock with a then market value of $102,316.

"This stock was picked up on a check issued from the funds of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company and payable to Pynchon & Co. and Martin Insull. Martin Insull then resold the stocks to the Mississippi company with a right to repurchase them at the closing price on April 24, 1931, plus 8 per cent interest.

"At the time of the sale of these securities the Mississippi company was made to pay $10,364 more than the market price. The transaction apparently netted Martin Insull that much profit.

Company Takes Loss.

"If the market value of the stock went up Martin Insull, under the agreement, could exercise his right to repurchase and make a further profit. If the price went down the company kept the stock. The price went down and the company took the loss, the audit shows."

Auditor Bailey at once ordered his accountants to trace the check to determine who got the profit from this sale.

H. L. STUART TESTIFIES

Testimony of the receiver's auditor that $21,000,000 carried as income on the books of the defunct Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was questionable, and efforts of attorneys for the creditors to show that stock dividends were paid out of capital, were outstanding developments in yesterday's hearing to discover assets of the company. Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley is conducting the bankruptcy proceedings.

The disclosure of the questionable income followed the two hour testimony of H. L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and a director of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., who admitted that the latter company was insolvent last Dec. 17 when he and Samuel Insull Jr. were urging New York and Chicago banks to grant extensions on loans. Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was not placed in receivership until April 16, 1932, by Judge Lindley.

Inflated Income.

Throughout the day's session Attorneys Harold F. White and Lewis F. Jacobson, representing the debenture holders, who make up the petitioning creditors, sought to establish a foundation for proving that stock dividends were paid out of capital. This was their purpose in bringing out the testimony that the company's income was inflated on the books.

If it is proved that such dividend payments were paid—in violation of the statutes of Illinois—the directors would be liable to the creditors, the attorneys said.

Frank C. White of the firm of Arthur Andersen & Co., who audited the books of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., testified that the balance sheets showed income of $16,000,000 derived from the splitting up of stock and the sale of purchase rights. He also said the records carried an item of $5,000,000 in income in the form of stock dividends from Insull companies in which Insull Utility Investments, Inc., had invested.

Not Classed as Income.

"Would that $16,000,000 be classified as income in accordance with the rules of reputable accounting?" asked Attorney Jacobson.

"No," replied Mr. White.

"Is it permissible to carry the item of $5,000,000 as income under the rules of the income tax department of the bureau of internal revenue?"

"No, it is not," said Auditor White.

P. J. McEnroe, vice president of Insull Utility Investments, was the next witness. He was asked whether the company's method of keeping books would create a greater income tax obligation to the government and testified that it would not. He related that the government had made a deficiency income tax assessment of $1,000,000 for 1930, and that the company had not only protested but was seeking a rebate on the taxes paid. Moreover, the $1,000,000 government claim was not carried on the books as a liability, he testified.

Close Friend of Insulls.

Stuart, a close friend of the Insulls and a member of the finance committee of five and of the executive committee which dominated the affairs of Insull Utility Investments, testified first concerning the floating of $6,000,000 gold debentures, series A, and $66,000,000 gold debentures, series B, which Halsey, Stuart & Co. underwrote in 1929 and 1930. He said leading banks of Chicago and New York, as well as investment houses and brokers over the country, formed a syndicate to dispose of the debentures. He promised to bring to the next hearing on Oct. 11, a list of the syndicate members, together with a statement of the commissions received by Halsey, Stuart & Co. as underwriters. Mr. Stuart was examined by Attorney Jacobson as follows:

Q.—Here is a brochure entitled "The Insull Group of Public Utilities." It states that more than 90 per cent of the holdings of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., were in five Insull companies. Was that correct?

A.—I believe it was.

Q.—You saw the annual reports of the company for 1929, 1930, and 1931. Were they correct? A.—I believe they were. Of course, we had to rely upon the auditor's report for the figures.

Q.—And the auditor was Arthur Young & Co.? A.—Yes.

Reads Attendance List.

Q.—Do the records of the finance committee meetings correctly reflect your attendance? A.—I don't remember the dates, but if it says I was there I must have been. [Mr. Jacobson then read the names of the members—Samuel Insull, Samuel Insull Jr., Martin J. Insull, H. L. Stuart, and Walter S. Brewster.]

Q.—Do the statements of cash receipts and disbursements, bank loans, payments of interest on debentures, etc., in the finance committee's records, truly reflect the condition of the company at that time? A.—Yes. We relied upon them. We expected them to be correct.

Q.—What was the occasion for the first series of bank loans made by the company? A.—To pay for stocks subscribed for in the Insull operating companies.

Q.—The loans negotiated by Mr. Insull, yourself, and associates were to pay for stocks in those underlying companies, to buy more and to increase your cash reserve? A.—Yes.

Recalls Trip to New York.

Q.—Do you recall the next trip you and Mr. Insull made to New York? A.—It was early in the spring of 1930.

Q.—What was the substance of your conversation with the bankers at that time? A.—We just talked about the utility industry. We wanted to acquaint the bankers with the condition of the utilities.

Q.—Did you advise the bankers that your company had sold $66,000,000 worth of debentures for Insull Utility Investments, Inc.? A.—I may have, but my best recollection is that we didn't go into details.

Q.—Mr. Stuart, you and Mr. Insull didn't go there to give the bankers a lecture on public utilities, did you? Hadn't you agreed to buy the Eaton interests and wasn't your purpose in going down there to get money? A.—No, the Eaton matter hadn't come up then. [Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, was threatening to acquire control of the Insull operating companies and the bargain he drove with Samuel Insull before he, Eaton, would withdraw was the first step in the downfall of the two billion dollar utility empire.]

Q.—Did you inform the bankers of your connection with the Insull companies? A.—I have no recollection of that.

Another Trip in December, 1931.

Q.—Now, in December, 1931, you went to New York with Samuel Insull Jr., didn't you? A.—Yes. Mr. Insull called me and said he could not leave. He wanted me to introduce his son to the New York bankers, because I knew all of them and he didn't know any of them.

Q.—What did Mr. Insull say to the bankers as to his purpose in being there? A.—He told them he was trying to negotiate an extension of all bank loans.

Q.—Didn't he say that unless the banks could "freeze" the loans for three or six months there would be no hope of meeting them upon maturity? A.—Yes.

Unable to Pay Loans.

Q.—What is your recollection of the statement of the condition of the company's portfolio as presented to the banks? A.—I presume it showed the company was unable to pay the loans.

Q.—Do you recall whether the company was solvent or insolvent at that time? A.—No.

Q.—As a matter of fact, didn't the figures as presented at the finance committee show that on Dec. 17, 1931, the market value of the securities in the portfolio was only $77,000,000, that the company owed the banks more than $40,000,000 and had outstanding some $60,000,000 in debentures? A.—In round numbers that's about right.

Q.—Then the company was insolvent in the amount of $23,000,000, wasn't it? A.—Yes.

"Standoff" Agreement.

Mr. Stuart then explained the terms of the so-called "standoff" agreement with the banks. Briefly, the bankers, in granting the extension, demanded that additional collateral be put up, that the cash balances in the New York banks be prorated, and that salaries and overhead be reduced, and that no more loans be made or new enterprises started.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that more than $2,300,000 in cash balances was taken by the banks on the date of receivership? A.—I don't recall the amount.

Q.—Besides the other promises Samual Insull Jr. made to the banks in negotiating the extension, did he say anything about prorating the company's assets among the debenture holders as well as the other creditors? A.—I don't believe there was anything said about that. [In floating the debenture loans the company agreed with the purchasers that it would not pledge its assets without equally securing the debentures.]

$5,000,000 Payment.

Q.—On Dec. 24, 1931, there was a payment of $5,000,000 to the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York. How did that happen. A.—I don't know.

Q.—Do you recall whether, prior to that payment, the bank said it would agree to the "standoff" if half a million were paid on account? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did you discuss a loan with Owen D. Young of the General Electric company? A.—No, I think Samuel Insull Sr. did that.

Q.—Do you recall when the company got $1,500,000 from the General Electric company, part of which was used by Insull Utility Investments company and part by Corporation Securities? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Do you know of any consent the debenture holders ever gave to the pledging of securities to any bank? Did you ever hear of such a thing? A.—No.

Payment of Dividends.

The testimony regarding the possible payment of dividends from capital was brought out during the morning when John F. O'Keefe, secretary and treasurer, was on the stand. He told of the selling of $42,000,000 in preferred stock, second series, to Utilities Securities company, and said that $36,000,000 of the proceeds was carried on the books as capital and $6,000,000 as "capital surplus."

"Who determined how those items were to be entered?" asked Attorney White.

"As a matter of fact, I believe that was the only time that was ever done," said O'Keefe.

Q.—You didn't have any other surplus account, did you? A.—Yes, there were two surplus accounts, one capital surplus and one earned surplus.

Mr. O'Keefe also testified that dividends on prior preferred stock, 60,000 shares, taken by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and 40,000 shares, all subscribed by members of the Insull family, were paid in cash up to the end of 1931.

U. S. Grand Jury Returns Indictment in Bond Sales

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—A federal grand jury late today voted a true bill as a result of its inquiry in connection with Halsey, Stuart & Co.'s sale of bonds of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., Washington, D. C.

The indictment presented to Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger by William Cole, Milwaukee, foreman of the jury, was a bulky document of many pages.

The only information available concerning it was that the jurors found reason to believe that section 338, of title 18, of the United States criminal code, which covers the use of the mails to defraud, had been violated.

The government prosecutors said they were not at libery to state whether only one company or person had been indicted, or whether the true bill returned covered several.

Warrant Action Today.

Judge Geiger turned the document over to Clerk Bernard Westfahl, who will docket it. The warrant or warrants for those named will be turned over tomorrow to the United States marshal's office to be served.

The document covering the indictment is believed to have been prepared in Washington and to have been brought here by Forest A. Harness, special assistant attorney general, and E. J. Armbruster, special representative of the United States bureau of investigation, who came here from Washington Wednesday. It was too voluminous to have been prepared in the ten minutes which elapsed between the time the grand jury foreman appeared at the door of the jury room to signify a decision had been reached and the time the jurors filed into the federal courtroom to formally present it to the judge.

Heads Bond Syndicate.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., a securities house with branches in many cities, headed a syndicate that underwrote an issue of about $13,000,000 in bonds of the Wardman properties in Washington, which included apartments, office buildings and eleven hotels. The original price paid for the bonds by investors in 1928, 1929 and 1930 was $100. The bonds have a present market listing of $10. Interest on the bonds is unpaid.

The government started an investigation nearly a year ago to determine whether some of the methods used in selling the bonds constituted a violation of federal law pertaining to mail fraud. The inquiry covered operations throughout the entire country in the bond sales. Milwaukee was selected to submit the evidence to a federal grand jury, because between $100,000 and $200,000 worth of the bonds had been sold in Wisconsin, and there had been many complaints. Halsey, Stuart & Co. handled the sales in this state through its Milwaukee office.

Jurors Dismissed.

The case originally was to have been presented to a grand jury here in May, but new developments caused a postponement. The jury which heard the evidence yesterday and today completed its tenure of service with consideration of the case. Judge Geiger dismissed the jurors after thanking them for the work they had done. A new grand jury will be selected with the opening of a new term of court Monday.

Twenty-five witnesses were called into the grand jury room during the two days. They included former employes of the company, investors, and government investigators.

E. J. Koelzer, assistant federal district attorney here, and Jay Newman, agent of the United States bureau of investigation, assisted in preparing and presenting the evidence heard by the grand jury.

DENOUNCED FOR TRADING HOOVER ST. LOUIS VOTES

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri speaking briefly at the Republican meeting before which Secretary of the Treasury Mills spoke tonight, denounced the "Business of so-called Republican leaders of St. Louis teaching the voters how to scratch Hoover in order to save the local ticket."

"If you are not loyal to Hoover, don't call yourselves Republicans," said the governor, whose remarks were received with apparent surprise by Republican leaders of St. Louis who sat in the audience and on the platform.

Congressman Attacks Hoover Treaty Policies

Congressman Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, the Republican who created an uproar in the house of representatives last December when he attacked President Hoover on the moratorium on inter-governmental debts, spoke yesterday in the Hotel Sherman before the Executives' club, which opened its 22d year of activity. "The Hoover administration," he told the executives, "has been too willing to use its power to support the French insistence upon the maintenance of the status quo of the treaty of Versailles. Most of its troubles have come from this fact."

TELEPHONE GIRL ROUTS BANDITS; 5 SUSPECTS HELD

Four of them, it is charged, entered the place with shotguns and pistols, but were frightened away by the screams of Miss Amanda Hopson of 3252 West 63d place, the switchboard operator.

A few minutes later Sergt. John Freichle and his squad pursued a car containing five men and forced the automobile to the curb at 13th street and Racine avenue. Four of the men fled, but the driver, Joseph Ponerelli, 20 years old, of 1031 South Morgan street, was seized. Later the four other men were nabbed. All are being held for further identification.

G. O. P. OPENS FIRE ON POSTOFFICE PORK AND GARNER

Claim Roosevelt Helped Hoover in Iowa.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican national headquarters last night launched a double attack upon the Democratic national ticket. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech at Sioux City Thursday night was declared to be a "vote getter for Hoover" in an analysis of the Roosevelt addresses on his western tour, put out by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, director of the Republican senatorial campaign in the west and "keynoter" at the Republican national convention.

Simultaneously a pamphlet was issued directed at Speaker John N. Garner, Roosevelt's running mate. It discussed the postoffice bill of "Cactus Jack" and it was captioned "Garner stands for pork barrel extravagance in government."

Ham or Whole Hog?

On the leaflet against Mr. Garner were pictures of the old $6,000 postoffice in Uvalde, Tex., Garner's home town, which has a population of 6,285, and the new $55,000 postoffice as a specimen of the "pork barrel."

Mr. Garner's attitude toward pork barrel politics is referred to in the leaflet. The quotation referred to originally was printed in the San Antonio Express on Oct. 9, 1915. The speech, which was the feature of the Atascosa fair, was reported as follows:

"There are a half dozen places in my district where federal buildings are being erected or have been recently constructed at a cost to the government far in excess of the actual needs of the communities where they are located.

Admits It's Bad Business.

"Take Uvalde, my own home town, for instance. We are putting up a post office down there at a cost of $60,000 when a $5,000 building would be entirely adequate for our needs.

"This is a mighty bad business for Uncle Sam, and I'll admit it, but the other fellows in congress have been doing it for a long time, and I can't make them quit.

"Those fellows from New England and other states in the north have plastered their country with unnecessary federal buildings. Now we Democrats are in charge of the house, and I'll tell you right now every time one of those Yankees get a ham I'm going to do my best to get a hog."

Postoffices Are Listed.

With this as text, the Republican folder goes into the details of the famous billion dollar "pork barrel" bill, which earned for Speaker Garner the sobriquet "Postoffice Jack." It gives a partial list of the postoffices suggested in the Garner measure for the four states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Missouri, as follows:

	$70,000 bldgs.	$55,000 bldgs.	State total.
Indiana	30	11	41
Iowa	48	15	63
Missouri	28	18	46
	168	65	233

The folder takes up sample small cities which were to be given bigger and better postoffices in the Garner bill, against which most of them protested they did not want the proposed marble palaces.

"For example," it says, "the town of Coal City, Ill., has a population of 1,637 and the postoffice now used costs the government $480 a year. Coal City was to have a $70,000 ham out of the Garner barrel at a future annual cost for maintenance and upkeep of $6,300, instead of $480.

"Guthrie Center, Ia., now has postoffice quarters which cost $720 a year. Had it received its $70,000 building recommended by 'Pork Barrel' Jack the annual cost would be increased nearly $5,600.

"Versailles, Mo., is a town of 1,662. It gets along very well with postoffice quarters that cost $660 a year, but Speaker Garner felt it needed something better and included it in his $70,000 building classification.

"Study of the individual items in Speaker Garner's billion dollar 'pork barrel' bill proves that President Hoover's designation of the measure was more than justified," says the pamphlet. "The President said:

"'This is not unemployment relief. It is the most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed to the American congress. It is an unexampled raid on the public treasury.'"

The Republican analysis of the Roosevelt western speeches from Topeka to Sioux City, as set forth by Senator Dickinson, says:

"Summing up his whole series of speeches on this trip, it would seem that the Democratic candidate:

"Favors a competitive tariff—and is also for a 'protective' tariff.

"Favors the President's railroad program—but also denounces it.

For Relief, but no Program.

"Favors economy and tax reduction in local, state and national units; but also has been, as New York's governor, the greatest spender his state has known, having increased expenditures of his state by a third, or one hundred million dollars in three years.

"Favors farm relief, but offers no program.

"Favors a balanced budget, but remains silent on the question of immediate cash payment of the bonus.

"Favors doing something about silver, but offers no new suggestions.

"Boldly commits himself in favor of patriotism, American womanhood and the American home."

Taking up specifically the Sioux City Roosevelt address, Senator Dickinson, as mouthpiece for the national committee, declared:

"No more effective speech could have been made to the farmers of Iowa for the reelection of President Hoover than that of Gov. Roosevelt at Sioux City. That part of it which dealt with the tariff insulted the intelligence of the Iowa farmer, who knows his tariff problems far better than the Hyde Park farmer."

VOTERS REGISTER TODAY FOR NEW ELECTION LISTS

Expect Two Registration Days to Set Record.

Today is the first of two general registration days in Chicago and Cook county and a number of other cities in the state. It begins a new recording of the names of voters qualified to vote in the national, state and county election on Nov. 8.

Estimates of the total who will place their names on the new books today vary, but John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the Chicago election board, who has a reputation as a forecaster in this field, said yesterday that he expects the day's registration to reach the 950,000 mark.

New Record Is Expected.

This would break all records. The last corresponding day, the first day of registration in 1928, produced a total of 886,628 on the basis of the final revision. The total for that presidential election on two registration days was 1,385,642 and that mark is expected to be passed with the addition to today's total of the number who will register on this year's second registration day, Oct. 11, or one week from next Tuesday.

The most recent registration in Chicago was that preceding the statewide primaries last April. The total number of residents of the city shown to be qualified to vote at that time was 1,429,779. But since the figure was the result of the original registration of 1928, plus the results of supplemental registrations in intervening years, it is believed the high figure included a lot of "dead names" which revision failed to eliminate.

For that reason there is a question whether the total registration for the November election will beat last spring's figure, although Chief Clerk Rusch is confident there will be a large turnout both today and on Oct. 11.

Great Interest in Election.

"There is a tremendous interest," he said, "in each of the several phases of this election—the presidential, the governorship, the congressional, the legislative, and the county contests.

"It must not be forgotten that there are many thousands of unemployed who are bound to register the first day, and in addition there are other thousands who this year are taking an active interest in matters of government for the first time. I expect to see 950,000 register the first day."

Other forecasters predicted that there will be another 500,000 or more register on Oct. 11, bringing the total qualified to a new high mark for a new registration.

Chief Clerk Rusch again explained that voters unable to go to the polls today or on Oct. 11 may register by filing affidavits not later than noon on Oct. 12. Residents of the territory under the election board — Chicago, Berwyn, Cicero, Chicago Heights, Summit, Evergreen Park, and Stickney—file at the offices of the board in the city hall. Residents of that part of the county outside the territory described file their affidavits at the office of County Clerk Sweitzer in the county building.

SEPTEMBER DRY AND COOL, REPORT OF WEATHER MAN

September was a dry, fair month, with the temperature slightly lower than normal, according to the monthly report of C. A. Donnel, chief government meteorologist. The warmest day of the month was the 19th, with a maximum temperature of 87 degrees, and the coolest was the 28th, when the thermometer fell to 44 degrees.

The mean temperature, the report shows, was 64.8 degrees, as compared to a normal mean of 65.4 degrees. The average daily temperature deficiency for the month was six-tenths of a degree.

Precipitation for the month was considerably below normal, the deficiency being 1.91 of an inch. Total precipitation was 1.12 inches, as compared with a normal of 3.03 inches. There has been a deficiency of 1.91 inches since the first of the year.

The month showed a better than average record in the number of clear and partly cloudy days. There was a sunshine percentage of 70, compared with the normal percentage of 61. There were 14 clear days, compared with the normal of 11 days, nine partly cloudy days compared with the normal of 10, and six cloudy days compared with the normal of eight cloudy days.

JUDGE HORNER HOME; PLEASED WITH TOUR OF DOWNSTATE TOWNS

Back in Chicago after almost three weeks of intensive campaigning downstate, Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic candidate for governor, rested most of yesterday at his home, 1236 Madison Park, and attended to a heap of accumulated mail. Judge Horner will introduce Gov. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate, at tonight's banquet.

With half his downstate tour completed the judge feels highly satisfied with the results, he said yesterday. He made dozens of speeches and shook thousands of hands along the 1,600 mile route he traveled since Sept. 12, driving through the state from Jo Daviess and Winnebago counties on the north, to Williamson and Saline on the south.

Capacity crowds met the candidate wherever he went; in most instances the county chairmen proclaimed them the largest political gatherings ever held in their districts. Besides his formal meetings, Judge Horner talked with scores of county workers and spent much more time in the informal style of campaigning so well suited to his personality.

2 CLOUDBURSTS HIT CALIFORNIA MOUNTAIN TOWNS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Cloudbursts flooded two towns in the mountains between Los Angeles and Bakersfield. The first struck Tehachapi, 45 miles south of Bakersfield. All means of communication were disrupted by the downpour.

Advised the roads had been choked by debris and washouts, officers of the state highway patrol ordered all traffic in that direction suspended. While the floods at Tehachapi were believed to be receding, there was another cloudburst in the vicinity of Lebec, near the summit of the Ridge route mountain road. Several cabins were smashed and the summer home of Henry Fiddler, Bakersfield business man, was swept into a ravine.

'THINK' 7 YEARS, THEN USE 1925 LICENSE TO WED

On Jan. 14, 1925, a couple from Milwaukee appeared in the office of County Clerk L. A. Hendee in Waukegan and obtained a marriage license.

Yesterday a couple appeared in the same office with the same marriage license and asked if it was still good. Deputy Clerk Joseph Stanczak looked the document over and admitted that it was, provided the same people wanted to use it.

So John Lake, who was 17 years old when he got his marriage license, and is now 24, and Miss Hilda Henderson, who is now 25, went before Justice of the Peace Michael Haney and were married.

"We just got to thinking the matter over," said the bride, "and seven years skipped by. But we kept the license all that time. Isn't it nice that it's still good?"

FINANCE EDITOR IS WITNESS AT H. O. STONE TRIAL

American Employe Tells of Stock Campaign.

The stock of H. O. Stone & Co., real estate investment concern that failed for $14,000,000 in 1930, was termed as sound as "the rock of Gibraltar" in a letter written late in 1929 by David A. Coleman, president of the Stone Finance company, a subsidiary. The letter, received by Robert P. Vanderpoel, financial editor of the Chicago Evening American, was read to the jury in the federal court of Judge Charles E. Woodward, where Coleman, Henry F. Norcott, president of H. O. Stone & Co., and seven associates are on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The letter sought favorable publicity and told Vanderpoel that he would receive "a nice new crisp $100 bill" if the favorable mention was forthcoming. Vanderpoel was called to the stand and given a chance to testify that he had not taken the money.

Tells of Meeting Coleman.

Vanderpoel testified to a conversation with Coleman, in which the latter said that H. O. Stone & Co. stock was to be listed on the exchange. Coleman told him that the stock was to be split up and extra dividends paid, Vanderpoel said. The witness also testified that Coleman pronounced the stock an "excellent opportunity." Vanderpoel said that he told Coleman that he would rather talk to "someone on the inside."

"I am in the innermost councils," Coleman said, according to Vanderpoel, "and can vouch for the stock. You know I wouldn't fool a newspaper man."

On cross examination by Attorney Benjamin Bachrach, Vanderpool said that he had purchased 10 shares of the Stone stock for himself and two shares for his sister at $95 a share.

"You analyzed this stock as an expert, and after the analysis bought the stock?" Defense Attorney Charles F. Rathbun asked.

"Yes," the witness said.

Try to Get Statement.

Warren A. Marler, Kenneth L. Smith, and E. W. Fetterson, employes of the Chicago Stock exchange, told of unsuccessful attempts to get a satisfactory financial statement from officials of the Stone company early in 1930. Their testimony revealed that one statement was sent the exchange in February, 1930, without profit and loss figures.

Later, after numerous conferences with officials of the Stone company, Fetterson said, a second statement was sent the exchange. This statement contained the results of an audit by Wolfe and company, auditors, and had a profit and loss statement attached, the witness said. When officials of the Wolfe company learned of this they informed exchange employes that they had not certified the profit and loss sheet and that it was misleading, Fetterson continued. Then Leslie A. Needham, attorney for the Stone company and a defendant, promised a satisfactory statement but it was never received by the exchange, the witness concluded.

Identifies Transcript.

William L. James, a court reporter, identified a transcript of proceedings before a committee of the stock exchange at which Stone & Co. sought to list their stock and later asked to withdraw it. The transcript, introduced in evidence, revealed that the committee had "looked with disfavor" on the instructions of Stone officials to salesmen to sell stock under the market value. Norcott and attorneys for the company said that they did not know anything was wrong with the practice, but promised to stop it, the transcript showed. They later informed the committee that they had discontinued the practice in which stock was sold below the market value under an escrow agreement to be delivered 10 months after the sale.

Literature of the Stone company stating that investors could realize "2,000 per cent in five years" was also criticized by the exchange committee, the transcript showed. The committee termed it "not unethical but misleading." Norcott promised to destroy the literature, the record revealed.

TAMMANY O. K. ON WALKER RACE SEEN IN DEAL

Roosevelt, Smith Action Is Awaited.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—James J. Walker, who resigned from office while under fire, will be Tammany's candidate for mayor in the event of a special election this fall, in the opinion of Roosevelt headquarters. That was authoritatively learned today.

The open fight between Gov. Roosevelt and Tammany gives the Republicans a better chance to carry the state of New York, but in the mayoralty selection the predictions are that, if nominated, Mr. Walker will be elected. Reports are that the Republicans will nominate a "setup" to be knocked down.

Follows Bipartisan Deal.

These reports are based on the surprising bipartisan nomination of Samuel H. Hofstadter, Republican chairman of the city investigating committee, for Supreme court justice last night. The local G. O. P. organization, according to these reports, will reciprocate by naming a "straw man" certain of defeat.

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman and Gov. Roosevelt's campaign manager, had no comment to make on the Hofstadter nomination or on any of the other political developments. Neither had former Gov. Alfred E. Smith anything to say. W. Kingsland Macy, Republican state chairman, and Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman likewise had nothing to say. An official silence was the immediate result of the Hofstadter nomination.

While Mr. Smith declined to discuss the situation, it was learned on excellent authority that he intends to nominate Mr. Lehman and still is opposed to Walker for mayor. It is said that he is ready to nominate Mr. Lehman, even if it means an open break with Tammany.

Await Smith's Action.

How active his opposition to Walker would be is uncertain. The former governor is looked on as the only man who, by a vigorous campaign, could prevent Walker's reelection and it is considered doubtful if Tammany would nominate Walker if it knew that Smith would throw himself into such a campaign with the same force that he did seven years ago when he was supporting Walker.

The board of governors of the New York Young Republican club, taken by surprise themselves over the Hofstadter nomination, this noon unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon Hofstadter to decline the Tammany indorsement.

"We believe that if this nomination is accepted it will be construed as a deal and a compromise with municipal misgovernment and corruption," the resolution said.

Meanwhile the conviction grew that Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, backed by the Bronx organization and the Roosevelt people, will run independently regardless of any deals made or in the making.

PAIR FINED FOR POSTING CARDS FOR CANDIDATE

Ernest Thide, 29 years old, 12043 Lafayette street, and Joseph Green, 38, of 11908 South Michigan avenue, were fined $10 yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller for posting election cards on public property. They were arrested as they tacked an advertisement for William Z. Foster, communist candidate for President, on city property at 119th and State streets.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Experts making a survey for the joint legislative committee on economy in state departments have a plan to save the state $38,000,000 with but six of the eighteen departments covered, it was announced today.

The latest department to be surveyed is that of public works, where, it is estimated, $21,548,800 can be saved, while, with an increase in revenues for services rendered to individuals, but not including any general increase in taxes, a net saving of $21,968,800 could be effected.

BULLETS WOUND STOLEN WOMEN USED AS SHIELD

No. Dakota Bank Robbers Flee Unhurt.

Wahpeton, N. D., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Protected by two women used as shields, both of whom were wounded, five bandits raced through a gauntlet of gunfire after looting a local bank of $5,800 today.

Cashier S. H. Murray, in a back room, had pressed the burglar alarm as the gunmen entered, ordering a dozen occupants of the bank to hold up their hands. He was slugged with a pistol butt.

The women tonight emphasized "the courtesy" of the outlaws. They did so while talking from hospital beds, adding that their captors repeatedly reminded them that vigilantes' shots caused their wounds.

"They said it was terrible to shoot women," whispered Miss Doris Stock, 20 years old, deputy county superintendent of schools, a customer in the Citizens National bank when the raiders entered. She was the most seriously hurt.

Miss Ruth Whipps, 30 years old, bookkeeper and teller, wounded in one thigh, told how, after the outlaws had dropped them at an abandoned farm shack following a wild 25 mile dash over country roads with one of the women still clinging to a running board, one of the bandits said:

"Take good care of her [meaning Miss Stock]. You can get help at a farm somewhere near. And keep her in the shade."

Find Women by Accident.

Both were found when occupants of a pursuing car slowed down because of a flat tire and heard the moans of the women who had been hidden behind the shack.

Firing on the bandit car, even with women in view, occurred apparently, officers said, because townspeople recalled that in the first of six bandit raids in North Dakota this month, two women participated. In the previous raid a citizen of Hunter was wounded slightly by a machine gun bullet. At least one submachine gun was seen today.

Warned by the bank's clanging burglar alarm, townspeople exchanged shots with the robbers as their car roared away from the rear of the building. Officers and local citizens followed.

Hit by First Fire.

The women said they were struck by the first blast as the car was leaving the bank. Miss Stock, her left leg broken by a shotgun charge fired from nearby second story windows, and her body bearing several less severe wounds, was pulled into the car. Miss Whipps was compelled to stand on the running board.

FALLS OUT WINDOW; KILLED.

Miss Mary Werer, 58 years old, fell to her death from the window of an apartment on the third floor of 640 Fullerton parkway, where she was employed. Police said the fall was accidental.

BANDITS SEIZED AFTER SHOOTING GOOD SAMARITAN

Doctor Who Stopped at Wreck Wounded.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Two bandits who kidnaped Frank Chapin, wealthy Decatur real estate dealer, and shot Dr. Robert Sanders, Decatur, were arrested today after a thrilling gun fight with Bloomington police.

The two bandits, giving the names of Earl Aguiler, 27, a half caste from the Mexican-Texas border, and Ora Kelley, 30, no home, started their escapade in Decatur by kidnaping Mr. Chapin last night. Taking him in his auto they started towards Cerro Gordo.

Stops to Give First Aid.

Driving out of Decatur at a high rate of speed they overturned on a curve. Dr. Sanders, returning from Cerro Gordo, saw the mishap and stopped to administer first aid.

None of the three in the bandit car was seriously injured in the crash. The kidnapers advanced to the Sanders machine and attempted to take possession of it. When Sanders resisted they shot him twice, first in the leg, breaking it, and then through the abdomen.

They were going to leave in Sanders' car, but Mrs. Sanders pleaded with them to take the injured doctor nearer town for medical assistance. At the edge of Decatur the bandits thrust the injured man and his wife upon the pavement and fled northward.

Caught After Gun Fight.

Bloomington officials, warned of the flight of the bandits northward, met them early this morning, near Randolph, five miles from here, and a running gun fight ensued. Once in the city, the kidnapers attempted to flee, abandoning their car. Aguilar was shot in the hip by the police and captured. The other one, Kelley, escaped in the darkness, but was seized this morning at Paxton when local officials asked Paxton police to search a Nickel Plate freight for him.

Decatur police said today that the two bandits were under the influence of a "powerful drug."

Ruth Elder on Way to Seek Divorce

Refuses to Comment

Ruth Elder, the trans-Atlantic flyer, stopped off in Chicago last night on her way to Reno where, according to a statement issued by her attorneys in New York, she will file suit for divorce from Walter Camp Jr., her third husband.

Miss Elder refused to comment on her marital affairs when she arrived at La Salle street station on a New York Central train. She did admit, however, that Reno was the goal of her trip. A trim figure in a brown and orange ensemble the aviatrix made her way through the crowd in the station to a taxicab which carried her to the Northwestern station.

According to her attorneys, Miss Elder's suit will charge incompatibility.

ROBBERY PAIR CAPTURED ON SECOND VISIT

Two youths believed to be members of the gang of six that robbed Richard Vinke, 61 years old, and his three sisters at their farm near 161st and Halsted streets, South Holland, last Monday were held by Homewood county highway police last night.

The prisoners are Anthony Kurbes, 20 years old, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Frank Kucziak, 16, also of Phoenix. Kurbes was shot in the left hand and captured yesterday by Henry W. Waldschmidt, manager of the Harvey Thrift and Finance company of Harvey. It was Kurbes's second visit there, the first having netted him $146. Vinke identified Kucziak as one of the bandits who robbed him. His sisters, Jennie and Johanna, identified Kurbes.

The robbery of the Vinkes was marked by threats of torture. It has been generally rumored in the vicinity that the family had many thousands of dollars stowed away. The Vinkes ignored the threats, but the bandits found the money by ripping open mattresses and ransacking drawers. The Vinkes never revealed the amount of their loss.

SOUTH TRIMBLE IN QUANDARY ON LOAN PUBLICITY

R. F. C. Chairman Orders List Held Up.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—South Trimble, clerk of the house of representatives, was faced today for a second time with the question of whether or not to make public the names of borrowers from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the amounts they have received in loans.

Appealed to by Atlee Pomerene, corporation chairman, in the name of public service, and warned by Morton G. Bogue, corporation counsel, in the name of the law, Mr. Trimble announced that he would postpone at least until Monday his decision on the latest report. The report, which came from the corporation yesterday, carries the details of loans made during August.

First List Given Out.

Once before, when the corporation's first report covering loans from July 21 to Aug. 1 was submitted to him, Mr. Trimble had to decide whether or not the law meant that he should make the report public in the absence of congress. He ruled in the affirmative, supporting his stand with a brief prepared by his son, South Trimble Jr. But he found himself today the recipient of a letter in which Chairman Pomerene both besought and demanded secrecy, and his opinion also was backed by a brief.

"The publication of the July report caused serious embarrassment to a number of borrowers," Mr. Pomerene wrote. "It gave rise to much unjust criticism. Reports were circulated that some of the institutions borrowing were not in good financial condition when they were perfectly sound. This resulted in withdrawals from some of the banks and other institutions. A number of them have said that while the loans were of great benefit to them the good was largely undone by the publication."

Many Applications Withdrawn.

As a result, said the chairman's letter, in August, institutions which had had applications authorized for loans totaling $3,451,000 had canceled their applications for fear of the effect of publicity. Other applications were withdrawn. Still others were never made.

On his part Mr. Bogue, general counsel of the corporation, declared that nowhere in the law or in precedent was there authority for Mr. Trimble to make the loans public. Publication, he said, could be had only through further and direct action by house or senate.

Mr. Bogue believed Mr. Trimble should give consideration to the fact that the act 'is an emergency and relief measure, designed to protect credit, restore confidence, and furnish relief."

In view of these objections, Mr. Trimble explained in a statement, "I feel justified in withholding publication of the report until I have had an opportunity carefully to consider the opinion."

Grants Further Loans.

While debate went on over publication of the report, the corporation granted relief loans totaling nearly a million and a half dollars as follows:

To Louisiana, $1,008,844, for relief in thirty-five parishes of the state until the end of this year; to Hawaii, $307,435, for relief throughout the territory; to New Mexico, $90,800, for relief throughout the state; and to Nevada, $47,200, for relief in three counties.

Part of the Nevada loan, according to the corporation, is to be used to provide relief in Clark county to families who have migrated there in the hope of getting work on the government's 165 million dollar Boulder Dam project. Employes on the dam are provided with completely modern living quarters in a model town erected for them by the government. The corporation said that those seeking work on the project are "often left stranded with no prospect of employment and insufficient funds to go elsewhere."

Sunset last evening ushered in Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish new year of 5693, which is the traditional number of years since the creation observed by Jews throughout the world. The holiday, the birthday of humanity, according to the Jewish tradition, will be observed in 125 temples and synagogues. It will last two days and is the beginning of a month of festivity.

The shofar, or the ram's horn, will be blown during the two days by an aged Jew, calling all worshippers to repentance. Today the services will start a ten day repentance which ends in a day of fast. Yom Kipper, the day of atonement, will begin on the eve of Oct. 9.

Sinai temple's services, 46th street and South Park way, will be conducted by Rabbi Louis L. Mann, who will tell of the significance of the holiday. At Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive, Dr. Abram Hirschberg, rabbi of the temple, will have charge of the services. At the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffrey avenue, Rabbi G. George Fox will officiate, and at Synagogue Beth Israel, 4754 Barnard street, Rabbi Felix S. Mendelsohn.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL TO REPEAL N. S. F. CHECK ACT

Dispatches from Springfield last night announced that Gov. Louis L. Emmerson had signed the Mason bill rescinding the recent amendment authorizing the payment of school teachers' salaries with N. S. F. checks.

The bill was introduced in both houses but the senate measure took the lead and was passed by the house last Wednesday. It was signed at once by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, as president of the senate, and by Speaker David E. Shanahan, and was sent to the governor yesterday.

The purpose of the repealer was to remove objections of bankers to Chicago board of education tax anticipation warrants, so long as the N. S. F. checks could be used in the payment of taxes.

FATHER'S TRUCK KILLS BABY.

Pedro, S. D., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The ten months old daughter of E. L. Burns was crushed to death beneath the wheels of her father's truck here last night.

COUNTY'S RELIEF FUND CUT 25% FOR OCTOBER

Reduction in Food Orders Effective Today.

Relief funds allocated to Cook county agencies for the month of October were cut more than 25 per cent under the estimated need by the Illinois emergency relief commission last night. As a result of the cut grocery orders for perishable foods will be reduced by one-half, effective today, by the unemployment relief service of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, which furnishes the bulk of unemployment relief in this county.

Reductions will also be ordered in relief administration to conform to the reduced budget. The expenses of private suburban agencies, the work relief committee, the clinics, and the shelters must also be cut. Each group is to receive specific instructions to curtail its estimated expenditures so that they will conform to the reduced allocations.

Downstate Cut 10 Per Cent.

Allocations for the fifty-four downstate counties were cut 10 per cent by the commission. General instructions are being sent by the commission to chairmen of each downstate county emergency relief committee to adopt a rigid policy with respect to control over its allocations, in conformity with the reductions voted by the commission.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, announced the cuts in allocations at 11 o'clock last night, at the end of a thirteen hour session of the commission. He said the reductions are effective at once. He reiterated the attitude of the commission that it was created to administer available relief funds, and not to create those funds.

"The reductions were made in order to keep the commission's allocations within the funds under its control," he said. "The commission has a total of $4,953,913 under its control in federal funds for use during October. Allocations requested by the commission's agents in Cook county amounted to $5,612,106, and those requested by its agents in other counties totaled $865,519, a total of $6,477,625, or $1,523,713 more than funds on hand.

To Save $862,000 on Food.

"The commission allocated $4,900,952.10 at its meeting today, of which $4,121,985 is for use in Cook county and $778,967.10 for downstate counties. The reduction of one-half in perishable food orders in Cook county will make an estimated saving of $862,000, or one-third of the total amount which must be saved by the 25 per cent reduction.

"The demands on the commission have been increasing steadily, and it is evident that this increase must be checked," Mr. Ryerson said. "Allocations to Cook county have shown increases for each month from May to October. The allocations for October are approximately 39 per cent higher than those for May.

"The commission cannot continue to increase allocations in the face of a limited fund under its control and of a limited source of future public revenue for relief work for Illinois; neither can it make allocations unless the funds it approves for use in given areas are absolutely needed to avert suffering.

"The October allocations for Cook county agencies are: Major private family agencies, $346,690; private suburban agencies, $102,360; minor agencies, $2,000; shelters, $95,026; Cook county bureau of public welfare, $3,100,159; work relief committee, $462,000; clinics, $13,750."

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY VOTES APPROVAL OF STATE HOUSING BILL

Directors of the Western Society of Engineers yesterday approved a resolution indorsing the housing act pending before the special session of the legislature, according to D. J. Brumley, president. The meeting was held at the Engineers club, 314 South Federal street.

"In the opinion of the engineers this legislation is necessary if Illinois is to be permitted to obtain loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation," said the directors in a statement. "Considering the need of reconstruction of slum areas, the present low cost of construction and the great need of employment, it appears that legislation permitting housing corporations to embark on such work would provide a powerful stimulus toward business recovery."

REPORT MERGER IS NEAR FOR TWO REALTY BOARDS

City and County Bodies Are Negotiating.

BY AL CHASE.

Negotiations have reached a stage where it was predicted yesterday by Samuel E. Erickson, president of the Cook County Real Estate board, that his organization and the Chicago Real Estate board will be merged into one big realty organization, with headquarters at 32 West Randolph street, where the Chicago board has its rooms. The tentative name of Chicago-Cook County Real Estate board for the combined bodies has been suggested, according to Mr. Erickson.

S. E. ERICKSON.

If the merger goes through, and officials of both boards predicted that it would, it will benefit both organizations financially as well as numerically, it was pointed out. The depression has depleted the membership rolls of both bodies, although the Chicago Real Estate board still is the largest organization of its kind in the world.

Erickson Expects Approval.

"So far as the Cook County Real Estate board is concerned, there's no doubt of the members approving the merger," said President Erickson. "I believe it'll be a good thing for both organizations. We'll give up our present quarters at 100 North La Salle street, if it goes through, and move over to the Chicago Real Estate board building."

J. Soule Warterfield, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, was more reticent about the proposed merger and said no official action had yet been taken. He said a committee was negotiating with a similar group of the other board but declared it was not acting in an official capacity.

Brooks Heads Committee.

The committee representing the Cook County Real Estate board is headed by Robert E. L. Brooks. The other members are William Loehde, George Mead, and George J. Kappes.

S. O. Stone is chairman of the Chicago Real Estate board committee, which contains Mark Levy, George J. Eckhoff, and Arthur Kruggel.

Many bitter battles have been fought during the last fifteen years over the question of combining the two boards. About three years ago the Chicago Real Estate board approved a merger plan, but the Cook County Real Estate board turned it down.

TEACHERS PROPOSE CLOSING SCHOOLS TO AID TAX COLLECTION

A petition asking that the board of education close the schools until it is able to pay the teachers their back salaries was sent to Louis E. Myers, president of the board, yesterday by Charles L. MacCallum, principal of the Carpenter school. Sixty teachers had signed the plea.

"A showdown must take place sooner or later," the petition read, "and the schools closed until the people of Chicago realize that the schools are their concern, heritage and responsibility." Mr. MacCallum declared the people would pay their taxes rather than see the schools close.

"The teachers have been paid only up to April 1 of this year," said Mr. MacCallum, "and they are in desperate need. One of my teachers had to walk 10 miles from her home to school the other day because she didn't have carfare. The teachers are being fed in our penny lunchrooms—on credit."

Proposals to call a general strike of teachers were voted down Thursday at meetings of the Chicago High School Teachers' association and delegates from schools on the north and west sides.

Owner Sees Woman Help Thief Strip Automobile

Albert Linder looked out of his apartment window at 540 Briar place last night to see a woman and a man removing the tires of his parked automobile. He cried out and ran downstairs. The thieves ran to their car and drove to Sheridan road, with Linder following.

CONVICT IS DEAD AFTER 56 YEARS SPENT IN PRISON

Bridgewater, Mass., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Jesse Pomeroy, 70, Massachusetts' most notorious life term prisoner, was dead today after having served 56 years behind prison walls, forty of them in solitary confinement.

The aged inmate died last night at the state prison camp to which he had been transferred several years ago after many years in the state prison at Boston. Heart disease was given as the cause of his death by Robert C. Sharman, superintendent of the farm.

Sentenced as Boy.

It was as a boy of 14 that Pomeroy was sentenced to death for the murder of Horace Millen, a South Boston child whose mutilated body was found on the flats of that district. Refusal of the then Gov. Gaston to sign the death warrant resulted in the sentence being commuted to life imprisonment later by Gov. Rice.

During his incarceration Pomeroy kept himself in the public eye by repeated attempts to escape and in later years to obtain a pardon. Prison officials estimated he attempted to escape at least twelve times.

Played Stock Market.

While at state prison Pomeroy actually "played" the stock market, conducting modest transactions with a broker by mail. In one of his humorous letters to the latter he remarked he could not attend to his affairs with the personal touch he would like to have.

In 1924 Pomeroy was allowed to listen to a radio for the first time and became entranced with the invention.

WITNESS INSISTS J. J. DAVIS IS 'EXTRAORDINARY'

Judge Puzzled by Reply at Lottery Trial.

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Joseph A. Jenkins, who took over the organization work formerly dominated by Senator James J. Davis in the Loyal Order of Moose, today described Mr. Davis as an "extraordinary man who does extraordinary things" as the lottery trial of the Pennsylvania senator continued.

The trial was suspended until Monday after a half day session by Judge Coleman in order that the Jewish members of the jury might observe their religious holiday.

Charles J. Margiotti, defense counsel, said it had not yet been decided whether Mr. Davis would take the witness stand in his own defense. It was generally believed, however, that he would, in which case the trial will last through the greater part of next week.

Only Witness of the Day.

Mr. Jenkins, under direct examination of Mr. Mariotti and cross examination by Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, was the only witness of the day. His testimony, in the main, was primarily to corroborate that given by Fred W. Jones, who, with Mr. Jenkins, supposedly bought Mr. Davis' organization contract for $600,000 in 1930 before the charity balls out of which the lottery charge grew.

In explaining sums advanced to the organization department out of proceeds of the 1930 and 1931 charity balls by Theodore G. Miller, head of the propaganda department, Mr. Jenkins declared the money was given by Miller to compensate for the loss in enthusiasm and drop in new members during the year.

"What might actuate Mr. Davis in personally receiving $125,000 when he knew that the money was going into the organization department, or to you and Jones?" Judge Coleman wanted to know.

"Your honor," said Mr. Jenkins, "that's one of the extraordinary things he has done. He does things different from what you or I would do and that's why he is an extraordinary man."

Judge Coleman appeared a bit puzzled by the answer. Explaining to Mr. Jenkins that he probably had misunderstood, he pressed the question again. Mr. Jenkins replied:

"But, your honor, he's an extraordinary man and he does extraordinary things. From practically nothing he came to be secretary of labor and United States senator and that just proves him to be the extraordinary man."

Fire Damages Large Evanston Church

ASK ANNULMENT FOR BOY, 17, WHO MARRIED GIRL, 24

Suit to annul the marriage of William McGuire, 17 years old, former Senn High school student, to Molly Steigerwald, 24 years old, 2125 Montrose avenue, a telephone operator, was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Daniel L. Madden, attorney and guardian of the youth. Young McGuire, an orphan, is heir to $50,000 left him at the death of his mother, Mrs. Margaret McGuire, five years ago.

Attorney Madden said that the boy was at Senn High school when he met Miss Steigerwald and ran away to Waukegan last April 15 with her to get married. The couple separated that night and have never lived together, he said.

McGuire was expelled from St. Bede's school at Peru, Ill., last March and is at present at a school out of town, the name of which the lawyer would not disclose.

Starts in Basement

Fire yesterday swept through the Hemenway Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston, a $200,000 structure which was built in 1900. The Evanston fire department succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to an adjoining block in Chicago avenue, just north of the Main street business district.

The fire apparently started in the basement, supposedly from a short circuit of electrical wires, and the flames were breaking through the wooden roof before an alarm was turned in. The firemen succeeded in extinguishing the fire after three hours, but only the four brick walls were left standing.

The church was named after the late Rev. Francis Hemenway, a professor at the Garrett Biblical institue. The church has a membership of about 800. The Rev. Blair Sumner Latshaw is pastor.

DeKalb, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—H. C. Weisenburger, 30, of Huron, S. D., was near death in Glidden hospital tonight from poison. Police said he came here two days ago to attempt to bring about a reconciliation with his wife, employed in a DeKalb beauty parlor.

RODEO THRILLS CROWD; STEER INJURES RIDER

The second annual world's championship rodeo opened last night for a ten-day run in the Chicago Stadium. Not only swashbuckling men, in high, sloping heeled boots, but dainty little girls with marcelle waves took part in the manly sport as riding wild broncoes.

The evening's performance was punctuated with incidents which made the audience gasp. In the last event, the cowboys' steer riding contest, one of the contestnts, Marvin Kelly, of Englewood, Kas., was seriously injured when a bucking steer which he was riding fell on him. He was taken to the West Side hospital.

When the show was opened, with Col. W. T. Johnson riding swiftly into the arena on his horse, Colonel, another sort of contest was decided. These cowboys pronounce it "rod-e-o," just as it is spelled, with the accent on the first syllable, instead of "rod-a-o," accent on second.

STORE ROBBERS GET $285.

Three gunmen yesterday took $285 from the Abel Cohen dry goods store, 5018 Armitage avenue, after threatening three women clerks.

SALTIS RETURNS; SOUGHT FOR QUIZ IN GANG KILLING

Reported Building Home in Beverly Hills.

Police yesterday sought "Polack Joe" Saltis, who "retired" three years ago from the south side beer racket, for questioning concerning the murder of Aaron [Iron] Barger, police character found shot to death Thursday in an automobile at 48th place and Albany avenue. Detectives started a search for Saltis on the theory that Barger was killed for an attempt to muscle in on a newly established Saltis alcohol domain.

Saltis has returned to Chicago, allied himself with Frank McErlane, and plans to dominate the alcohol business in the New City district, police said. They learned that Saltis is building a $90,000 home at 9859 South Irving avenue, in Beverly Hills. The statement was supported by records of the building department, which showed that a permit for erection of a building was issued on April 5 to Joe Saltys, 5700 South Albany avenue.

Neighbors Plan Court Action.

Residents of the district, informed that the house nearing completion is to be occupied by the gangster, were said to be planning court action.

Since Joe Poliak, said to be a Saltis lieutenant, was slain by his wife, Dorothy, a number of minor hoodlums have sought to dominate the alcohol business in the New City district, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker said.

Saltis renounced the beer racket three years ago and left Chicago to live at "Saltisville" near Barker Lake, Wis. He told Chief of Detectives Schoemaker at the time that "he was through with the booze racket forever."

Underworld rumors reached police headquarters that Saltis, on a recent visit to Chicago, was robbed of a $6,000 diamond ring in a saloon located in his one time beer territory. Paddy Sullivan, his bodyguard, and Nick Kramer, a henchman, were with him at the time, police said. Since the robbery the alliance with McErlaine has been completed, according to police.

Assail Police Laxity.

The inquest into the death of Barger was opened yesterday and continued until Oct. 7, after Deputy Coroner Jacob A. Schewel had denounced Detective Patrick Dwyer of the New City station for failure to produce more witnesses. Sterling Barger, who testified that he had last seen his brother in June, 1931, was followed on the stand by the watchman who found the body. Dwyer then announced that he had no more witnesses.

2 FAKE U. S. DRY AGENTS ESCAPE TRAP, WIN RACE

Kidnap Inn Keeper, Flee in Fusillade.

Bad luck yesterday afternoon pursued four real prohibition agents who were pursuing two fraudulent prohibition agent, to the accompaniment of gunfire, through roads in the southern part of Cook county. The chase started when the fake agents, who were really extortioners, seized and kidnaped Sam Rudman in front of his café at 11317 Green Bay avenue, and ended at 138d street and Ridgeland avenue, Tinley Park, with the escape of the fugitives.

"Raiders" Demand $500.

The background for the affair was furnished by a visit several days ago to Rudman's place by two men who said they were prohibition agents sent to raid him. To prove their identity they flashed badges and displayed a search warrant. Later they admitted the raid could be called off for $500.

Rudman gave up $25 and told the pair to return yesterday and get the balance. Then, becoming suspicious, he communicated with Deputy Prohibition Administrator A. E. Hamilton and a plot was laid to catch the fake agents. The roadhouse owner was to hand the extortionists a dummy package and the four agents were to dash out and make arrests.

All went well until Rudman stepped up to the extortionists' car. They seized him and drove away. This was not on the program. But the real agents speedily went into high and followed, firing their pistols.

Autoist Calls Police.

The chase led south on gravel roads with the fake agents well ahead of the real agents. In the vicinity of 180th street, in Tinley Park, the real agents ran out of gas. But a farmer came along in a car and it was commandeered. He did not clearly understand just who it was that forced him to chase somebody else, and feared his passengers were robbers.

So, with deep guile, he declared that his car needed some oil and must have it. Stopping at a filling station he slipped into a telephone booth and informed the Tinley Park police he was being kidnaped. The Tinley Park police rushed over and arrested the prohibition agents, but everybody was turned loose. Even the fake agents, for by this time it was far too late to pursue them any more.

SMITH AS EDITOR FOR DEMOCRATIC TICKET, HE SAYS

Digs at 'Forgotten Man' in Outlook Editorial.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith writing as the editor of New Outlook, urges the support of the Democratic party and the election of its ticket in the first issue of the magazine to be placed on news stands today. He believes the fight already won.

Mr. Smith from his editorial chair makes no direct reference to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate with whom he is at odds despite numerous indirect bids from Mr. Roosevelt to let bygones be bygones. Instead the former "Happy Warrior" takes a dig at one of Gov. Roosevelt's favorite fellows, "the forgotten man."

Finds All Are in Trouble.

"Just now all of our people are in trouble," writes Mr. Smith. "The forgotten man is a myth and the sooner he disappears from the campaign the better it will be for the country."

The former presidential candidate turned editor writes under the caption, "The New Outlook." He has outlined the purpose of his magazine as a joining in the search for truth. He writes that it will be without partisanship and devoted to full and open discussion. He also says that its pages will not be confined to public affairs of the government alone, but that all interests will be represented.

Among the topics he has selected for his editorial consideration are:

"The Return of Prosperity," "Public Works and the R. F. C.," "Prohibition—the Future," "The Forgotten Man," and "The Election."

Raps Hoover Administration.

In writing of "The Election," Mr. Smith raps the Hoover administration smartly, declares that it has failed utterly in solving our present problems, and points out that most people blame the administration for the crisis.

"In any event, the country is set for a change," declares Mr. Smith. "I have already stated that I sympathize with this view, and that I believe the best interests of the country will be served by the success of the Democratic party and the election of its ticket."

A few paragraphs further along Editor Smith says the campaign "to all intents and purposes may be said to be over." Then he asks the question, "What will the Democratic party do with its victory?"

Some Conflicting Elements.

Mr. Smith is not at all sure that a change in government in itself will guarantee improvement. He admits that there are "a number of conflicting elements and interests in the party," and declares:

"With some of the elements and forces in the party I am completely out of sympathy, not for personal reasons, but because I believe they are inimical to the best interests of the country."

The former presidential candidate holds that the Democratic party must "purge itself" of such unnamed elements if it is to do a good job in times such as these.

Raise Taxes on Beer and Wine.

President Hoover is taken to task by the editor for opposing the legalization of light wines and beer pending constitutional amendment. Mr. Smith points to the hundreds of millions of dollars being "kicked away" which could be raised by a beer and wine tax. He urges voters who want the prohibition issue settled quickly to "apply the acid wet and dry test" to the men they vote for this fall.

"The President," says Mr. Smith, "is for continuing the curse of federal domination in the face of his own admission that federal enforcement is unworkable." He points out that the drys, finding they are losing, now are trying to obtain a draw and that "from now on we undoubtedly shall see a sham battle."

As for the return of prosperity, Editor Smith is a bit skeptical. "We seem to be beginning to pull out very slowly," he finds, "but there is a tough winter ahead."

Views on Public Works.

The editor strikes the same note in his discussion of public works and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"Unemployment cannot be dissipated by magic," he explains and goes on to declare that "the President had an unparalleled opportunity to appoint the best brains and driving force in the country in the place vacated by Gen. Dawes, its former president. He muffed this opportunity."

Roosevelt Lauds "Liberals" in His Speech in Milwaukee

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Seeking to enlist the progressives of Wisconsin in his march on the White House, Franklin D. Roosevelt today delivered a speech here which expressed his great admiration for the "liberal traditions" born and practiced in this state.

Although the New York governor did not mention the name of La Follette, it was clear that he was rendering a eulogy of the systems of government created by the elder, the late Robert M. La Follette, and sustained by the younger La Follettes, his sons.

The Democratic presidential nominee already has invited or enlisted most of the other outstanding radical or progressive Republican leaders of the nation into his campaign, and there seemed little doubt in the Roosevelt camp today that the La Follettes would be with him, under cover if not openly.

Praised by Hiram Johnson.

Hiram Johnson of California has praised Roosevelt and criticized Hoover. George W. Norris of Nebraska has publicly embraced the Roosevelt cause. Lynn J. Frazier and Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota have gone about their state condemning Hooverism. Bronson Cutting, out in New Mexico, appeared in friendly communion with Roosevelt on the observation platform of Roosevelt's private car, the Pioneer.

This list includes nearly all the leading Republican advocates of progressivism, excepting Borah, and he has delighted the Democratic hosts by sulking in his tent in Idaho. Four years ago Senator Borah was President Hoover's greatest ally in the western farm countries, and his loss to the Republican ticket in his campaign is being counted as a heavy factor favoring the Roosevelt chances.

Audience Is Demonstrative.

Candidate Roosevelt, speaking before the most animated audience he has yet encountered anywhere on his tour, a crowd of five thousand within and without the Eagles hall in Milwaukee, won an acclaim that lasted several minutes as he ascended the stage in the hall.

He gave the fullest praise to the "liberal principles" which had been adopted in Wisconsin, and, speaking of them in terms of what he characterized "actual legislative enactment," he said:

"These essential principles, as I see them, may in details differ from the interpretation which others place upon them, but to me they suffice as an inspiring record of the high ordered, intelligent political movement."

Praises Political Action.

Addressing himself directly to the Republicans of Wisconsin who have elected Republican governors in this state for many an administration, Gov. Roosevelt praised them for their humanitarian political action, and he said their doctrines "have nothing in common with the blind reactionary spirit that characterizes the leadership—so called—of the present administration in Washington."

Quite evidently he had struck a chord in harmony with his listeners, for they applauded the sally at the Hoover administration in deafening salvos. They chuckled with Gov. Roosevelt when he added:

"This refreshing freedom from the party lock step is a Wisconsin habit. I hope the habit continues."

Then the governor launched into the body of his speech, praising the establishment in Wisconsin, as he put it, of "an ordered and regulated economic life."

Rail Regulation Cited.

"Back in the days when your troubles first began," he said, "you found it necessary to regulate railroads. Since those days you have passed through many phases of this movement and you have learned more recently that the regulation of power to the end that the public may be properly treated and the investor be assured a reasonable return is the only solution in this field, as it was in the field of railroads many years ago. For what you have done in this respect I congratulate you."

Mr. Roosevelt at this point departed from his prepared text to repeat his views on the regulation of public utilities, explaining as he did in a speech at Portland, Ore., that government must regulate utilities to assure good service and to afford a guarantee that the public will be charged rates bringing only a reasonable return on the utilities' actual investments.

Points to Crime Control.

Praising the city of Milwaukee for its enforcement of the law as regards serious crimes and dangerous criminals, Mr. Roosevelt said he had been told that "hardly a city in the United States has a more splendid record."

The University of Wisconsin, which has been lambasted throughout the state by John B. Chapple, Republican nominee for United States senator, as a breeding place for sedition and radicalism, was given eloquent indorsement by the Democratic presidential nominee.

"In spite of the things I have been reading," he said, "I still believe you have maintained in your university the high principle of intellectual freedom—you have insisted that intellectual freedom carries with it intellectual responsibility."

Urges Work for Future.

Then the governor advanced a significant train of thought, urging that the battle for freedom for the many be carried on, even if its benefits cannot be achieved in a short time.

"No nation can endure or maintain the happiness of its people unless there is a continuous movement forward toward a better ordered and more just benefit of the advantages of civilization," he declared. "To many this process seems hopeless because of the length of time which must pass before any noticeable gain can be realized. There always will be a selfish cry from a few—'Why should we do battle for benefits which will not accrue to us, but merely to future generations?'

"If these people had their way we would have no changes except by violence, but in Milwaukee and in Wisconsin generally you have shown that sound changes can be made through education and a patient understanding, finally expressed through the democratic principle of our republic, the franchise of voting.

Look Ahead, He Urges.

"I believe I speak the thought of millions of men and women in this country when I say that we will not be afraid to advocate and work for those benefits which we, perhaps, may not see to a conclusion in our lifetime, but which will mean a greater happiness and a higher standard of living, not only for our children but for all of those who follow."

THOUSANDS HAIL GOV. ROOSEVELT IN LOOP STREETS

Noisy Welcome Like Old Time Campaigns.

garbed in every sort of costume, some with placards on their hats crying out their admiration for Candidate So-and-So, others swinging other placards mounted on high sticks, more carrying banners blazoned with appeals to "Win with Roosevelt."

A touch of old-time realism was added when a quack medicine man with a van decked out with signs advertising his claims and loud speaker blaring out his offers of health chiseled his way into the parade.

Many Floats in Parade.

There was another van in the parade, decked out as a float, proposing "Schnozzle" Durante for President. Every Democratic ward organization had a float or a band—one came forth with an old fashioned stage coach and brought its precinct committeemen in cowboy togs, all sitting rather uncertainly on tame enough plugs. At that it was a marvel that any horse kept from rearing or falling dead in that riotous crowd last night.

In the cities where Gov. Roosevelt has visited these last two and a half weeks the streets have been lined with many thousands of Americans, but nowhere was there such hysterical hilarity and shouting. There have been cheers and applause, a few "yahoos" and "attaboys." But for the most part the crowds have been solemn and inquisitive, and perhaps every fifth man or woman would be cheering while those between, faces lined with the sorrows of these years of depression, stood curiously to see a man go by who might hold hope for them.

But if there were any of these folk in Chicago's loop last night they were lost in the shuffle. It was truly a celebration.

Mrs. Roosevelt in Parade.

Mrs. Roosevelt rode with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall and Mrs. James Roosevelt, wife of the governor's son, in the car behind that in which the governor rode with Mayor Cermak and James Roosevelt. The governor's wife, and the two younger girls were thrilled at the reception, although they said they had expected as much from Chicago.

The Democratic political organization had massed its satellites first at ward headquarters, and then brought them down to the line of march, each ward having been assigned to a particular section of the route. They began to mobilize as early as 6 o'clock, long before the train arrived at 9 o'clock.

Two escorts for Gov. Roosevelt, one of police, the other of men who won decorations during the war, were at the station early. The combat medal men's guard of honor was composed of Capt. Sidney Holsman, Lieut. Edward J. Powers, Thomas Pope, Mike Cullen, Lieut. John Miles, and Phil Duff.

On the Roosevelt train was a delegation from the Iroquois club, which went to Milwaukee to greet the candidate. It included four past presidents of the club: Dr. James Whitney Hall, Judge Ross C. Hall, William Rothman, and Charles J. Vopicka. Others in the committee were James F. Bishop, Frank G. Hoyne, William B. Towles, Judge John R. Caverly, Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, and Ernest J. Kruetgen. The Iroquois club group extended to Gov. Roosevelt an invitation to a "victory dinner" after the election. The club in years past feted Presidents Cleveland, Roosevelt, and Wilson.

Today the governor will spend the morning in conferences with Chicago Democratic leaders and business men, and at noon he and Mrs. Roosevelt will give a luncheon to the newspaper correspondents who have accompanied the governor on his western expedition.

Go to Ball Game Today.

The entire party will go to Wrigley field this afternoon to see the third game in the world series between the New York Yankees and the Cubs, and the governor will be rooting for the team with the most Democrats on it. There was a rumor aboard the train that Jimmy Roosevelt might be cheering for the Cubs, for he is an adopted son of Boston, and should not necessarily hold allegiance for New York.

After the game Gov. Roosevelt will return to the Congress hotel and at 6 o'clock he will be the guest of honor and speaker at a dinner to be given by the Democratic organization and to be attended by 2,000 guests. Mayor Cermak will act as chairman of the banquet and Judge Henry Horner, candidate for governor, will introduce Gov. Roosevelt.

W-G-N to Broadcast Speech.

The Roosevelt speech is to be broadcast over W-G-N. Loud speakers were placed in Grant park yesterday to make it possible for thousands to hear the governor's address there.

Others on tonight's program will be Senator Courtney, William H. Dieterich, candidate for United States senator; Melvin A. Traylor, who was supported by Illinois' delegates for President; Scott Lucas, and Bruce A. Campbell, downstate manager.

Gov. Roosevelt is to leave Chicago at 11:45 tonight for Detroit, his last stop before he returns to Albany to attend the state Democratic convention, which opens next Monday, and which he hopes will nominate for governor his stanch friend, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

CHICAGO'S POLICE FORCE IS FACING A BIG TASK TODAY

Heavy demands have been made on the city's police department for today. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's visit, the world series ball game, the registration for the November election, and the Jewish holiday all are crowded into today and tonight. Commissioner Allman, before going out of town for a short visit yesterday, said if he had twice as many men the force still would be inadequate for all needs today.

Maj. John Bauder, drillmaster of the department, to whom the commissioner left the task of assigning the policemen, was informed that 800 policemen would be needed to guard registration places.

Jewish policemen are allowed to be off duty today by order of the city council because it is the Jewish New Year.

Park Fountain Display to Honor Gov. Roosevelt

The Buckingham fountain in Grant park will be operated again tonight in honor of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's visit to the city, it was announced yesterday by south park officials. The display was to have closed for the season last night.

Police Supervisor's Auto Stolen During Loop Parade

Last night's big Roosevelt demonstration cost Supervising Captain John P. Horan his automobile. The captain parked his car in Clinton street, near Jackson boulevard, during the celebration while he journeyed into the loop, which is under his police jurisdiction. At 1 o'clock this morning he found his car, a sedan, was stolen.

Cashier, Alone in Oswego Bank, Robbed of $1,500

Three gunmen yesterday took $1,500 from the Oswego State bank, in Oswego, six miles southeast of Aurora, after forcing the cashier, George D. Ament, to lie on the floor.

OREGON WAVERS IN ITS LOYALTY TO REPUBLICANS

Blame Repeal Issue and Hard Times.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Most conservative of all the far western states, Oregon, the electoral vote of which has never gone to a Democratic candidate for President except in 1912 when the Republicans were split, is wavering in its allegiance this year. As of today it is placed in the doubtful list by the Republican leaders themselves.

Unemployment in the sawmills of western Oregon, 30,000 out of work in Portland alone, and 25 cent wheat in the farming region east of the mountains combine to produce a state of discontent that is reacting potently against the party in power at Washington. It is the same story here as elsewhere; desperate people grasping at straws to change their luck, ready to try Roosevelt on the theory that "he might be better and couldn't be worse than Hoover."

G. O. P. Can't Raise Funds.

The Republican leaders, unable to raise funds from the usual contributors and so far unaided by the national committee, are also grasping at straws. A 15 cent rise in the price of wheat would make the state safe for Hoover, they are saying. Even the consummation of the proposed sale of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to China on credit supplied by the R. F. C. would help tremendously, inasmuch as it would just about absorb the carry-over of the crop in Washington and Oregon.

Another ray of hope piercing the Republican gloom is the resumption of cutting by some sawmills, which is being attributed to the duty on lumber imposed by the revenue act. Two furniture factories also have resumed operations. The Republicans are exhorting the workers in these industries to reflect that they will find a change of parties worse instead of better when the Democrats proceed to reduce the tariff on lumber.

Apples Help Hoover.

About the only agricultural region in which Hoover stock hasn't suffered a serious decline is the Hood River Valley, which has produced a good crop of apples selling at good prices.

In the wheat country Republican disaffection is rampant. Leaders of the National Grange, which is particularly strong in this state, are exhibiting a pronounced drift to Roosevelt in normally Republican agricultural counties. The announcement of the administration that payment of only 25 per cent of the seed and feed loans will be exacted of the farmers this fall will tend to take the edge off the prevalent agrarian discontent, in the opinion of some farm organization leaders.

Oregon is the leading hop growing state of the Union, and the hop growers, normally Republican, have gone Democratic pell-mell. They are for outright repeal of prohibition and immediate modification of the Volstead act to permit brewing of beer, and they are for the party promising these steps, which would boom the hop industry.

They are going to plump for Roosevelt. In the meantime they are holding their hops for what they hope will be scarcity prices when the breweries reopen.

Incidentally, it was the wetness of the hop growers that accounted in part for the defeat in the primary of the dry Representative Willis C. Hawley, co-author of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act.

There are other indications that Oregon has turned against prohibition. The primaries were held in May, before the repeal movement developed in the Democratic party. In the contest for the Democratic nomination for senator Walter Gleason, who took his stand at that time for outright appeal, decisively defeated Marshall N. Dana, who ran as a dry approving a referendum on the issue.

In the Republican primary the two leading candidates for the nomination for senator were wet. Senator Frederick Steiwer, who espoused a solution of the problem resembling the Anderson plan, defeated former Senator Robert Stanfield, who was a shade wetter, while a dry third candidate got nowhere. Steiwer is generally accounted stronger than Hoover and is expected to defeat Gleason unless Roosevelt should sweep the state and carry the Democrat ticket with him.

Concede Victory to Repealist.

In the Portland congressional district the Republicans entertain no hopes of defeating Maj. Gen. Charles H. Martin, Democrat, who was elected to the present house as an outright repealist, anticipating his party's stand by two years. Incidentally Representative Martin is the fourth major general to be elected to congress. The others were Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, and Daniel E. Sickles.

Harvey G. Starkweather, Democratic repealist, is not unlikely to be returned from the Hawley district by reason of Republican defections due to bitterness engendered by the defeat of Hawley for renomination.

In rural eastern Oregon, which is politically dry, Representative Robert R. Butler, Republican, probably will defeat his Democratic rival. The state will vote on a proposal to repeal the state prohibition enforcement act among a multitude of initiated measures. Its fate is problematical.

1928 Majority Disappearing.

Hoover carried Oregon four years ago by 96,000, while in 1924 Coolidge had only 6,500 more than Davis and La Follette combined. Except for such conservative Democrats as may be repelled by Roosevelt the same elements of the electorate that supported Davis and La Follette are now for the New York governor in addition to an enormous number of Republicans who supported Coolidge.

Republican registration this year is 3½ per cent, Democratic registration 18 per cent greater than in 1930. Out of 36 counties the Republicans have lost ground in 15, the Democrats in only three.

Oregon has gone hell bent for public ownership and operation of hydro-electric utilities. It is seeking to induce the federal government to construct a series of dams in the Columbia river, the Grand Coulee project costing $400,000,000 or more. It has visions of making this a great industrial center with white coal. Mr. Hoover has indorsed the project, and so has Gov. Roosevelt.

Two years ago the water power issue split both parties and Julius L. Meier, a public ownership advocate, was elected governor as an independent, polling more votes that the Republican and Democrat candidates combined.

Whether Gov. Roosevelt's pronouncements on the power issue won him any appreciable support in Oregon is uncertain.

HAWAII GOES TO POLLS IN PRIMARY TODAY; MASSIE CASE AN ISSUE

HONOLULU, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Citizens of Hawaii will vote tomorrow in the territorial primary after a campaign in which Hawaiian home rule shared attention with the criminal attack upon Mrs. Thomas H. Massie a year ago and the conviction of her husband and three others for the slaying one of her alleged attackers. The Massie cases were resurrected in debat over the efficacy of governmental reforms they brought.

Lincoln L. McCandless, Democratic candidate for delegate to congress, attacked Victor S. K. Houston, Republican candidate for reelection, for recommending to Gov. Lawrence M. Judd that he pardon Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, and the two sailors convicted with them of slaying Joseph Kahahawai. The governor commuted their sentences of ten years' imprisonment to detention of one hour.

In reply to McCandless Princess David Kawananakoa, Republican national committeewoman, made public a statement of Joseph Kahahawai Sr., father of the slain man, supporting Houston for return to congress.

CURTIS PREDICTS NEW PROSPERITY, PRAISES HOOVER

Ponca City, Okla., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Vice President Charles Curtis said tonight that measures undertaken by the Hoover administration have placed America in a position whence the nation would be able to start on a new and lasting period of prosperity.

"After every great war and after periods of wild speculation, hard times have followed," he declared. "Each time the nation has emerged and become more powerful."

Mr. Curtis referred to 1837 "when labor was out of employment, half the factories in the east were closed, and it was said 5,000 men attacked the city hall in Boston."

The vice president cited 1857 "when mobs paraded the streets of New York demanding bread and the subtreasury was guarded by federal troops," 1893 when Coxey's army marched to Washington, 1914 when he said the Vreeland-Aldrich act was used to prevent a panic, and 1919 when "industrial production was at its bottom because of depression."

Mr. Curtis said President Hoover at the outset of the present trouble took every step within the governmental scope of power.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 30.—The new Italian liner Rex is still held up here because of the breakdown of a turbo-generator. It is expected that repair work will be completed in time to resume the ship's maiden voyage to New York tomorrow. Spare parts are being rushed from Genoa by air.

MAKER ENJOINS DISTRIBUTION OF HOOVER FILM

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—"The Master of Emergencies," a four reel sound film based on a story by Will Irwin and designed to make votes for Herbert Hoover, went under judicial lock and key today when Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick temporarily enjoined the Republican national committee from distributing it further.

The injunction was won by Lowell H. Brown, maker of the film, on the ground that the committee had violated its contract with him. The film shows the President in various poses and has been sold to a number of Republican organizations throughout the country.

Roosevelt Secretary, Seriously Ill, En Route Here

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Robert Fitzmaurice, executive secretary for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was taken from a hospital here tonight and placed aboard a train for Chicago, where the Roosevelt party will meet him and arrange for his return to Albany. Fitzmaurice was taken to the hospital here Thursday suffering from a foot infection. Physicians said removal of the foot might be necessary.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE COVENANT WITH THE OPPRESSED.

Gov. Roosevelt in Sioux City, Ia., pledged himself to a covenant with the taxpayers which, he said, transcends every other political interest in real importance to the country. He did not say where he would attack the bureaucracy, but he described its demerits, faults and fiscal enormities. The other day Senator Smoot, on the Republican side of the fence, said to the voters he hopes will reëlect him that a billion dollars should and would be cut from the federal budget.

The covenant with the taxpayers, who trust that it will be regarded as no less sacred than one, has been getting ahead. Many politicians came first to defend the expenditures of government, remained to apologize and are now committed to attack. This is the case because citizens who have taken their politics with their breakfast coffee, who are the forgotten men in truth, have grouped themselves behind the demand that public expenditures come down to earth.

Political promises go in divers directions to evaporate in the air. The bloom is on them in late October and the frost in late November. For the most part the cornfields are as fruitful in winter as political pledges are in March which blossomed in the fall. Winter killed is their usual fate, and one reason is that the promise had no possible chance of being seed for the performance. Utopia is a vivid mirage in the campaign. But a covenant for the reduction of bureaucratic costs, of prodigality in public affairs and of the institution of government can be executed. The candidates who pledged themselves before election can act upon their pledges if they are elected. If they run away then it is from a thing within their power to do. Their failure will not be the cancellation of a bond impossible of satisfaction, but of promises which require only good faith to be made good.

The candidate who promises a different social order is pledging his faith and credit to the moon. He'll be in luck if the old order shows him one of its better sides when and if he is charged with any responsibility for what betides. Forms of government pledged in advance to bring down their expenditures within the means of the people who support them are dealing with affairs over which their administrators have complete control. All is within their own houses.

Gov. Roosevelt spoke to the farmers of the west when he spoke of the covenant. The occasion is open to the comment that the farmer's tax problem is one rather close to his own ability to handle it. Washington gets very little of his money. The farmer who pays a federal income tax is not the farmer of political concern. The farmer's tax troubles are within his own state and they are not wholly explained by the state tax levy. The matter is even closer home. It is in his county and township.

The recovery from the paralysis of government drain of money, diverted from individual needs to extravagances of interference in the country's economy, is not something to be expected of disembodied spirits. It will come from officeholders who keep their word and from citizens who know what is taking their money and intend to stop it.

AN INTERNATIONAL NUISANCE.

The "flying family" have now reached Aberdeen, Scotland, by steamer from Greenland and posed for a photograph which, we confess, we view without enthusiasm. The mother seated in an arm chair embracing her two small daughters and the father posing at the mantelpiece represent parental responsibility at about the lowest level. The adult Hutchinsons have the right to hazard their own lives, but to take two little children with them on an enterprise known to be dangerous in the extreme indicates a callousness or lack of moral responsibility which condemns them with all decent people. The whole project was obviously a publicity stunt showing no regard for anything but their own purposes, whatever those were. They not only risked the lives of their children but also those of persons upon whom they had no claim who might have been called upon to attempt their rescue in more perilous conditions than they were lucky enough to encounter. Life in the arctic is hazardous, supplies have to be carefully conserved, yet Hutchinson and his party, without invitation or even permission, thrust themselves into a situation, created without excuse, which nearly cost all their lives and certainly was a cause of uncalled for risk and effort by others. The exploit, far from deserving praise, was the product of a stupid and reckless egotism, conspicuously lacking in proper parental feeling or any regard for the rights of others. It was a public nuisance, and we hope the people abroad who are compelled to receive the individuals responsible for it will let them know their condemnation.

A PROFIT AND WHAT IT COST.

The audited accounts of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, an agency of the farm board, show that it made a net profit of $1,297,000 in the year ending May 31, 1932. A taxpayer reading that might be encouraged to think that the stories of farm board losses had been greatly exaggerated. He might even suspect that the farm board had not run through the half billion dollar fund which congress voted for the experiment in stabilization.

Unfortunately, there has been no exaggeration of the profligacy of the farm board. The profit credited to the Farmers' National is the profit which was made by a brokerage agency operating with taxpayers' money in the speculative venture euphemistically called stabilization. The losses, running into hundreds of millions, are charged to the taxpayers. The profits, amounting to a few million, are credited to the firm which handled the trades. In order to achieve that small profit the taxpayers had first to lose the funds ventured in stabilization. The government as speculator lost; the government as broker picked the bones for a profit.

Not the least extraordinary item in the accounting is the one which shows that the paid-in capital of the Farmers' National is less than $800,000, while the profits, after all expenses were paid, amounted to 150 per cent of this sum. How much, if any, of the original capital of this so-called coöperative agency was provided by the government does not appear. How much of the taxpayers' money was lost in the speculations handled by the Farmers' National also does not appear. These are matters which are likely to remain secret unless congress calls for the books and sets competent accountants at work to discover their real meaning.

It is to be hoped that congress will do so. A half billion dollars has been spent by the taxpayers of this country in learning that it is impossible to rig the commodity markets without tremendous losses. Having spent that much money on education, the taxpayers are entitled to obtain the maximum of information for their guidance in future. The whole farm board experiment, from first to last, should be charted as clearly as it can be. As a warning of what even the government, with its enormous financial resources, cannot do, the experiment has some salvage value.

ENEMIES OF SOCIETY.

The attempt on the life of Judge Webster Thayer and his family is a reminder to the American people that the persistent and fundamental influence in the Sacco-Vanzetti and Mooney propaganda is that of enemies of society. The world-wide agitation was carried on by this element with the aid or countenance of the radical minded intelligentsia, the result being the creation of a legend of martyrdom which obscures the real character of the martyrs, their motives, interests, and affiliations, and the main objective of the agitation on their behalf.

"Direct action" or organized violence to overthrow an order based on free discussion and assent is expressed in the crimes of all these martyrs, the negation of a civilized society, whose laws and institutions are expected to protect the individual who otherwise scorns them and conspires to subvert and destroy them. The attempt to murder Judge Thayer and his family illuminates the legend of martyrdom created to conceal the underlying purpose of the agitation for the release of Mooney and the discrediting of the Sacco-Vanzetti trial.

That individuals not in sympathy with this purpose were drawn into the movement should not obscure the fact that it was initiated and is kept going by enemies of civilized society.

THE NEW HOUSING PROJECTS.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Details of five new housing projects to cost close to $75,000,000 have just been announced for New York. One of these is a plan sponsored by August Heckscher for the development of the city-owned Chrystie-Forsyth site in Manhattan. Another is for a similar project covering twenty blocks on the east side. Both of these big schemes would provide model apartments at low rentals in what was formerly a slum area.

Two of the five projects are a $7,000,000 development in Queens and a $6,000,000 project in the Bronx. Brooklyn trails along with a single million dollar proposal for rebuilding an area in Ridgewood. All of these plans have been submitted to the state housing board and it is proposed to seek aid from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in financing them. This is in keeping with the law making available sums for slum clearance and for financing moderate priced housing, which is part of the federal government's program for stimulating employment.

Putting men to work and providing decent housing for people of moderate means are laudatory purposes and there is little disposition to criticize any of these projects. It should be apparent, however, that there is a vast difference between projects that will replace unfit dwelling in congested areas and the new housing in the suburbs.

The two Manhattan projects, as well as the small one proposed for Brooklyn, are well within the "slum clearance" definition. Those for the Bronx and Queens are not. It would be well for the state housing board to make clear its policy on this matter. Improved housing is needed, not only in congested sections but elsewhere. Yet merely to build new dwellings without wiping out those unfit for use will not carry out the real purposes of the board.

However, it is gratifying to know that the long discussed housing movement is getting under way. Nothing so far proposed promises to do more to stimulate activity than the revival of building. Certain kinds of building have been overdone, but this does not apply to small homes and multiple dwellings for people with small incomes. It would not be possible to overdo building of that kind.

In New York City the building of subways and the use of the automobile have spread population over a large area, leaving many sections in the very heart of the city to deteriorate. Ways must be found to rebuild these old sections. Speculative builders will not undertake this under existing conditions for the simple reason that small projects would not pay. The only way to make such developments profitable is by taking in a sufficient area to control the immediate environment of new construction. This calls for large outlays of capital, which is difficult to secure.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED from New York yesterday that the Rockefellers were down to their last hundred and fifty million. We're sorry; they'd spent a lot of money for philanthropic work. But as we counted over the money we had in our little wallet, two dollars and sixty-five cents, a street car transfer, and a Canadian dime, and thought of the Rockefellers being down to their last hundred and fifty million, we could not suppress a certain feeling of satisfaction that at last the time has come when we're all in the same boat.

Moonlight on a silver sail
And camp smoke, blown and dim,
And hoofbeats down a lonely trail
Were memories to him.
Of these he made his fragile songs
And haunting melodies—

And who had need of these?

Ah, well—the vision passes—
An old dream drifts away;
Dark shadows on Parnassus
Fall darker, day and day;
The golden pipes are muted,
The sad and silver runes
Are trembled into silence now—
He sings the price of prunes!

And not many years ago the United States fought a war to free Cuba, wounded and bleeding, from the grasp of cruel Spain. "Cuba Libre" was the cry. A Deer Has Four (4) Legs.
SEE THEM!
COUNT THEM!

But it won't do any good. The hunter who shoots his guide will say he read the sign, but as he had never seen a deer he didn't know whether they had four legs or two and, anyhow, he didn't have time to count.

ADD MUSICAL CHAIRS.

He is one of the town's younger concert violinists, and during a formal program puts it all in his bowing. But when it's a private party among friends he enjoys exhibiting at least two specialties. One is the well known Dvorak "Humoreske." For this he uses a fiddle and a chair. You and everybody know how the dancing melody goes. He starts playing it: "Dum, te dum, te dumty dum—" and, violin and all, jumps over the chair. Without a break in the rhythm he continues: "Te DUM te DUM, te DUMPTY dum——"

His encore number is I forget which "Caprice" of Kreisler's. But this time he plays it lying flat on the floor on his back.

But will he put on his act in public? Never. Audiences, he thinks, can feel everything that's in the music anyway, and don't need the physical demonstration.

I see the Chicago Symphony is to play "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" at its first concert this month. RIO.

OFFENSIVE DRINKING WATER.

WHEN the old well was the source of water supply there was rarely any complaint of the taste or odor. Either the water had none or else the users learned to like the new flavors. They said the water from their well was sweet. At long intervals the well cleaner was sent for, but this was because it was known that wells should be cleaned at intervals, and not because of the flavor of the water.

Then came public water supplies and many people became resentful. They preferred the home supply; they resented being forced, and they did not like the taste of the town water.

As population became more dense the public water supplies were found to be seeding the community with typhoid. Resentment again arose. To end this danger chlorinating the public water supply became the custom. When this became known there was a mild glow of resentment which was easily fanned into a flame whenever any odor or taste was detected. People blamed all objectionable water tastes on chlorine.

Within the last five years much information has been gained about these tastes and odors, including their sources, and also methods of preventing and removing them. We know that chlorine may be the primary source of a disagreeable taste in a water, it may be a secondary cause increasing the objectionable quality of flavor due to another cause, or it may be entirely free from blame.

Mr. J. R. Baylis, who knows the subject as well as any one, is of the opinion that more than half the tastes of water are due to natural causes, principally growth of algae and other micro-organisms. Such growth can occur in any good spring or well water which is reasonably pure and gets some sunlight and carbonic acid. Therefore, when a water develops a flavor the chance is more than even that neither industrial waste nor chlorine is responsible.

Next in importance he ranks industrial wastes. He lists sixteen industrial processes, beginning with by-product of coke ovens, that make large quantities of liquid wastes capable of giving the commonly designated chlorine or fishy taste. In some instances it seems to be necessary for these enterprises to put their untreated wastes into lakes and streams. White chlorine used for making water safe may be a direct cause of odors, it is ranked far below the other two groups.

We are especially interested in the new methods of flavor prevention and removal. The best of these, for the average case, is known as activated carbon. Activated carbon is ordinary charcoal treated by heat in a way that increases fifty or more times its efficiency in removing taste and odor.

Second he ranks compounds of ammonia and chlorine, going by the name chloramine, and related names. There are about six other good methods, each suited to certain circumstances.

Since the causes vary, as do the flavors, it is wise for a city that plans to install a method to have some investigations made and to adopt the method that best solves its problem. If it is found that the odor in a given case is due to an industrial waste, a city has the right to ask the industry at fault to purify its waste or to pay the cost of purification by means of an increased charge for water. If the taste is due to a natural cause the people should bear the cost of treatment.

ECLIPSE IN POOL.

H. B. B. writes: I read your article on the eclipse and the eyes, and I have seen no mention of the method I used and which proved delightfully pleasant for the eyes. I was driving across the country on the day of the eclipse and found two pairs of dark eyeglasses not sufficient to allow observation of the phenomenon. However, the country just west of Des Moines had had hard showers in the night and wayside puddles gave me the needed opportunity, with their clear and soft reflection. Stops were made at frequent intervals and the eclipse comfortably enjoyed.

REPLY.

Some who were not lucky enough to be in a puddly country used mirrors. The mirror method was nearer the border line of danger than the puddle method. The papers are reporting cases of troublesome eye injuries caused by trying to see the eclipse with the unprotected eye.

GALL BLADDER.

1. Is it possible to drain the gall bladder with a tube similar to what is being used by doctors at the present time?
2. Is the theory of this technique correct?

REPLY.

1. Yes, within limits.
2. Same answer.

So-called medical drainage of the gall bladder, as distinguished from surgical drainage, has a place in medicine. It is an inconvenient, troublesome procedure.

NO EXAMINATION SCHEDULED.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—I desire to take the examination for both librarian and stenographer. I would appreciate having my name placed on the list for those taking the forthcoming examinations. G. E. E.

At this writing no examinations are scheduled for the positions of junior library clerk and assistant and junior stenographer. We have, however, placed the name of your correspondent on our mailing list for notification of the next examinations called for these positions. JAMES S. ATTACK ON WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died a year ago in Indiana and left an insurance policy of $1,000 which my sister and brother-in-law collected. This policy was in my name and three months before my father's death they had it changed to their name. 1. Is there any way we can collect that? At the time the policy was changed my father wasn't in his right state of mind. 2. Can we have the will read? His will was never read and I would like to know what steps to take to have this done. Property was left and is now rented. 3. Can an administrator of a will reduce rent on property after the death of the owner without the consent of the daughters or children of said owner? J. L. P.

1. If you can prove the lack of mental capacity your chances would be good enough to warrant placing your claim in the hands of an attorney.
2. The statute makes no provision for a formal reading of the will, but the person in possession of the will should file it in court and you can examine it in the court files.
3. The powers of the executor depend on the wording of the will.

INVALID IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—While in another state I made a verbal agreement with a doctor to give me treatments over a period of at least two years for $200. I was under his care only eight months and received twenty-one treatments when I left the state. I have paid $140 and now, as I am no longer under his care, I feel that said amount should pay in full for services rendered, but he refuses to make any adjustment. Can he collect the balance of $60 he claims is due? I have to continue my treatments and can have the best specialists here treat me for $5 per treatment. D. J.

Under Illinois law such an oral agreement which is not to be fully performed within a year is invalid under the statute of frauds, hence if the law of the other state in question was similar to Illinois law you are under no legal obligation to pay the balance that the doctor demands.

NOT A COMMON CARRIER.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A young person driving to work each day contemplates taking along three or four others who will pay an amount equal to car fare for the privilege. 1. Will this make the driver a common carrier in the legal sense? Also, in order to avoid a possible claim for damages in case of an accident, can an agreement be made in advance that will nullify any such claim? 3. Can avoidance of personal liability be avoided by having personal liability insurance? N. G. W.

1. Not unless he undertakes to serve the general public.
2. The agreement might have some effect, but would not be an absolute protection.
3. In substance, yes.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 1, 1916.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—In a vigorous denunciation of the Republican party, President Wilson told a delegation of young Democrats from New York that "the certain prospect" of Republican success in November is that "we shall be drawn in one form or another into the embroilments of European war," and that "the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage." The President made his first out and out political speech of the campaign from the porch of Shadow Lawn.

LONDON.—Troops of the central powers, under the command of Gen. von Falkenhayn, former chief of the German general staff, have gained a decisive victory over the Rumanian invaders of central Transylvania. The Rumanians were crushed between two forces in a battle which raged for three days. After suffering heavy losses the invaders are reported fleeing in disorder into the mountains. The defeat of the Rumanians was brought about by a strategic move virtually impossible on the western battle front. Gen. von Falkenhayn divided his forces of Germans and Austro-Hungarians. While one body engaged the invaders around Hermannstadt the other encircled the Rumanians and seized Rothenthurm pass in the mountains, fifteen miles southeast of Hermannstadt, and one of the first points gained by the Rumanians in their advance. Both forces then pressed in upon the Rumanians composed of sections of the First Rumanian army.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—Theodore Roosevelt, here in the first of his new series of "skin 'em alive" speeches, pictured President Wilson as a coward and a man whose word is no good. He termed him "a man of furtive and shifting political maneuvers," "one of craven surrender to whichever side has the superiority in brute force," and directly charged that the President was "cowed by the big labor leaders," as he was by Mexico and Germany. He charged the President with having "debauched the civil service for congressional votes on behalf of some measures which he had solemnly promised to oppose," and said it was under such circumstances "only" that the President turned his words into deeds.

LONDON.—After five days of furious battling, during which the Anglo-French armies scored some of the greatest gains of their whole offensive, there was a lull in the infantry fighting on the Somme front, due to the inclement weather.

CHICAGO.—The society columns of THE TRIBUNE this morning carry the announcement of John T. McCutcheon's engagement to Miss Evelyn Shaw, daughter of Howard Shaw, of Ragsdale, Lake Forest. The announcement gives added interest to Mr. McCutcheon's recent purchase of Salt Cay, an island of the Bahamas, also called Treasure Island, and it is said to be Mr. McCutcheon's intention to make his first visit to the island on his honeymoon journey. Miss Shaw is widely known in north side and Lake Forest society—a Bryn Mawr college graduate and of a studious disposition. Her father is a well known architect. The Shaws' city residence is at 1130 Lake Shore drive. Mr. McCutcheon said the wedding would take place some time this winter—probably after Christmas.

CHICAGO.—George M. Pullman's gift to the town that bears his name—the George M. Pullman Free School of Manual Training—was dedicated in the presence of a throng in which were counted many leaders in Chicago's business and educational life. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, delivered the dedicatory address. More than $3,000,000 has been spent in the construction of the buildings and the adornment of the grounds. Col. Frank O. Lowden, president of the board of directors and son-in-law of Mr. Pullman, spoke in behalf of the directors.

NIGHT SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—It seems that your editorial writers are required to know nothing about the subjects upon which they write. "The Education of a Woman Aged 40" was a splendid example of this policy.

Do you know that 95 per cent of the students attending evening schools are between the ages of 16 and 30? Do you know why they are attending? The reason is this: Taxes are too high, rents are too high, gas, electric, and telephone bills are too high, the cost of living in general is too high, and wages are too low. The family bread winner being unable to earn enough to pay all the bills is forced to take his children out of school before they are able to get what today we call a common school education—viz., the completion of grade school and high school. I will admit that the constitution of the state of Illinois implies that a citizen need complete only the grade school, although it says, "a good common school education," which may be construed to include high school. Notwithstanding, we must remember that the present constitution was written in 1879 and we are living in 1932. I hope your editorial writer is aware of that. Under our present standards every one must have at least a high school education. Our state laws, which are much more up to date than our constitution, require a child to remain in school until he is 16, unless he takes continuation work. At 16 the average child has had two years of high school work.

The free adult evening schools are distinctly a Chicago product. Chicago opened the first evening school in the country about fifteen years ago. Its purpose was to Americanize immigrants who wish to become citizens. Gradually these schools enlarged their scope by adding high school subjects and giving grade school diplomas. In 1923 Englewood and Schurz became standard evening high schools, awarding diplomas upon completion of their regular courses. The forty or fifty other evening schools were called "opportunity schools" giving only grade school subjects. In 1925 the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges recognized the high quality of work being given at Englewood and Schurz and allowed graduates of these schools to enter any college belonging to the association without entrance examination.

Today the opportunity schools with their Americanization programs are closed. Only six standard evening high schools remain. These have already enrolled more than 25,000 students. Let us stop for a moment and ponder as to the cost to the local government if these were 25,000 criminals instead of students. We must also consider that idleness and lack of education are the father and mother of crime. How many of these 25,000 people would be tempted to commit criminal acts if it were not for the fact that they can go to evening high school and work for a diploma? I might add that 111 students received diplomas at the graduation exercises of the Englewood Evening High school alone. Think how much money the city and county saves by graduating these young people from a school instead of from a penitentiary or the county jail. Does not true economy lie in educating the student rather than punishing the criminal?

Another point that deserves mention is the fact that nothing is a more powerful weapon against communism than education. Reds wouldn't get very far with evening school students because they are more grateful for the opportunities afforded them. Mind you, they don't feel wronged because our present economic system denied them a complete education in the daytime. They are thankful because they can get it in the evening.

Chairman executive council, Englewood Evening High School Alumni Association.

A REPUBLICAN MEETING.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 25.—I journeyed to Mackinaw Dells a few days ago to attend the Republican meeting and to hear what Secretary Hyde might have to say about the farm problem. Being a farmer and eager to hear his message and get his views regarding this great question I am forced to state it was a great disappointment to my family to witness what was to all of us a most disgusting spectacle. First we saw Len Small in all his glory surrounded by his old gang, including many of the old guard which ruled Chicago during the golden days of a discredited former mayor; Senator Glenn, fresh from his river trip in the good ship Cape Girardeau; Sterling, who has fed at the public crib for many, many years and who has not yet been forced to pay back into the state treasury certain money which rightfully belongs to the state and the taxpayers.

After witnessing the above display my family and I [eight votes] have concluded to vote the straight Democratic ticket, which no one in the family has done heretofore. JAMES B. NEWMAN.

AN UNEMPLOYED TENANT.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Several times I have read letters in this column which were from landlords who are rightfully protesting against the most unfair deal they receive from unemployed charity cases and from the charities themselves. I am awfully sorry for these landlords, but what are we poor desperate unemployed going to do? We also owe our landlord rent, and when I mentioned the fact to the relief worker I was told we would get help only when we were evicted by the landlord. I asked if there was no other way, as I hated to do this, for our landlord has been patient with us. But I was told this was the only way.

What a shame! I told our landlord about it. He offered to pay our moving expenses if we moved without notice service. We moved into a smaller flat. Our friends moved us free, so we used our landlord's donation of $10 as part payment on our new $20 flat. The first month we get free while paying for the second. After that I don't know. F.

TARANTULA'S FOOD.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 28.—I imagine the writer of Sept. 25 has in his possession a tarantula of the large Aname henzli species, which is the most northern distribution of all so-called American tarantulas. These spiders do not eat bananas, but will feed upon living insects and all sorts of small animals. They will thrive upon living cockroaches while they are in captivity. I might add that it has a bite which is painful but not dangerous, and never fatal, so far as actual records go.

POPE DENOUNCES MEXICO; ACCUSES HER OF "PERFIDY"

Likens Religious Laws to Those of Russia.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 30.—Pope Pius XI. today issued a 4,000 word encyclical letter to Catholic bishops in which he accused the Mexican government of perfidy in failing to fulfill the conditions of the modus vivendi signed three years ago, of intensifying the religious persecution of priests, and of fomenting hostility toward the holy see.

The encyclical inveighs against the Mexican government's refusal to allow a papal nuncio to reside in Mexico or seek a settlement of the present religious difficulties through diplomatic relations. Both in method and intention, Mexico is following the Russian example of persecuting the church, the encyclical says.

Deplores Limit on Priests.

The pontiff deplores article 130 of the Mexican constitution, which gives each Mexican state the right to determine the number of priests who are to be licensed to practice, and declares that the number is so low as to be ridiculous.

The pope says that the Mexican bishops were justified in suspending their religious practice in protest against this. Later, when the Mexican government promised to mitigate the practical application of this law, Pope Pius says, the holy see felt justified in resuming religious exercises, as "incalculable damage would be inflicted upon the faithful by a too prolonged suspension of religious exercises in their churches."

But, the pontiff declares, the Mexican authorities failed to adhere to their promise. Instead, he says, the government limited priests in some states such as Vera Cruz to one for each 100,000 persons. The encyclical also states that the Mexican government refused to allow the bishops to return, failed to restore church property, and gave its support to a press campaign against the Catholic church.

Likens Situation to Russia.

After summing up a long series of alleged persecutions, the pope said:

"We wanted to sum up briefly the principal points on the grave situation of the church in Mexico so all those who love order and the peace of peoples, seeing that such unheard of persecution, especially in some states, is not much different from that which burst upon the uphappy regions of Russia, may draw from this evil the coincidence of the intentions of the new inspirations to dam up the flood, overthrowing every social order."

The encyclical exhorts the bishops, the clergy and the faithful to renewed resistance "against the iniquitous laws," at the same time counseling them to adhere to the laws even if they are bad, and to keep up the practice of religious exercises even under limited conditions, accepting a lesser evil to prevent a greater one.

BASIS OF AGREEMENT.

The basis of the religious agreement between the Catholic church and the Mexican government was announced June 22, 1929. Under it the Mexican government allowed the Catholic hierarchy to designate those priests who were to register in compliance with Mexican laws.

The agreement also permitted religious instruction within the churches, while not permitted in the schools. The right was reserved to Mexican Catholic prelates to apply for modification of the constitution at any time in the future, which is the same as granted all Mexican citizens.

Mexico Hasn't Heard About It.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 30.—The pope's encyclical criticizing the Mexican religious laws has not been made public here. Official sources apparently are without information on it. The papal delegate to Mexico, Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, and the archbishop of Mexico, Msgr. Pascual Diaz, said they had no official knowledge of the encyclical.

JAIL EMPLOYES GET FOOD SUPPLY FROM SHERIFF

Food was distributed yesterday by Sheriff William D. Meyering to 134 county jail employes, who are owed four and one-half months' salary. The food was purchased with money taken from the Sheriff's Office Welfare association fund, gathered by sale of tickets to the annual sheriff's picnic. Bacon, flour, and other food will be distributed each Tuesday and Friday until the jail employes are paid, the sheriff said, and the employes will reimburse the fund on the first pay day. The monthly salary of the jail employes averages $120.

CONGRESSMAN SEES HOPE OF CUTTING U. S. COSTS $750,000,000

More recruits to its campaign to reduce the cost of the national government and thereby lower taxes were announced yesterday by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures. One was Congressman Burton L. French of Idaho.

Answering the questionnaire sent out by George W. Rossetter, chairman of the national organization, Mr. French said:

"I believe that federal expenditures can be reduced by $750,000,000 annually. As a member of the appropriations committee of the house of representatives, I am looking to the reduction of federal expenditures, regardless of any set amount, wherever I may be convinced that they may be reduced."

Other favorable replies were received by Idaho candidates, including John Thomas and James P. Pope, Republican and Democratic candidates respectively for the senatorship. The state chairman of the Idaho committee of the national organization is R. E. Shepherd.

HOOVER DISARM PLAN AGAIN UP TO GENEVA PARLEY

U. S. Would Split Up Armed Forces.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—The Hoover disarmament plan was again brought before the disarmament conference today by Hugh R. Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland, when the special committee on effectives convened.

Although the date when the conference itself will reconvene is far from settled the committee fell doggedly to work on the problem, which is inherently the toughest of all before the parley and is, moreover, tied up with the controversial political issues.

Proposes Two Categories.

Wilson proposed the principle of two categories of armed forces, those for police forces and those for defense purposes, on which basis the Hoover plan will be taken up. The American experts' ideas as to what figures might be allotted to the various powers in these categories are available.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, immediately asked the committee first to prepare the basis of a genuine comparison between the military forces at the disposal of the different states, the idea being to get the Italian Fascist militia and Germany's unofficial armies included as real military strength before getting down to comparisons.

Germany Stands Pat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—"Arthur Henderson's latest proposal for the return of Germany to the disarmament conference cannot be accepted by Germany because the principle of equality is not fully expressed," declared Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath on his return from Geneva today. "I let Premier Herriot know that I was ready to discuss the question with him. He took no action and in the meantime has again rejected direct diplomatic negotiations.

"It is now up to the other powers to make offers to Germany. Germany has nothing fresh to say, but holds firmly to the views already expressed to the powers. The German delegation will not participate in the disarmament conference until full security exists that we will be granted equality and not be subjected to discrimination."

BOMB BELGRADE OFFICERS' CLUB; ONE DEAD, 2 HURT

BELGRADE, Sept. 30.—(AP)—One civilian was killed and Gen. Radivojevic, acting commandant of Belgrade, barely escaped death when a package containing a bomb exploded at the Officers' club near the royal palace today. The bomb shattered the windows in the club and wounded two passersby.

The victim was a messenger to whom a well dressed stranger gave the package, with instructions that it be taken to the Officers' club and held there until the owner called. The messenger delivered the package and was told to wait in the vestibule with it.

In the meantime Gen. Radivojevic arrived for a conference with other officers. When he learned they had not arrived he turned to go. He had hardly stepped outside the door when the bomb exploded, tearing the messenger to pieces and spraying the general with blood.

Find Body of Winnetka Rail Watchman in Lake

The body of James Glennen, 57 years old, 844 Pine street, Winnetka, was found floating in the lake off Elm street, in the suburb, yesterday. He had been a gateman at the Pine street crossing of the North Western railroad in Winnetka for twelve years. Police learned that Glennen recently gave away most of his possessions and that he had been despondent over illness.

CUBAN STUDENTS RIOT AND RAID PUBLIC SCHOOLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 30.—Five hundred rioting university students today raided the public schools of the capital, menaced the teachers with clubs, and drove the pupils into the streets. There was a panic as mothers rescued their children and dashed off in all directions.

The students threatened to bomb the buildings, but reserves of five police stations dispersed the mob with clubs. Schools remained closed, but will reopen tomorrow.

Recall Student's Slaying.

The students were marking the second anniversary of the death of Rafael Trajo, "student martyr," who was killed by police in an anti-government demonstration, resulting in the closing of all educational institutions. That was the beginning of organized student anti-government campaigns which resulted in street riots, property destruction, suspension of constitutional rights, and last year's rebellion.

There were no new developments today in the investigations of the assassination of Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello, president of the senate, and four opposition leaders, but a cabinet crisis was brewing over Secretary of Interior Zubizarreta's order suspending publication of the Heraldo de Cuba yesterday.

The newspaper's suppression was regarded as a direct move against the owner, Secretary of State Orestes Ferrara, and in defiance of President Gerardo Machado, inasmuch as other papers were permitted to publish.

The newspaper resumed publication this morning on the president's order and Managing Editor Luis J. Wangumeit and General Manager Miguel Ordorica, who were arrested yesterday, were released from custody.

The strained feeling between Ferrara and Zubizarreta was evident when Ferrara called on President Machado to protest against the suspension. Zubizarreta refused to heed Machado's order over the telephone to lift the suspension. The secretary of interior was told to obey the order or resign. Machado then instructed the executive secretary, Ramiro Guerra, who is also editor-in-chief of the paper, that the ban was lifted.

Under the caption, "We Are Free Men," the Heraldo today published a strong editorial against Zubizarreta. It was rumored in official circles that Zubizarreta will resign soon.

Forfeits $3,000 on Charge of Having Burglary Tools

James Morton, 1350 South 61st avenue, Cicero, failed to appear yesterday before Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky to answer a charge of possessing burglary tools. His $3,000 bond was forfeited. Morton and two others were arrested for questioning about forgery of Cook county tax anticipation warrants, but they were found to have no connection with the warrants. The burglar tools were found in Morton's car.

BRITISH RENEW REPRESSION OF ENEMIES IN INDIA

Gandhi Put in "Solitary"; Denied Visitors.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 30.—The peace conversations at Yeravda jail, Poona, between Mahatma Gandhi and other Indian leaders have been interrupted by the government, which evidently has decided that stern measures are necessary to deal with the all India congress party and other rebel organizations.

The good result of Gandhi's recent fast in the direction of peace has been undone by Bengal terrorists, whose latest offense was the shooting of Sir Alfred Watson, editor of the Calcutta Statesman, in Chicago gangster style. Sir Alfred was wounded twice, but escaped death. Two of the assassins later committed suicide.

Gandhi Refused Visitors.

Gandhi is now left alone under the mango tree in his prison compound. Visitors and messages are restricted. His wife, Kasturbi, has been sent to the women's prison, as has Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, former president of the congress party, who accompanied Gandhi to the Round Table conference in London last year. His son, Dividas, and his secretary, Pyare Lal, are kept outside the prison gates. The open house hospitality of the last ten days is ended.

Gandhi is recovering health with remarkable alacrity since the moment the British approved the agreement between the high caste Hindus and the untouchables, under which the latter were granted greater representation in the Indian parliament. The holy man is now eating oranges. He had musicians in the jail to perform for him yesterday. He must now return to spinning and to dreams.

Two Opposing Views.

Two opposite views of the Indian situation are seeking expression.

First, the government, largely supported by Europeans and noncongress Indians, believes that repression is necessary and that there can be no more steps toward self-government until terrorism is crushed. They would inaugurate a military régime. The British will not run in the face of danger.

The other viewpoint is that of Gandhi's followers, that terrorism is only curable by the withdrawal of British forces. Discussing terrorism prior to the Watson outrage, Gandhi said:

"Nobody throws away his life without a motive behind it, and it is admitted by all terrorists that they resort to their method in hope of securing the freedom of the country. If that freedom comes surely there will be no terrorism, no attempts on European life. If I had my way to utilize all the ordinary legal methods to put down crime and at the same time to find what terrorists mean by freedom and if their demands are just, it is not likely that there would be straightaway any more terrorism."

Propose to Free Gandhi.

During the legislative debate at Simla [sumer capital] over the ordinance bill, which gives the government extraordinary powers to put down opposition, Indian members described the Watson case as abominable. They said terrorism can only be met by arousing public opinion, but that any blocking of reform would mean more terrorism. The Indians, it was declared, and not the British, should stop it and one way would be "to let Gandhi, the greatest policeman of the British empire, be released and put it down with his help."

A leader of the European group advocated postponement of all constitutional reform in Bengal until terrorism is stopped. They fear it is growing.

Boycott Goes On.

Watson was shot while riding in a car in the afternoon traffic. The shooting followed his activity against an affair at Chittagong last Saturday, when a whist party at the Railway institute was raided by a mob of 20 or more, who killed a European woman and shot half a dozen other persons, including an inspector and port commissioner. A woman member of the mob was killed while escaping. There were many arrests at Chittagong and at Calcutta.

Bombay is quiet except for the arrest of congress party youths who attempt to parade, picket, or stage other demonstrations. The congress method is the use of boycott and noncoöperation and a great mass of Indians are following the peaceful revolution of Gandhi. Europeans, except in Bengal, are untroubled.

The Gandhi campaign against untouchability is progressing. Gandhi has advised the untouchables to observe the laws of cleanliness and to abstain from liquors and drugs.

League Is Formed.

Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, untouchable leader, addressing a Bombay meeting of the depressed classes, advised them not to be satisfied with mere entry into the temples, but to strive after material political interests. "Strive after bread not after God," he said. This seems in opposition to Gandhi, who advises the way of love, sacrifice, and purification rather than material force.

Four thousand caste Hindus have signed a resolution here to take a meal with the depressed and to work for their entry to the temples. Gandhites are working all through India this week to the same end. At public meetings today an all-India Anti-Untouchability league was organized, with headquarters at Delhi, for the purpose of opening all wells, schools, burning ghats, and temples with the view of "removing the virus of untouchability from the Hindu community."

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 30.—The prince of Wales arrived in Sweden tonight from Denmark. He crossed by ferry from Copenhagen to Malmo, where his brother, Prince George, who flew from England, met him. The princes were cheered by great crowds.

About 10 p. m. the princes boarded a train for Stockholm, where they are expected early tomorrow morning. They will go directly to the royal palace as guests of King Gustav for five days. Then they will take up residence at the British legation. The royal visit signals the commencement of "English week" in Sweden.

HUNGARY'S WAR CHIEF HEADS NEW RULE OF EXPERTS

Nonparty Cabinet Is a Blow to Hapsburgs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 30.—Julius Geemboes, one of the few commoners to rise to power in this feudal country and the man who is chiefly responsible for preventing former Emperor Karl from regaining the Hungarian throne, today succeeded in forming a new cabinet.

With an energy which has shocked the gentry who form the ruling class here, Goemboes completed his government within a day's time and is ready to present it to Regent Nicholas Horthy. It is largely a nonparty cabinet, although it is supported by Count Stephen Bethlen's United party which has held a parliamentary majority since the end of Bela Kun's communist régime. Bethlen's party has three cabinet posts.

Goemboes, who has held the post of minister of war ever since he led a handful of student soldiers against Karl eleven years ago, will retain the war portfolio and is expected to maintain a powerful army regardless of peace treaty restrictions.

The new prime minister sacrificed his close friend, William Tomcsanyi, who was slated to become foreign minister, because of popular opposition. Tomcsanyi is charged with having introduced the whipping post as minister of justice ten years ago. Most of the cabinet consists of experts such as Adalbert Imredy, director of the National bank, who is the new finance minister.

Payments to Depositors Total $22,177,010.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson issued a statement yesterday showing the financial condition on July 1 of 335 closed Illinois banks, 104 of which were in Cook county. He listed the aggregate book value of the assets of all the banks at $190,792,197, which is $41,283,653 more than the listed total amount owned to depositors.

The statement gave the amount so far paid to depositors as $22,177,010. It showed payment of bills amounting to $23,494,181, preferred claims paid in the amount of $7,815,081 and offsets allowed of $12,606,632, or a total reduction of liabilities of $66,092,904.

The recapitulation did not show how much cash was on hand in the banks at the time of their closing. It listed, to July 1, cash collections of $62,593,685, and losses of $6,870,927, presumably on conversion of assets.

Payments by Stockholders.

From downstate bank stock holders the sum of $1,104,470 was collected under the double liability law, according to the statement, while in Cook county the amount shown to have been received from stockholders is $195,200.

The report shows that the total expense of liquidation for the 335 banks is $5,366,822, of which receivers' salaries were $831,958; attorneys' fees, $1,041,059, and miscellaneous expenses, $3,503,772.

During the receivership period the aggregate income shown from interests, rents, etc. for the 335 banks was $4,837,721. Mr. Nelson showed that while the 231 downstate banks had a net profit of $39,218 in earnings over costs of liquidation, Cook county's 104 banks' earnings were $568,318 less than the operating costs.

Cash on Hand, $10,420,299.

Cash on hand was listed as $10,420,299, but it was pointed out this is the aggregate amount for the 335 banks, which will be paid out to depositors when a sufficient amount is available for that purpose in any one bank.

The auditor also announced that whereas bank stock holders are liable to the depositors in a sum of approximately $40,000,000, suits to recover that money for the benefit of the depositors are not under control of his office.

Von Gronau Lands at Isle Off Coast of Borneo

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 1.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, in a radio message to the German consul here today, said he and his flying party arrived at Tarakan island, off East Borneo, at 10:10 a. m., and would take off at 7 a. m. tomorrow for Balik Papan, Borneo, about 300 miles south of Tarakan. The flyer hopped from Zamboanga on the island of Mindanao over the Sulu sea. It was a 350 mile flight.

MR. BAUMBAUGH AND WIFE MUST LIVE FAR APART

This Tells Why the Judge Is Rattled.

Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the Felony court yesterday threw up his hands hopelessly after a half hour of questioning the principals in the case of Bertha Edsterand against her estranged husband, Thomas J. Baumbaugh, Chicago's "most arrested husband."

First, Mrs. Edsterand was asked to explain the charge of burglary she had brought against Baumbaugh, bringing him into court for the fifteenth time on as many charges during the last three months.

"He broke into my flat at 3450 South Damen avenue," she said. The address was only one of the 21 addresses where she can be found, according to police. "He took a $1,000 insurance policy, a dress, shoes, and a black coat and broke a window."

Her Coat Is Returned.

She said she later met Miss Rose Mandel, 20 years old, 1323 South Western avenue, who was wearing the coat. Miss Mandel returned it, she said.

"He says you're not his wife," commented the judge. "What about that?"

"I married him in September, 1919, two years after I got a divorce from my first husband," Mrs. Edsterand said. "He says I married him 14 days before I got my divorce."

At this point the judge was informed that Baumbaugh had served two years in Joliet penitentiary for burglary.

"Whose insurance policy was it?" the judge went on, somewhat bewildered.

"His, but I pay the premiums," replied Mrs. Edsterand.

Miss Mandel was then questioned about wearing the coat.

"Early in the morning of July 3," she said, "Baumbaugh and I went to the flat and found Mrs. Edsterand and a fellow named Art there. I was cold and put the coat on."

"And the broken window?" asked the judge.

About the Broken Window.

"I'll explain that, judge," said Baumbaugh. "The day before I was at the house and Bertha made a face at me through the window. I got so mad I put my fist through the pane."

The judge sighed. He picked up Mrs. Edsterand's calling card and glanced at it. It read: "Mme. Bernice, Spiritual Adviser, 3144 Pershing Road. Advice in Love, Family Affairs, and What to Do to Overcome Rivals."

"This case is thrown out of court," the judge said. "Mrs. Edsterand, you move to one part of the city, Baumbaugh, you move to another, and Miss Mandel, you see that you keep away from both of them."

TWENTY SLAIN AS CHILEAN REBELS AND ARMY CLASH

Move to Upset Regime Grows in North.

ANTOFAGASTA, Chile, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Provincial troops sent to Iquique and Arica to align that region with the rebellion against the federal government of Provisional President Bartolome Blanche clashed with loyal troops today and it was reported that 20 soldiers were killed and many wounded.

Information reaching here was that the rebels won the engagement.

The rebel troops, supporters of Gen. Pedro Vignola, whom the federal government attempted to remove as commander of the northern garrison, were assisted by volunteers, 15,000 of whom were recruited in Antofagasta.

Government Names Mediator.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 30.—Desperate over the failure of efforts to end the revolt in Antofagasta, the government tonight appealed to former President Arturo Alessandri to act as mediator between the government and leaders of the rebellion. Alessandri consented. He will go to Antofagasta by plane tomorrow morning.

Alessandri is the radical candidate for Chilean president. He is known as "the Lion of Tarapaca" and is the idol of the working classes in Antofagasta, from where he is a senator.

Gen. Munoz Cortes, who was sent to Antofagasta with instructions to take command of the carbineers, was thrown into jail earlier today. The civil committee then wired the government, demanding that Provisional President Blanche resign within 24 hours. Otherwise, they said, they would seize the customs house and the Central bank and open the Bolivian and Argentine frontiers to get foodstuffs. Barros Jarpa replied that the central government would starve them into submission.

Brazilian Peace Hits Snag.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Attempts to effect an armistice that would call a halt to the civil war between the rebel state of Sao Paulo and the Brazilian federal government ran into a snag today.

After a meeting of rebel and federal representatives at federal army headquarters at Cruzeiro the government announced that no definite accord was possible.

Whether the negotiations eventually prove successful seemed to depend on Gen. Bartolde Klinger, leader of the rebels, who initiated the move for peace. Sao Paulo emissaries at the Cruzeiro meeting refused to sign an armistice that had been drafted today without the approval of Gen. Klinger, but they agreed to a cessation of fighting until midnight Saturday.

Peru Proposes Arbitration.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Peru proposed to Colombia tonight that arbitration be resorted to for settlement of the dispute over the seizure of the Colombian city of Leticia by Peruvian citizens.

In a note sent to the Lima government Wednesday, Colombia urged a peaceful settlement of the controversy. Leticia, ceded to Colombia in the boundary treaty of 1922, was seized Sept. 1. Colombia has contended that Peruvian troops took part in the seizure.

Importation of communist and all kinds of "extremist" literature into Peru was banned today by a government decree. Offenders will be fined heavily and shops handling such literature will be closed.

Paraguay Opens New Offensive.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 30.—Paraguayan dispatches today said Paraguayan troops have begun a determined offensive from Fort Boqueron, in the Gran Chaco, against Fort Arce, the headquarters of the Bolivian central army. An unconfirmed report from Asuncion tonight said the Paraguayans began a bombardment of Fort Arce this afternoon.

The Paraguayans also assert that they have isolated the Bolivians holding Fort Samaklay (also known as Agua Rica) and are besieging the Bolivians as they did the Boqueron garrison, which they claim to have captured.

BOOKS

Mark Twain and Dreiser Are Subjects.

"Forgotten Frontiers," by Dorothy Dudley. [Smith-Haas.]

IT IS a strange and interesting coincidence that within twenty days of each other two books like "Mark Twain's America" and "Forgotten Frontiers" should have been published, both serious studies of luminous literary lights and the local thunders and lightnings which contributed to their incandescencies. In both of them the man—Mark Twain in "Mark Twain's America" and Theodore Dreiser in "Forgotten Frontiers"—is the key in the hand of a Benjamin Franklin down which the electricity of the period traveled to transform a natural—that is, a spiritual—force into light.

Both Mr. De Voto and Miss Dudley treat their heroes as if they were actually the prophets of a new electric age, and both of them picture the source of their incandescence with brilliance.

"Forgotten Frontiers" is a biography of Theodore Dreiser first and a picture of his background second. "Mark Twain's America" is a picture of the America that produced and was influenced by Mark Twain first and a biographical study of him second.

Miss Dudley is concerned with the man in all of his manifestations, personal as well as creative. Mr. De Voto is interested in his hero exclusively as an artist. Only those phases of his personal life which were indicative of or productive of Mark Twain's creative work are Mr. De Voto's concern. Mr. De Voto has written, besides a brilliant book on the frontier of the middle west, a critical history of the work of America's greatest humorist which is true, convincing, inspiriting criticism.

Miss Dudley has written a criticism of a culture rather than a history of one which, by the fault of being categorical, of stating with the positiveness of a Moses delivering the commandments, and by the obverse fault of not being right all of the time (they always inevitably go together, categorical denunciation and mistakes) lessens its power to such an extent that the reader sometimes forgets that he is reading an extremely keen spiritual analysis of a period.

As biography it is cold, brilliant, searching, and, as pure writing, intriguing to a degree. The parts of it which will be remembered for their special brilliance are the author's pictures of cities—of Chicago, of New York, of emotional and social life of "Only Yesterday." For that she has a true gift. In her judgments, however, critical and personal, she is hampered by being arrogant in the statement of her dicta. Such a sentence as this, for instance, is pure absurdity: "Mrs. Wharton (and later Mrs. Atherton and Willa Cather) too often reads like high class society editors or feature writers for women." To have [1] so little fundamental knowledge of the real qualities of the three writers and [2] to sweep together so categorically three writers of as wholly divergent work and intention and execution lessens what would be real power if less sweepingly and more critically displayed.

"Forgotten Frontiers" is interesting and stimulating in the sense that it stirs the reader's mind either to agreement or disagreement, and never leaves it indifferently inactive, and as a work of art in the modern, dynamic manner the actual writing of it intrigues the reader.

"Mark Twain's America" is not categorical. Mr. De Voto is certainly as convinced of the rightness of his ideas about his hero as Miss Dudley is of the rightness of her ideas about her hero, but Mr. De Voto gives his reader reasoning and not law: he states facts, he states inferences, he states his own conclusions, but the three are kept separate in his readers' minds. His book is much more radical and personal in its conclusions than Miss Dudley's, for he destroys accepted dicta from other critics to get the building material for his own edifice, which does not resemble the monuments previously erected, but the reader may take Mr. De Voto's monument or leave it and still feel that he has a functioning mind. The reader is liable to feel that he either accepts the gospel of Dorothy Dudley or is an intellectual heathen.

Mr. De Voto writes, as does Miss Dudley, in the modern dynamic manner for the intelligentsia. His pages [as are hers] are fruity with references to the commonplaces of knowledge which only the knowledgeful know. But that is no fault. It is the chief charm of both the books—their major premise that the reader has a background and a mind which is capable of analysis and synthesis.

Together the two books form a strangely mortised record of the creative thought and the cultural and social backgrounds of a half century of the life of man in these United States.

It is likewise an interesting coincidence that both authers are connected with Chicago. Miss Dudley is a member of one of the old Chicago families and has lived here much of her life, and Mr. De Voto was but lately professor of English at Northwestern university before he went to the English department at Harvard.

John Collier, Iain Lang Writing It.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Before the success of Frederick Allen's "Only Yesterday" had been achieved in England, the English publishers had commissioned a similar book covering the history of Great Britain since the war. It will be of almost as much interest to American readers (for purposes of comparison) as "Only Yesterday," which has been widely read and admired here. The book of John Collier and Iain Lang, from whom the best may be expected.

Mr. Lang's experience as a journalist has been invaluable, for he has been expert in all the "news" side of the book; while Mr. Collier's brilliance has had ample scope. To the general public it is possible that Mr. Collier's will be the better known name, as few books have caused a more instant burst of enthusiasm than "His Monkey Wife," the novel with which he startled England a year or two ago.

Mr. Collier has, moreover, produced an edition of Aubrey's "Brief Lives" (entitled "The Scandal and Credulities of John Aubrey") which has made many readers acquainted for the first time with the fascinating work of that seventeenth century wiseacre. He has wit, a polished style, a bold and imperious mind, and a great deal of odd knowledge. Such gifts, allied with Mr Lang's experience, promise exceedingly for the value and readableness of "Just the Other Day." And the book will be found as revealing of the real England as "Only Yesterday" is revealing of the real United States.

One curious and amusing feature of English inclination is the great revival of Jacobitism among some of our most intelligent men and women. Jacobitism is in effect an almost religious enthusiasm for the Stuart dynasty. Every year, of course, on the day of the execution of King Charles I., there are ceremonies of remembrance, but the tendency is growing stronger.

I have already spoken of Compton Mackenzie's coming biography of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," for the writing of which the author has visited the islands of the Hebrides, where Charles Stuart landed in his attempt to recover the English crown.

But Mr. Mackenzie is not to have that field to himself, for Clennell Wilkinson, who wrote a life of Nelson last year, is to give us a full dress biography of "Bonnie Prince Charlie" in the coming season. Nor is this all. There is to be a new life of Charles I., himself, very moderate in tone, the work of F. M. G. Higham. Mr. Wilkinson, the writer of the book on Charles Stuart, is the brother-in-law of J. C. Squire.

This reminds me that Mr. Squire's monthly review, "The London Mercury," which has hitherto been published at half a crown, is in future to be a shilling. It aims at a larger circulation, and more advertisements, than heretofore.

"Just the Other Day" will be published in America on Nov. 2 by Harper Brothers.

"Wild Streak" Gives Unity to Book of Short Stories

Margaret Emerson Bailey, author of "White Christmas," a book of poems that upon publication last year aroused critical comment, has written a book of short stories, "The Wild Streak" [Putnam]. These stories, though varied in plot and treatment and character, are linked together by the wild streak that appears in the action or the feeling or the thoughts of every main character. The effect is curious and gives the book a fine unity. The author is a graduate of Bryn Mawr and was a graduate student of the University of Chicago, taking short story courses from Robert Morss Lovett and Robert Herrick.

Cornelia Meigs Has New Book for Teen Age

"Swift Rivers," by Cornelia Meigs. [Little-Brown.]

"Story of Money," by Mary Duncan Carter. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

"THE TRADE WIND," "Clearing Weather," "The Crooked Apple Tree"—by these excellent stories Cornelia Meigs has made herself known to her young people, and an enviable place have they made for her in the estimation of this most critical and exacting group of 'teen age readers.

This year "Swift Rivers" comes to join them. As a story it is fascinating, but it offers more than a story to the alert young reader, for it dramatizes a period of our history of which we could well hear more.

The scene is laid in the Minnesota wilderness in 1835, and the story is of young Christian Dahlberg, a Swedish lad, who is trying to evolve some means of earning money to make comfortable the last years of the old grandfather with whom he lives in a cabin in the woods.

A chance word from a stranger directs his attention to the only resource he has, his grandfather's vast timber tracts, and although no such thing has ever been done in this section before, he determines to float the logs down, hundreds of miles, to the market at St. Louis. The story of that trip gives us an unforgettable picture of river life and the part it played in the development of a great industry.

An excellent story, which, perhaps, one has appraised sufficiently when one says that it is representative of Miss Meigs' best work and that it stands beside her earlier titles, a valuable contribution, in every sense of the word, to young people's literature.

The three other books on our list today are the work of former Chicagoans. "The Mason Children," by Edith Mason Armstrong, is a story of the vacation days and doings which this family enjoyed at their summer home at Lake Delavan. The Mason family was a prominent one in the early history of Chicago, and the author tells here of the joys and mishaps, the frolics and fun of the thirteen children of which she was one, in their ten acre country playground.

"Nayka," a story of an Indian boy of early Chicago days, is also by a Chicago woman, Johanna Lyback, having for many years been a teacher in the Chicago public schools. It is a simply told story, for younger children, of the Indians who lived just across the river from Fort Dearborn, of their contacts with the white settlers and of their final removal as the little settlement grew.

The "Story of Money," by Mary Duncan Carter, is a little volume intended to answer children's questions as to what money really is, how it came to be, etc. It begins with the story of barter in primitive communities and concludes with chapters on the earning and use of money. Although the book leaves this writer feeling that the author has perhaps given her young readers a little too much information for their ready understanding, it is nevertheless an exceedingly usable one offering material not readily available otherwise in attractive form. Mrs. Carter, formerly a Chicagoan, is now assistant director of McGill university library school.

"Flaming Arrow's People," by an Acoma Indian (Duffield & Green) is an authentic picture of Indian life and lore by a full blooded Pueblo Indian. The Acoma pueblo where the author lives and was brought up is on a high mesa near the "enchanted mesa" of New Mexico and is the oldest continuously inhabited city in the United States.

The houses that were there before Columbus discovered America are still standing and in use. The ancient tribal customs are still preserved. The tribe remains isolated and remote, living by hunting and a careful preservation of the food they get, living by the vital symbolism of a strange religion, finding poetry in games and sports, ceremonials of all sorts, and the legends of their own race.

The simple, vivid narrative is accompanied by crude drawings that represent his impressions of Indian life.

"They Came to the Castle," by Anthony Bertram [Dutton], is a charming mixture of the old romantic and the new realistic trends in fiction. Not only the technique of the novel itself is the blend of these types of fiction but also the approach and the story itself as well. A brief outline of the plot will indicate the nature of the book.

In an old, old castle in the Austrian Alps, a castle that was in existence when the Holy Roman Empire was founded and had witnessed most of the history of the world from its high position, lives Graf Maximillian with his daughter and granddaughter. He is an old man, not up to date, and perhaps a little senile. The traditions of his line, the illusions of his hospitality and chivalry still haunt him.

His daughter, however, knows that the castle could not be maintained unless there were paying guests. So about a dozen men and women from England and America journey to the Alps to find a romantic thrill in living in this famous castle, even though they have to pay for that thrill.

The old Graf, living in the tower, believes that all these people are his own guests, that they are relishing again the true hospitality of the Maximillian house. Slowly and gradually all the people brought together in this almost legendary castle begin to realize what reality is and are thrown together in a strange drama that combines the aspects of modern living and the chivalry of the eleventh century. The book is an entertaining one, romantic, but pleasingly so, and appropriately humorous.

BY JUDITH CASS.

It didn't make any difference last night whether you were familiar with the Latin quarter of Paris, for it didn't take you long to feel at home in the section of that famous left bank of the Seine that the architects of Chicago had reproduced on the first floor of the Drake hotel as a setting for their first annual fête for the benefit of their relief fund; and you didn't have to be there more than a minute before you were having a "wow" of a time.

It was a grand party, and a beautiful one, and never before in this city, or any other, probably, has there been such a setting constructed for a ball. Most of the well known architects of the city who gave their time and talent to reproducing the scenes of their school days know the Latin quarter as well as they do Chicago's loop or Michigan avenue, and they left out no detail that makes that part of Paris different from the rest of the world.

The Place St. Germain des Pres, the rue Bonaparte, the rue de Seine, the Place St. Michel, the rue Jacob, the rue de Vaugirard, the boulevard Montparnasse, they all were there; also Lipp's café, the Bal Bullier, the Quai Voltaire, the Café de la Paix, the Café des Deux Magots, and Colorossi's famous atelier, where ambitious students learn to sketch the human form from nude models. The model last night was protected by a galvanized iron webbing cage!

In various places there were typical French cabarets and there were four orchestras for dancing. And in the streets were pageants such as Beaux Arts students arrange on fête days, and also several miniature French taxicabs running down any and everyone.

Promptly at the witching hour of midnight Margery Maxwell [Mrs. Frederick Moorehead] sang the "Marseillaise" and then John Norton, with an appropriate and very amusing address unveiled a wax figure, symbolic of the classical figure of the Goddess of Architecture that stands in the main hall of the Beaux Arts in Paris, but entirely different for there were no draperies veiling the figure that Mr. Norton unveiled last night.

Although last night's fête was the first of many that the architects of Chicago hope to give, they do not intend to keep the scenery that they had built last night and they promise that every successive ball will be different but just as colorful and successful from a scenic standpoint. The Latin quarter was so marvelously built that it was supposed by many that it would be the setting for future balls.

Artists predominated in the gay throng that crowded the streets and ateliers and cafés, probably because a smock and beret were easier to secure than anything else. But there were plenty of soldiers and sailors, foreigners of all sorts, dancing girls, cocottes, midinettes, brides, peasants, tourists, guides, Apaches, and ladies in lovely period gowns to make the picture a lovely and colorful one.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, not long returned from Paris, was a perfect reproduction of the fascinating lady in one of Seurat's paintings in the Birch-Bartlett collection in the Art institute. She wore a wine colored gown of the style of 1870 and a high plumed hat and she carried a tiny parasol and a monkey. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. was a piquant dancer from the Folies Bergere with a very blonde wig covering her own chestnut brown hair.

Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, a bride of last June, was a ballet dancer with white tulle skirts, white satin bodice, and a pink ribbon wound in her hair. Mrs. Philip Maher was an exquisite nun in gray and white, and Mrs. David Owen was another who chose to appear at the gay party in the garb of a religieuse. Mrs. Shreve Badger, looking like a picture of a belle of the eighties, was a well known singer of the Bal Bullier, and Miss Alice Roullier was an attractive flower girl in red and black.

Mrs. Graham Aldis described herself as "hot in last winter's velvet pajamas," and Miss Mary Rend was a gorgeous Grecian lady in gold and white with a golden silk wig covering her dark hair. Her sister, Mrs. Thomas Wheelock, was a bird of brilliant plumage in orange and silver, with her skin darkened. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Nisbiack were both artists in blue smocks and berets, and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster was a cocotte in a black dress and a white wig. Mr. Brewster was a Nicholas bottle man and so was Noel Flint.

Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin was an aristocratic looking Apache with a black velvet dress and a silver bobbed wig. Her inch square mesh hose were the wildest thing about her costume. Mrs. Arthur G. Cable was a lovely lady of the eighties in white brocade with a bustle trimmed with black net. Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall was a regal Marie Antoinette, all in white, and her debutante daughter, Dorothy, was a cunning grisette. Mr. Marshall, who had donated the space for the fete, was an artist in smock and beret.

Patrick C. Hill was a Highlander in kilties and with a bagpipe, and James Minotto was a dashing Spanish cowboy in red and black. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank was another religieuse and Mr. Fairbank was a "visiting fireman" in a Chicago fireman's suit. Miss Peggy Hambleton was a ballet dancer in white and gold with a lovely gold silk wig.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon, just back from Estes Park, where they were married recently, were very realistic looking Apaches, and so was Thomas Wheelock. Mrs. Tiffany Blake was almost unrecognizable as Yvette Guilbert in a black gown with a long train, a red wig, a black plumed hat and a red coat.

Joan Bennett Displays New Style Coiffure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There seems to be little question but the hair is on the "up-and-up" again. Already any long bobbed line, especially over the ears, looks like last years' dress length.

Joan Bennett's coiffure is but one of many samples that could be offered to convince the doubter about the up trend of hair. The makeup department of the Fox films has dignified Joan's coiff with the name, Riviera bob. The hair is parted on the left side over the temple.

This allows for a long wave to the right side, brushed back to reveal the hair line along the forehead. The left side is crushed back from the forehead and above the ear, showing the hairline which disappears just over the ear where the hair is caught up in what they call "poppyette" curls, partially covering the ear.

On the right side the hair is curled in the same poppyette curls to give the appearance of waves. It does not, however, disturb the contour of the head. These curls continue around to the back of the head in the same sort of wave-like formation. The tip of the right ear shows a bit as the hair is brushed back to show the hair line.

You want to watch that line running from the center back down to the base of the neck. It's awfully important in a profile view of the head as well as a back view and in formal dress something awfully nice is done for the back with the center hair line pointed or at any rate tapered into a neck slenderizing line. You see this on the smartest head dressings.

Young Sari Maritza, the most recent European import, has that "clean" profile with her short bob carefully tapered at sides and short enough there to show the tip of her ear on one side and the whole ear on the other. The back of her hair is cut in layers, each layer a row of small, close fitting ringlets.

Lilyan Tashman is one of the recent exponents of the high haircut and hair free neckline. At a recent tea I saw her with a tiny black velvet hat clapped down on one ear and over one eye, her blonde hair a riot of tiny "doll curls." The coiffure was very short in the back with the small curls piled high on the hat-vacant side of the head crown.

The forehead fringe, or bangs to you, was slightly wavy in effect. The enormous chic of Miss Tashman's head, together with that long, lean line of silhouette she manages so well to keep, adds to her height, which is the aim and ambition of the smart girl and woman this season.

Pull your height up to its last inch, not only through the help of a slender silhouette, but through the coiffure help and the unchuttered neck.

With everything tightening up around the throat and shoulders spreading like an eagle's wings, one has to be watchful of that hair line back, front and sides to keep from looking as if you'd been jammed down with a presser. You can't very well knot a fur scarf or a silk one under your chin and have it meet up with some hanging hair. Or if you do you'll cut off a good inch or two of height.

They tell me at the hairdressing salons that more than half the heads are short haired. Perhaps 75 per cent of women would register the shorter haircut if they were not afraid of that growing in period. They've been through it once, maybe twice or thrice, and that's experience enough for many. They say: "Yes, I'd like to cut it—but wait until the next time I come back!"

We're not urging that it be cut. For long hair is just as chic as short—if it is raised up off the lower part of the neck, or if one has one of those gazelle throats that can stand hair decoration.

The only thing we call attention to is the need of the slender line of neck, both back and front, to use triumphantly above the current neck crowding of scarfs, fur trimming, and dress collar.

Launch Work on 3 Million Yards of Cloth

Will Make Garments for Needy.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross has started upon the task of turning 3,000,000 yards of cotton material into clothing for 100,000 destitute families in Cook county, Du Page county, and a part of Lake county.

James T. Nicholson, director of the Chicago chapter, announced that the executive committee in a meeting at the Blackstone hotel yesterday authorized the establishment of a model workroom, probably in the loop. Here between 50 to 75 volunteer workers will put the finishing touches upon the garments upon their completion in relief agency workshops and by church circles, clubs and other organizations.

The distribution of the clothing will be made under the supervision of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, but the actual distribution will be through the Illinois relief commission, Mr. Nicholson said. The material was made available by the United States government.

"The cotton material comes to us ready for making garments," Mr. Nicholson explained. "It is just as good material as you will find any-

Miss Doering to Make Debut at Home Tea

Affair Will Be Held on November 11.

BY JUDITH CASS.

One of the few debut dates that was set last spring, and that hasn't been changed is that of Miss Edna Doering, daughter of the junior Edmund J. Doerings. She is to be presented at a tea on Friday, Nov. 11, at home, 1344 Astor street, where the Doerings live with Mrs. Doering's mother, Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery.

Miss Doering came home ahead of her mother from Marion, Mass., where they had a house for the summer, in time to take part in the early debutante festivities, and she is to have a specialty act in the Service club revue, "Stepping High," to be given Oct. 21 and 22 at the Goodman theater.

She has a lovely deep voice, and I wouldn't be surprised if she turned out to be the champion "crooner" of the show.

Plans for the show are going forward splendidly, and the 40 girls and 24 men who are to take part are very faithful so far about showing up every night at the Illinois Woman's Athletic club for rehearsing.

Miss Doering's mother and younger sister, Nancy, are visiting the former Virginia Doering and her husband, Robert M. Stevenson, in Bronxville, N. Y., now, and Mrs. Doering will return to Chicago in about a week after Nancy goes to Miss Weaver's school at Tarrytown.

Walter Carroll Is Engaged.

Of interest to Chicagoans is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Miriam C. Mohler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John R. Mohler of Washington, D. C., to Walter C. Carroll Jr. of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Carroll of Pittsburgh, formerly of Chicago.

The wedding is to take place early in November and already the forehanded young bridegroom-to-be has found an apartment at 240 East Delaware place to which he will bring his bride.

Miss Mohler is a graduate of the Cathedral school in Washington and of Wellesley college and Mr. Carroll attended Mercersburg academy and then Princeton, being graduated from the latter in 1928. Mr. Carroll's twin sister, Catherine, made her debut in 1922 while the family was living here, but his younger sister, Florence, made her debut after the Carrolls had moved to Pittsburgh.

Catherine now is Mr. Edward S. Bradford Jr. of Longmeadow, Mass., and Florence is engaged to be married to Dr. Theodore Miner of Brooklyn. Their wedding is scheduled for Easter time.

Mr. Carroll Jr. wooed and won his fiancée this past summer when he was visiting a former Chicagoan, Lambert Clifford, in Washington. Mr. Clifford and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Clifford, used to live in Evanston, but have been in Washington for some years. Lambert, who is working in Providence, R. I., now, and young Mr. Carroll were roommates at Princeton.

Judith Boddie Bride Today.

Miss Judith Boddie, daughter of Mrs. John T. Boddie of Chicago, is being married this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Church of All Angels in New York to William Addison Walker, son of Dr. and Mrs. James H. Walker of Salina, Kas.

The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, John T. Boddie, who went to New York from California for the wedding. The maid of honor is Miss Jean Milsted of Chicago, who motored east the first of the week to meet Miss Boddie and Mrs. Frank Fuller upon their return from a trip abroad.

The best man is James H. Walker Jr., and ushering will be Franklin Agnew and Curtis Abel of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will motor through the Berkshires on their wedding trip and will live in Chicago.

The junior Joseph T. Bowens are giving a dinner dance tonight at their Lake Forest residence for about seventy-five. The Bowens' daughter, Gwendolyn, leaves next Thursday for school at Farmington.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius will be at home at the commandant's house at the Great Lakes Naval Training station tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. This is the second of the delightfully informal at homes that Admiral and Mrs. Cluverius will have during the winter on the first Sunday of each month.

Last Polo Game at Fort Sheridan.

The last polo game of the season at Fort Sheridan will be played tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, the 124th Field Artillery and Fort Sheridan being the contestants.

The Otto W. Lehmanns have taken the Benjamin H. Marshalls' apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive for the winter and are moving in from their Lake Villa estate Nov. 1. The Marshalls plan to stay out at their attractive Wilmette residence all winter, although they will have an apartment at the Drake in which to stay when they want to be in town.

Miss Dorothy Marshall is to make her debut at a dinner dance early in December to which only debutantes and their beaux are to be invited, but Mrs. Marshall has not decided where the party will be held. If left to the choice of the debutantes I'm sure they would choose the Marshalls' north shore residence.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick will return to Chicago this morning from her annual summer stay in Europe. She has been in France most of the time since she sailed in the early summer. She took the cure at Vichy last month and then went to Paris for a few weeks before boarding the Ile de France for home. Mr. Chadwick

Your Costume Jewelry Takes On New Shine

Racket and Rattle Also Feature Articles.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's more glitter and shine to costume jewelry displays this season than ever before and the new collections probably make more racket and rattle than ever considered possible. Copper stocks should go zooming toward new highs, for the newest chain effects, earrings, modernistic brooches, safety pins, clips and bracelets are of copper.

You wear copper with black, brown, wine, and the new bronzeen green tones. It obligingly and most effectively contrasts and harmonizes with every fashionable fall color. You can buy bracelets that look like the handcuffs our half civilized female ancestors wore for dress parade, wide crude looking affairs but tremendously swank for the knitted daytime dresses and sports costumes.

Inch wide bracelets, flat and smooth, are the newest arrivals, and undoubtedly the much wider models will be seen around the town before you realize it.

One Chicago shop is all excited over some new smoke gray crystals. The necklaces are here awaiting the matching bracelets that are scheduled for a later arrival. Cloudy or smoke crystal is fascinating, it gleams and glitters with a sinister crackle that reminds you of fire opals.

Smoke crystal is some one's inspired idea for the proper contrast or accent for the new gray costumes. The prices are so low that it wouldn't take much of a prophet to predict an overwhelming sellout for this lovely new stuff.

French chromium, that slick new metal that never tarnishes, never grows dull and is without a doubt the smartest silver accent for all shoppers who are blind to the glitter of either copper or gold, is now flashing in most interesting displays in every shop in town. Big round bracelets, narrow thin bracelets in sets of six or eight, linked circles, chains, and bracelets that look exactly like sections of fences with a gate and other fantastic combinations of beads and flat discs and mesh designs are what you will wear from your wrist to the elbow, if you know your arm fashions.

Pins and brooches are staging the biggest comeback of fashion . . . you'll find big modernistic pins, huge bow knots combined with black and colored enamels, pins that look like fobs, and badges, safety pins, long five inch pins with a square of flat metal to be monogrammed, and real old fashioned brooches of twisted gold and seed pearls. The most amusing thing about all this brooch revival is the fact that you either wear subtle old fashioned copies or the daring breath taking modernistic creations—there isn't anything in between.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright, 1932, by Ines Ridley Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"I came across an old letter last night that should be interesting to you" said Prof. Fordney to his class. "Listen."

London, England,
Tuesday, Feb. 27, 1932.

Dear Fordney:

Remember old Harmsworth? Well, I bumped into him in the lounge of Piccadilly club last Saturday where some of us Yankees were celebrating Washington's birthday.

He told me a story I thought you might like to try on your class. Perhaps it's old, but then your students are young fellows and it may be so ancient as to be new to them. Anyway, here it is.

A little Indian and a big Indian were walking through the woods together. The little Indian was the big Indian's son, but the big Indian was NOT the little Indian's father. What relation was the big Indian to the little Indian?

When none of us got it you should have heard Old Harmsworth roar! That laugh of his! . . . but well you know it. By the way, he wants me to ask if you have ever seen the Indian rope trick performed? If not, do you believe it can be done? Be sure to answer this, as he insists, for some reason or other, on knowing your opinion.

Well, my boy, I've fooled you this time. I knew, of course, you'd get the answer to Harmsworth's story, but tell me what is wrong with this account of mine?"

"There you are, fellows," smiled Fordney as he finished reading, "The Indian relation problem is simple, but what IS wrong with my friend's narrative? Quickly now!"

WHAT IS WRONG?

Perhaps you have a problem you would like Prof. Fordney to submit to his class. If so, send it to the Professor, in care of The Tribune. He will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and mentally disturbed. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff. He and his wife, a common, illiterate couple, occupy the lodge, and hold a strange influence over Caroline. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, beautiful but fiery tempered, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline puts Neil in charge of the library in the daytime, cautioning him to admit no one. She tells him her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Neil has a friend, Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, who lives with his sister, Rachel. Neil has lunch in Bath with Rachel and Tasha. He sees Tasha hold a secret meeting with a strange man and later sees her pay the stranger's bill in the tearoom. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. Caroline is persuaded by Emily Braselton, her one close friend, to visit her in Paris. Natasha is to drive her to London and the Tilbury's are to be left as caretakers of the house.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

A PORTENTOUS MESSAGE.

"Do you know what happened last night?" Natasha came a step closer to Neil. "After I'd gone to my room I heard her slip down here and followed to see what she was up to." She was in the lobby, just putting on her old leather coat to go out."

"What, in the rain?"

"Yes—and at twelve o'clock. She was quite nasty to me when I made her go to bed—said I was treating her like a child. I had to remind her that the doctor had said she was not to run any risks with her health or she would not be fit for her journey. After that I slept with my door open. Not that I've the least notion what she wanted to do, but there was some mischief afoot, never fear."

Looking back he was struck by his comfortable faith in this statement. He fully shared the girl's confidence that Miss Braselton, little as he liked her, would find out the Tilbury's designs and expose them—although what hidden plan the latter could be nurturing was impossible to conceive. Two more empty headed little people he had seldom come across.

The staff, assembled to see their mistress depart, had, with the exception of Crabbe, shown a noticeable restraint, probably due to the unforeseen domestic arrangement, but Miss Bundy had seemed unconcerned over anything save the weather prospects. Flurried and anxious, she kept peering at the barometer till the bailiff jokingly pulled her away.

"Don't you bother abaht that glass, Miss. See, overhead, 'ow the clouds is breaking up! O, you'll 'ave a good crossing tomorrow."

head, was heavily laden with an umbrella, a parcel, and, oddly enough, two shopping bags, both hung over her arm by the straps. Neil took particular note of this latter fact, thinking it very like her to burden herself unnecessarily. The alligator skin bag, of course, contained the precious manuscript. The other, of black leather, was unfamiliar, though he was destined to recall it later on at a time when every detail assumed enormous importance. That it held her money was proved by her taking from it various ten shilling notes to distribute as Easter gifts among the servants.

Natasha, who had delayed till her aunt began to grow impatient, appeared on the scene, the personification of chic serenity. Cool, detached, she descended the stairs, drawing on what was probably her one new pair of gloves—gray antelope, heavily stitched—saved, no doubt, for such an occasion. Her rough gray coat of Irish tweed was smartly cut, her little close fitting hat of the same shade was carefully adjusted, while the neutral background of her attire was accented by a note of bright scarlet, matching her lips, in the shape of a flat bag tucked under one arm.

She paused beside Neil, an ironical glint in her eyes as she watched the Tilburys surging round the old lady to help her into the car and bundle her up with the rug.

"Well, we're off," she murmured. "Expect me when you see me. I can't say more."

In vain did he try to read what lay behind that calm mask of hers. All he could think of was the flying visit she had paid Wednesday afternoon in Bath, and his belief that she was planning to meet the man of her choice in London. His aimless remarks sounded hollow to his ears.

"Now, then, you're not to think of us. We shan't run off with the spoons, shall we, Con?"

More giggling, urgent warnings against fatigue and draughts. The car started, the Cockney sparrows dashed in its wake, and Neil was left behind to struggle with the sense of emptiness which had descended on him like a pall. He was still staring at the green turf and the monkey puzzle trees when the bailiff and his wife returned, encumbered with the first installment of their personal effects. They dumped a pair of bulging kit bags in the hall, and mopped their beaming faces.

"That's that," panted the complacent Alfred. "And now, abaht this little move of ours. Not going to put you out in any way, I 'ope?"

"Not at all. Why should it? It just happens, though, I shan't be staying here while Miss Bundy is away. Not at night, that is. I'm going over to Mr. Gisborne's, from this evening."

Their flushed faces fell. They exchanged hurt glances, and Tilbury exclaimed quickly: "O, I s'y! It's not on account of us, is it?"

Neil explained how he had accepted the invitation before he knew of their taking over the reins. He could not understand their apparent disappointment, nor the dead silence which greeted his remarks.

"O, I say. Well, you'll please yourself, of course." The man sounded sulky. "Only Con and me wouldn't like to think as 'ow—it's the missus's idea, this. I 'ope you know we 'adn't nothing to do with it."

Neil froze. Even Tilbury noticed the blunder, for he gave his wife an admonitory nudge, whereupon she hurriedly chirped, "O, no offense! It's just that we seem to be breaking up the party, through no fault of ours. We have to do as we're told, you know."

Glad to escape, Neil started in the direction of his work, only to find Crabbe waiting to ask whether he would like his packing done and his lunch brought on a tray to the study. They conversed for a moment, and although the butler was as discreet as usual his volunteered admission that the two maids were just leaving seemed to bear out Natasha's prediction about the Tilbury's making a clean sweep. Be that as it might, the staff, during Miss Bundy's absence, was to be reduced to himself, the cook, and the daily char. Mrs. Tilbury undertaking to find new girls before the month was up. Neil rather thought he detected a scornful note in his informant's voice as it uttered this last detail, but perhaps he was mistaken. He shut himself up and plunged into his task, determined not to dwell on the blank hours ahead.

About five-thirty that afternoon he stopped by the drawing room to collect certain of his books left there. Outside the door he fancied he heard a low mumble of voices mingling with the blare of the radio, but on entering, saw no signs of conversation between the couple now fully installed and very much at their ease. Connie, her short legs outstretched toward a roasting fire, lounged back rapturously, drinking in the tumult of jazz. Alfred lay on the Chippendale sofa amidst the scattered pages of an illustrated journal, a decanter and wineglass beside him on a stool. A second glance, however, showed him to be pale and shaky, his hands pressed to his stomach. He uttered a faint groan as the door opened, but on seeing who was there struggled up with a wan smile.

"Rare good brandy, this," he remarked. "Miss Bundy ordered me to take some to try and shift the nasty, grinding pain I've got inside. Started coming on about breakfast time. Can I tempt you to a drop, sir?"

Though his voice was curiously husky, he was perfectly sober, nor, indeed, could one suspect him of bibulous inclinations. As Neil declined the refreshment, Mrs. Tilbury sternly adjured her husband to sit down again.

The telephone pealed forth a summons. Connie switched off the radio, while Alfred, unmindful of his suffering, sprang into the hall to take off the receiver.

"Hello, hello—yes, this is Bishop's Paulton, two-six," Neil heard him say, and then followed a long wait. A trunk call, evidently. Connie came to stand close beside him, and the last thing Neil saw as he let himself out was the two holding their breath and eyeing each other with a stilled eagerness.

How bitterly was he to regret not lingering to hear the result of that call! He did, indeed, stop a minute on the doorstep, thinking it might be for him, but as nothing happened, he thrust the bailiff and his wife into the background of his thoughts and hastened to reach a less offending atmosphere.

So American Youngsters Get the Parts.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 30.—When the Fox Film company tried to bring four children over from England to join the all-English cast making "Cavalcade," so that the accents would be authentic throughout the film, the studio was startled to discover that English children could not lawfully be taken out of their country for theatrical purposes.

So now, Shiela McGill, 9 year old daughter of the Irish poet, Patrick McGill; Richard Henderson Jr., son of Dick Henderson, English pantomimist; and two other American English children, Douglas Scott and Juanita Granville, have been given the four parts and a special instructor in the English kind of English diction.

Hoot Gibson, who at one time won the national all around cowboy championship awarded at the Pendleton, Ore., roundup, has been given a contract to stage the rodeo in connection with the Texas State fair at Dallas, Oct. 8 to 23. He will fly from here to Dallas and will ship horses, bucking Indian cattle, cowboys, cowgirls, and equipment from his ranch at Saugus, near Los Angeles, where Gibson each spring puts on the big rodeo for this section of the country.

Lew Stone, who served in both the Spanish-American and world wars, has been commissioned by Gov. Rolph of California as colonel of the California Lancers, a southern California militia cavalry unit.

Helen Hayes and Clark Gable are to be co-starred in "Lovers" at MGM. All the actress stars are keen about co-starring with Gable, whether they work on his lot or another, and the producers seem to be eager to back up the stars. Gable's services recently were loaned by MGM to Cosmopolitan for him to appear with Marion Davies for "Polly of the Circus" on Marion's request, and he is just now finishing up with Miriam Hopkins in "No Man of Her Own" at Paramount. And it was only recently he was bracketed with Joan Crawford in "Possessed."

Louis Fazenda has recovered from a week's illness. So has William Anthony McGuire, the writer.

Mae West's contract at Paramount has been renewed, and her own "Diamond Lil" may be her next appearance.

"Ask me another" being our motto for Saturday, preliminaries are taboo and the question clinic again has the floor.

No. 1 comes from Miss A. M., who is having pie troubles. She asks: "What causes my single pie crust to always shrink down when baked? I bake it at 500 degrees F. for ten to twelve minutes."

Answer: Shrinking crusts nearly always result from overworking of the dough. The overstretched gluten contracts upon baking, producing less volume and a hard, tight-textured crust. Scraps wrapped with fresh dough for bottom crusts will also promote shrinking. If you are attempting to make up several crusts at once you may also get into difficulty. Best combine each recipe separately, for the more flour there is the harder it is to incorporate the water and the more mixing it takes. Always remember to roll and handle the dough as lightly and as little as possible. If the pie crust is stretched over the tin it may also contract in baking. One must expect some slight shrinkage, but this is usually taken care of by baking the crust on the inverted pan bottom, and, when it is done, slipping it off and into the pan.

Question No. 2 [from Mrs. G. L. D.]: "Can you please tell me why I never get a fine grained butter cake? I beat and beat the dough."

Answer: This trouble may come from any one of several difficulties—or possibly a combination of two or more. Too much leavening frequently gives a coarse cake. I am sending you an accurate, tested recipe for your files. All ingredients should be measured level. Insufficient creaming of the butter and sugar is much more likely to give a coarse grain than too little beating of the batter. The shortening and sugar should be creamed together until light and fluffy. If you are using liquid shortening it will be necessary to beat it vigorously with the sugar before adding the other ingredients. Too hot an oven will also give a coarse grain. 350 to 375 degrees F. is the correct temperature.

Question No. 3 [from M. J. J.]: "Will you please print a recipe for candied orange peel?"

Answer: Here is my old faithful, and an interesting variation I believe will suit you. First, for the variation:

HONEYED ORANGE PEEL.

Select three smooth, thick-skinned oranges. Remove the peel and cut into long narrow strips one-third inch wide. Simmer one-half hour, or until tender, in one cup of water to which one-fourth teaspoon salt has been added. Rinse twice in boiling water, then place skin side down in a pan and cover with one cup of honey mixed with one-fourth cup of water. Simmer until the sirup is nearly all absorbed and very thick, guarding carefully against burning. Remove the peel, roll in granulated sugar and dry.

This same method may be used, substituting one-half cup of water and one cup of sugar for the water and honey in the above recipe.

And the last question, from M. R., suggests, "Will you please send me your offered sheet of shrimp recipes? I am especially interested in shrimp chow mein and wonder if your list includes this recipe?"

Answer: Unfortunately this interesting recipe was not in our shrimp bulletin, so I am giving it here.

SHRIMP CHOW MEIN.

¾ can bean sprouts
1 cup finely sliced onion
1 tbsp. mixed [peanut oil.
2 cups thinly sliced celery
1 cup soup stock
2 tbsps. soy sauce
2 tsps. scow [seasoning] sauce
1 tbsp. flour.

Combine the onions and shrimp and sauté in a tablespoon of cooking fat until slightly brown. Add the celery, stock, and sauces and let simmer fifteen minutes, or until the vegetables are tender. Add the sprouts and continue cooking till heated through. Make a smooth paste of the flour and a little water and stir it in, beating to avoid lumps. Serve very hot over crisped hot fried noodles.

Good Morning!

With what facility and effectiveness the team of Francis and Powell slide from jest to earnest!

When last we saw this intriguing pair they were romping with skill and abandon through a sophisticated commedy melodrama called "Jewel Robbery." Today, with finesse, they are breaking our hearts in "One Way Passage," a sweetly solemn crook drama that gets you where you live.

With the exception of the heroine, and Warren Hymer as a detective, the principals are folk just one jump ahead of the police. The two leading characters, Dan Hardesty and Joan Ames, are under sentence of death. Miss Ames' death warrant has been, so to speak, signed by a doctor. Hardesty, escaped from San Quentin, had heard his fate from the lips of the judge before whom he had been tried for murder. The two meet in the bar of a boat sailing from Hongkong to San Francisco. Meet, love wildly, and, as the ship steams through the Golden Gate, part—to meet again! How and where I shall let the picture show you. Unusual finale!

This is a tremendously effective film. The haunting minors of the main theme are relieved by the gay pizzicato of comedy rendered delightfully by those three laugh go-getters, Aline MacMahon, Frank McHugh, and Warren Hymer. Miss MacMahon, usually cast as some beer baron's private secretary, proves herself every bit as smart a "countess" as a wolfing goil. They tell me that producers wanted to definitely stamp her as the p. p. s. [the perfect private secretary], but that the lady would have none of it. Said she could—and would!—take a whirl at everything. More power to her. She's a lode—all gold and a yard wide.

Miss Francis and Mr. Powell have never been more devastating. Supporting players were shrewdly chosen Direction, I thought, was unusually fine. Sets, scenery, costumes please. All this, plus a story that is decidedly "different," results in a cinematic opus that repays your outlay at the box office with an hour of real enjoyment.

See you tomorrow!

MUSIC RETURNS

Music of the concert and operatic type and well performed is once more taking its place in the programs of the Chicago theater. A few years ago at least one striking musical number was always an essential part of the entertainment in this home of the movies. Then for a time the fashion died out. Now it is returning and the audiences are welcoming it.

Joseph Littau, guest conductor, is the leading figure just now. He has had a long and honorable record, though his years are not many, in providing good music in a way to make it well liked. For a number of seasons he conducted symphonic concerts at Roxy's theater in New York, and for the last two seasons has been director of the Omaha Symphony orchestra. He is pausing briefly in Chicago now to appear once again before movie audiences.

A fairly extended set of excerpts from the opera "Pagliacci" is his present choice at the Chicago theater. It is a number that sooner or later manages to touch most of the high spots in the entire score, and it is played both accurately and in the mood of high spirits, two points which more than any others make agreeable performances. He is popular and it is by no means hard to tell why.

out at the back. Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin looked as if she had resurrected a costume of the days when she was famous as Irene Castle. Gold tights showed through the black net and chiffon gown which she wore and on her head she wore a wide bandeau of black and gold with a lace brim which hung over half her face like a nose veil.

Mrs. Paul Butler was stunning in a pearl bodice and a full ruffled rkirt of white chiffon and a cap encrusted with pearls. Her sister, Mrs. Harold Strotz, wore diagonally stripped yellow, blue, black, and white lounging pajamas. Miss Janet Fairbank was a gorgeous Russian court lady in blonde satin, and a jeweled headdress with ropes of pearls.

Miss Louise Brewer was a Chinese lady in yellow and blue pajamas, and Mrs. Nathaniel Owings was a dainty ballerina in ivory satin and tulle, and with rhinestones in her hair. Mrs. William H. Mitchell wore tight black velvet trousers, short, and a printed chiffon blouse. Mrs. Valentine Bartlett wore peach color overalls, and the Princess Rostislav was a milkmaid. Mrs. Clair E. More wore an authentic costume of a high caste Brahmin lady, given to her when she lived in India by the maharajah of Mysor. She had darkened her skin and in her nose she had a cluster of diamonds, so she was most realistic looking.

Among others at the fête were John Wentworth, Andrew Rebori, Mr. and Mrs. John Root, Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Ralph Hines, Walter Frazier, Howard Raftery, Miss Frieda Foltz, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rodman, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. George Senseney, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Christian Industrial League Makes Plea for Bundle Offering Clothing, shoes, furniture, dishes, rugs, bedding, tires, wrapping paper, newspapers, books, magazines—such are the articles the Chicago Christian Industrial league, 847 West Monroe street, is requesting in its annual bundle campaign which will continue to Oct. 9.

Of the various activities of the league, it was explained by the officers, every type of welfare work is performed. Homeless, unemployed, sick, handicapped men, families, mothers and children, unattached women and drifting boys and girls are taken care of by the league. Close to 1,500 families were aided during the last year.

Those wishing to donate bundles may call Monroe 2474. A truck will call.

Collar, Revers, Vest Effects Ape Masculine Dress

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Like the vestals of Greek mythology who had carte blanche wherever they went, Paris has given its sanction to vested evening fashions. These vested fashions carry the authority of the French fashion world as being the last word in chic, and as such they may go anywhere they choose and still be correct and smart.

In the sketch today is an example of a vested evening fashion the way one couturiere, Jane Regny, sees it. The frock is in a heavy, crinkled silk crêpe, in white, the vestal color. The vestee of this dress is actually the bodice, but gives the effect of being separate from the skirt, though it is sewed on. It has wide, tailored revers, which extend over the shoulders and border the V neckline in front. There are three strass buttons down the center front of the vestee blouse. The skirt has two circular cut panels on either side of the hips, giving fullness at the sides, and there is a straight panel down the front from a hip yoke.

In the small sketch is the back of this frock, with its circular cut collar and small capelet, below which the back is bare to the waistline. The skirt arises very high at the waistline in back, making the décolleté more discreet.

Woman Gets First Role in Bar Association Play

Avoid Anxiety When Curing a Child's Habit

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"My little 2½ year old daughter is not yet 'dry' in spite of all my efforts. It seems to me that in my anxiety to break her of this habit I am defeating my purpose."

This mother is wise in self knowledge, even if she is not "knowledgable" in this particular direction. Our very anxiety to train a child into a habit is sometimes our undoing, as this mother realizes.

Anxiety emphasizes a fault. It gives it an exaggerated importance. Anxiety is negative in that it makes much of the child's not doing this one thing. And the very concentration of the child's attention on the habits tends to fix it.

There are many behavior difficulties that mothers exercise this overanxiety about. Of course, they're upsetting and use up a lot of energy and time that mothers need for other things. But emphasis and worry will not solve the eating problem, nor the nap problem, nor the dry problem, nor the nail biting, nor any of the others. The approach to them has to be something different—removing causes, using interest and diversion and pleasantness and encouragement—all in a casual, cheerful attitude. Also, some of these habits can be entirely cured by apparent indifference.

When we are confronted with these various habit problems, sometimes the key to the situation lies in dissembling our interest in it. Ignoring the specially troublesome behavior, for example, during meals or not focusing our attention on each "accident" will sometimes spell success.

It is a usual thing for a child to continue to be impervious to our desires because it is a means of getting our attention and causing a little stir—all of which is a satisfaction to his ego. Now it's right for these young egos to be satisfied, but not in that way. Of course, I need hardly add that a child doesn't figure this all out—these are nature's instinctive devices.

Sometimes a little wholesome neglect on our part will be more successful than anxiety and a great-to-do. Try it some time.

Launch Work on 3 Million Yards of Cloth

Will Make Garments for Needy.

where, and comes in different patterns. We expect that the three million yards of material will turn out one million garments. These will consist of everything a person wears that can be made from cotton material. The things that can't be made we will get through exchange of some of the raw cotton assigned to us."

The headquarters of the Chicago chapter at 616 South Michigan avenue are already busy preparing the models that will be used for the sewing. Volunteers are at work cutting the material, and the dresses, it was pointed out, will be of different styles and the material of different patterns to avoid standardization. These models of clothing will be used to guide the workshops and other centers where the sewing is to take place.

It is expected that employment for 1,000 persons will be found in the fashioning of the Red Cross cotton material. These persons, Mr. Nicholson explained, will be furnished by the Illinois relief commission at relief work centers. The Red Cross, he stressed, will have only the supervision of the project.

The executive committee present for laying plans for the sewing project were James B. Forgan Jr., Augustus A. Carpenter, Kent Chandler, Mrs. George A. McKinlock, and Gilbert H. Schibner.

Another announcement from the Chicago headquarters yesterday was to the effect that the chapter will take and transmit contributions for the relief of hurricane sufferers in Puerto Rico. In response to a direct request from the governors of the Virgin islands, the American Red Cross has appropriated $5,000,000 for emergency feeding. The National Red Cross has also proceeded with the organization of relief measures including the shipment of medical supplies, flour, cotton and other commodities for emergency relief.

George Smith, formerly an executive of the central wheat distributing office maintained by the American Red Cross in Chicago has been dispatched by airplane from Miami, Fla., to act as an advisor. He is to be joined by M. K. Reckord of Chicago, general manager of the Izaak Walton league, who was director of the Red Cross relief operations after the Puerto Rico hurricane of 1928.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover entertained the cabinet hostesses who are in town at tea this afternoon in the Red parlor of the White House. Mrs. Roy D. Chapin of Detroit, wife of the new secretary of commerce, arrived in Washington in time to attend. Mrs. Mills, wife of the secretary of the treasury, and Mrs. Hyde, wife of the secretary of agriculture, were the only absentees.

Former Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, now American ambassador to France, had luncheon with President and Mrs. Hoover today. He and Mrs. Edge are in Washington at the Mayflower for a short visit.

Princess Cantacuzene, daughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. Frederick D. Grant and niece of the late Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago, has returned from a summer trip abroad and will be at the Mayflower for a short time before proceeding to her winter home at Sarasota, Fla., inherited from the late Mrs. Palmer.

[Miss Vare wins, 5 and 4.]

Peabody, Mass., Sept. 30. —[Special.]—Twice thwarted in her attempt to win the national women's championship, Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago again has fought her way to the finals. Unfortunately, however, the Chicagoan will be face to face tomorrow in the 36 hole match with the opponent who has balked her on two previous occasions, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare Jr., now of Philadelphia.

Miss Van Wie advanced to the finals of the 1932 tournament today by putting an end to the sensational conquests of Miss Charlotte Glutting, 22 year old New Jersey woman, who yesterday eliminated the British champion, Miss Enid Wilson.

While Miss Van Wie was beating Miss Glutting, 4 and 3, Mrs. Vare, five time winner of the title, was eliminating the last foreign invader, Miss Ada MacKenzie of Toronto, 5 and 4.

Five in Row for Glenna.

It marked the fifth consecutive time Mrs. Vare has been a finalist in the women's national tourney. She has won the title five times and has been the runnerup once. Miss Helen Hicks defeated her in the finals at Buffalo last year. In 1928 she defeated Miss Van Wie for the championship at Hot Springs, Va. The score was 13 and 12. She also whipped Miss Van Wie, 6 and 5, in California in 1930. They met at Buffalo last year and Mrs. Vare won a third time, going on into the finals.

Miss Van Wie was co-medalist with Miss Maureen Orcutt this year, carding a par 77 in the opening round. Her match play victims were Mrs. P. B. Meckley, Silver Springs, Md., 5 and 4; Edith Quier, Haverford, Pa., 4 and 3, and Rosalie Knapp, Glen Head, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Miss Vare qualified with an 80 and eliminated Mrs. Karl Scheidt, Norristown, Pa., 7 and 5; Mrs. C. S. Eddis, Toronto, 2 and 1, and Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, N. Y., 2 and 1.

Both Win Easily.

Both finalists won their matches so handily that the semi-final round was something of an anti-climax after the sensational happenings of yesterday when Miss Wilson and Miss Maureen Orcutt were defeated and Mrs. Vare forced to the limit to conquer Miss Wattles.

Miss Glutting made an auspicious start against Miss Van Wie, but whereas yesterday her chipping and putting were superb, she was only mediocre today. Her grit and determination kept her in the fight for the first twelve holes, but on the 13th the tide turned and Miss Van Wie suddenly terminated the match by winning three successive holes.

They halved the first hole and Miss Glutting jumped into the lead when she took the second, 5 to 4. She barely missed a birdie deuce on the short 2d hole, but her par three increased her advantage to 2 up. Her iron shot off the tee dropped on the green and her first putt missed by inches. Miss Van Wie was 40 feet short with her iron, then chipped over the green. She conceded the hole when she missed her first putt and was given a five.

Loses Lead.

Miss Van Wie reduced the easterner's lead to a hole at the 4th, where she took a birdie four. Her second was 60 feet short of the green and she chipped dead. Miss Glutting relied upon a No. 2 iron against a cross wind for her second and it found a trap. She was short with her explosion to the green and needed a 25 foot putt for a half. She took a six.

They halved the short 6th when Miss Glutting missed a five foot putt because of the mud on her ball. Miss Van Wie evened the match at the 7th when she got on in two, about 40 feet from the pin, and took a par four. Miss Glutting had about 40 yards the better of the drives off the tee, but she three putted after making the edge of the green with her second. Two easy putts apiece after reaching the green in three gave them another halved hole at the 8th.

Miss Van Wie then took the lead for the first time by laying a stymie for Miss Glutting on the 9th and winning the hole with a par four. Miss Glutting tried to curl a shot around the Chicagoan's ball with her second putt, but missed and had to take a five.

They halved the 10th with birdie fours, the 11th with sixes and the 12th in birdie threes. Miss Van Wie then took command of the match, hur-

RENTNER OUT AS N. U. OPENS GRID CAMPAIGN TODAY

Wildcats Get First Test in Missouri Game.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The life of a football coach isn't one to be envied, if you can believe the moans now heard around the conference, or if you give credence to the list of worries each coach can compile at a moment's notice.

Northwestern's Dick Hanley is no exception. Hanley is not a chronic pessimist. He's not a Gloomy Gil Doble. But yesterday Dick found a new worry on the eve of the opening game against Missouri today at Dyche stadium.

Northwestern needs to test its line replacements. Some of the regulars are injured. To all this Hanley has added the fear that his star ball carrier and forward passer, Pug Rentner, might suffer an injury which would keep him out of the Michigan game a week from today. In other words, Rentner has reached that stage of importance where he will be wrapped in cotton and laid away.

Leeper Replaces Rentner.

This was the plan last night when it was announced that Leeper, a sophomore half back from Fort Wayne, Ind., would start in place of Rentner. We'll make a guess, however, that the important Mr. Rentner will get in the ball game some time during the afternoon. It may be that Missouri will not be able to make Coach Hanley produce Rentner, but certainly it won't hurt Pug to carry the ball a couple of times. At least there's no more danger than when and if he scrimmages against the freshmen.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock and the attendance may reach 25,000, including the list of guests with and without the 10 per cent government tax. For the benefit of the baseball minded, a score board will give the inning by inning results of the Yankees and Cubs efforts at Wrigley field. The scores by quarters of the important Big Ten games [particularly the Michigan-Michigan State and Marquette-Wisconsin games] will be posted.

Carideo Is Silent.

Frank Carideo led the Missouri Tigers into Evanston yesterday afternoon in time for a brief workout at the stadium. Carideo would make no statement concerning the outcome today. It isn't possible to make Missouri an even wager, considering that the Tigers won only two of their ten games last year and that they tied for last place in the Big Six. But Missouri may prove to be good competition for Northwestern considering that four of the line positions will be manned by new comers and that only one regular from last year will be in the backfield.

Bill Riley and Gonya will start at the tackle posts for the Wildcats. Gonya did not play last year because of ineligibility while Riley was a substitute guard. Dilley, a 1931 regular guard, will be paired with Kinder. Manske again will be at left end, but Dick Fenci, the regular right end, may not get into the game because of a shoulder injury. Kostbade, a 1931 substitute, will start in his position.

In addition to Leeper, and Olson, full back, Al Kawal, quarter back, and Jake Sullivan are in the backfield. Sullivan played more or less regularly last fall. Kawal, a sophomore, takes George Potter's position. Potter is injured, but is expected to play against Michigan.

TODAY'S PITCHERS

60,000 WATCH STATE BATTLE MICHIGAN TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—The annual civil war between the two leading football rivals of this sovereign commonwealth—the University of Michigan and Michigan State college—will be renewed for the 27th time in Michigan stadium here tomorrow, with the Wolverines, for the first time in many an autumn, in the unfamiliar position of underdogs.

Whatever the outcome of the game, followers of both sides who have witnessed the last two games between the Wolverines and the Spartans hope to see more than a pair of goose eggs on the scoreboard at the conclusion of tomorrow's argument. Their last two meetings have been decidedly futile, resulting in nothing more than 120 consecutive minutes of scoreless football.

In each case, of course, whatever glory is attached to moral victories reverted to Michigan State, but the Spartan delegation present here for the game is confident it can make it a numerical decision tomorrow, and the more lugubrious among the natives are wondering about the number of touchdowns to which State can be held.

Expect 60,000, a Record.

An attendance of 60,000, a record for a Michigan game with State, is anticipated and, considering their past performances, the 60,000 will sit through the entire game, come wind or snow or rain. The best testimonial to the fervent rivalry between the Wolverines and Spartans occurred last year, when 51,000 endured 60 minutes of rain to watch the two teams, playing on a field resembling a well greased skillet, battle to the third no decision bout in their history.

The favoritism of Michigan State in tomorrow's game is based on a combination of elements, one of them being the exceptional power of the Spartans, who picked on little Alma last week, 93 to 0, and the epidemic of ailments with which the Wolverine squad has been smitten, particularly within the last two weeks.

Wistert May Not Start.

Willard Hildebrand probably will begin at tackle instead of Francis Wistert, the former Chicago prep star from Schurz, who has a bruised foot. He was abed most of today, but appeared for the workout at South Ferry field, sans uniform. Another casualty is Russ Damm, who was banged up in scrimmage a few days ago. Tom Austin will be in his place at the opening kickoff, but Damm is certain to get into the game. John Heston, son of the illustrious Willie, is included in the starting back field in place of Herm Everhardus, who has a lame foot.

The full back job will be attended to by a sophomore, John Regeczi, whose talents include kicking and passing.

Coach Jimmy Crowley of Michigan State, with the beginning of whose régime the Spartans dropped out of the setup league, arrived here from East Lansing this afternoon with a squad of forty-five and after a brief workout at the stadium, adjourned to Ypsilanti, eight miles away, for the evening.

Nine "Iron Men" on List.

Crowley brought with him nine of the eleven "iron men" who played every minute of last year's game, among them Bob Monnett and Abe Eliowitz, a pair of backs so able that they were elected co-captains this year. Crowley had only two matters about which to fret, one of them being Bernie McNutt, a plunging full back, who will continue to be inactive, due to a dislocated shoulder. Bob Terlaak will start at right guard, but the young man is also equipped with one of those shoulders which become unhitched if not treated gently.

WINNER THIS TIME?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The ghost of John McGraw raised it a quarter and peered out the window of the diner at a sleeping town going by.

"No; probably Utica," said the ghost of Nick Altrock. "What did you do?"

"I upped it once," John McGraw's astral presence said. "It will cost you two shillings."

"It's to you," he said to the ghost of Joe McCarthy, who roused himself and, flipping three quarters onto the table said, "and up again."

"Who is Gehrig this year?" the ghost of Babe Ruth asked.

It Doesn't Matter Where He Is.

"Damn if I know," said McGraw's ghost. "I asked Lou after supper, buck in the bridge game. He thinks it is Sid, but Sid ain't on the train. I think he got stuck for the Columbia game Saturday."

"You can do it just as good from Columbia as Chicago," said the ghost of Joe Sewell. "I will just buy a look to keep everything honest and above board. I thought so. Mine is ace, king, ten. Was anybody light there?"

The ghost of John McGraw was a freshman ghost breaking in on a world series. Bozeman Bulger, who had ghosted for McGraw so long that he had become McGraw's other self, was missing from the world series' special for the first time in many years. Four years ago, on the special train bound for St. Louis, Boze went down with appendicitis and there was a night of worry on board as Bill Brandt of the Times, who is also as osteopath, or chiro, did what he could for him.

A Pinch Spirit Steps In.

Then along toward morning, in a song service in one of the drawing rooms toward the rear end, a nut fan from Bridgeport was discovered who turned out to be a baby specialist. He sat up with Boze the rest of the way, and Boze made the hospital in St. Louis, where the appendix was removed. A pinch spook took his place during the series, ghosting for the dean of ghosts.

But this year Boze died and, though it may have been only coincidence, the heart died in the Giants and McGraw quit. The world series special seemed not quite legal unillumined by the grinning, livid countenance of the Alabama gentlemen, old Boze, the ghost of John McGraw. He could do McGraw's keen, analytical, inside baseball stories of world series ball games whistling "Hinky-dinky, parley voo," and playing the typewriter like a pianist in an old fashioned back room.

"You certainly drew a turkey," he said. "What do you write about the series from a manager's aunt's angle?"

"The same as you write. Words. Dumb, simple words, one right after another until you have got 700 of them. Who is high here? First jack bets."

"I had one once where you didn't use the dumbs and simples," said Altrock's wraith. "I ghosted the old Student Prince one year. I used to give them skippers like 'ineluctible' and 'ostensibility' and sometimes I would get up homemade ones like 'preposterate' and 'indidictimous.' They used to call the copy desk the rock pile; making little words out of big ones. Wait till I look. O, I will string along for a quarter but you raise and I run."

The Yankee ball players and Judge Landis and Jake Ruppert were housed away in their cubicles along the darkened corridors of the compartment cars, riding in aloof state to Chicago, but the spooks of the National Game sat up late into the morning, watching the towns go by in strands of street lights, which grew wan toward dawn.

McGraw's Ghost Stalls.

At six, the ghost of Joe Sewell was within ten dollars of even and McGraw's ghost was playing a stalling game, defending his lead and drowsing over his deal.

"All the athletes were figuring," said Altrock's ghost. "It looks bad for our gallant boys. Maybe under five grand apiece this year. And all of the old ones with their ears knocked down by the market crash. This was a rich men's club in '29. The A's, too. Some of those A's were worth a couple of hundred thousand. They figured on retiring on their investments when—Blam! It breaks my heart about our gallant athletes."

The ghost of McGraw, the heavy winner, skinned a dollar reluctantly from his roll and handed it to a colored boy who had been drowsing in attendance for nine hours with his woolly head nestled in the arms of his white jacket.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Unless somebody puts a new complexion on this current world series it will go down in the baseball books as one of the poorest spectacles staged at inflated prices. If the new face is to be given the affair the Cubs will have to do it, but even that will not erase what has happened in the two games already played. The Yankees themselves, even though plainly superior, have done nothing in keeping with the five months' job of winning a pennant. The Cubs have done less, but the sight of Wrigley field will restore their confidence, they believe.

The experts already are sharpening up their wisecracks for use in the dull days intervening between world series and spring training time. Unless the Cubs can stage a miraculous comeback there will be lots written on the old theme about the National league not having the class of the American league. And, win or lose, the Cubs aren't going to be permitted to forget that a lot of people thought them a bit too grasping when they cut their fired manager, Rogers Hornsby, out of even a slim slice, and provided only a half share for Mark Koenig.

Capitalize on Cubs' Division.

The Yankees are doing the best they can to capitalize on the way the Cubs divided their money, subject, of course, to a review of the commissioner. The American leaguers are confining most of their "jockeying" to this one subject. That's about all they have been yelling at the Cubs thus far, and it naturally hasn't been pleasant for the Chicagoans.

Babe Ruth, who is a pretty fair jockey and does it in a quiet way that the spectators seldom notice, worked this one theme threadbare in the second game at New York. Koenig was on the Cub bench throughout the game because his chronic wrist ailment received a setback when he slid into third base in the opening battle. Ruth was on first base three times, and the Cub dugout was nearby. He also walked past that territory several times on his way to and from his right field position.

The Babe kept yelling at Koenig, "So they're going to give you a half share, are they, Mark? Well, you had better collect that five bucks right now."

Fall Down in Fielding.

The Cubs went into the series with a rating that hardly requires repeating. They were not hitters even in their own league. But they could field and had the pitching. They haven't hit in two games. The pitching of Warneke and Bush was fair enough, but the Yank power finally got 'em just as expected. But where the Cubs did fall down was in their fielding. More than a few ground balls were driven past the infield when runs were at stake, and these were just the kind the Cub defense was handling successfully during the regular season. The entire infield seemed to have had a case of the "shakes." On their own lot they may recover their bearings.

In the way of run production the Cubs have been moving at a normal pace. They collected six runs off Charley Ruffing the first day. They gathered a pair off Vernon Lefty Gomez in the second engagement. Both the runs off Gomez could have been avoided with tight fielding. Only two of the half dozen off Ruffing were actually untainted by poor defensive work and this legitimate pair didn't appear until the game was definitely sewed up. A hitting team would have erased both Ruffing and Gomez from the scene.

Fail to Wait Out Pitchers.

The strikeouts piled up by both Ruffing and Gomez are sufficient proof that the Cubs were not in the proper mental state either day. Ruffing was exceedingly fast and so was Gomez. But their speed wasn't well controlled and would have proved their undoing if the Cubs had used a bit more headwork on attack. They didn't wait 'em out. Instead they swung like a lot of old fashioned rug beaters. Ruffing fanned ten of them and half of them might have walked had they waited. Or they at least would have forced the big redhead to ease up and

BY FRENCH LANE.

Pigeon Hole, the stake star of a few seasons back, won his ninth victory in a dozen starts out at Lincoln Fields yesterday, but the race had no sooner ended than Pigeon Hole came to the full realization that he is just a selling plater, after all.

Awaiting him as he came back to the winner's circle was J. D. Mikel, Illinois turfman, with his halter, Mr. Mikel led Pigeon Hole away to a strange barn after depositing $1,800 in the claiming box.

Old Pigeon Hole fell so low that he sold for $500 on the cuff a couple of months ago, but this was his first experience at being claimed. There was some weeping in the box occupied by his owner, Mrs. L. A. Connor and a party of friends, when the claim was allowed, but Pigeon Hole didn't appear to mind when he was led away.

Predicts Handicap Victory.

Young Mikel was elated at getting the consistent old fellow for $1,800. "Don't be surprised if I win an Agua Caliente handicap with him next March," he told friends after he had Pigeon Hole tucked safely away in a stall thickly bedded down with straw.

Mikel might do it. He was the leading trainer in America last year and won most of his races with patched up, crippled horses. Pigeon Hole is a patched up cripple or he never would have been dropped down among the lowly platers with which he has been associating all season.

Mrs. Connor had a right to do a little weeping. Pigeon Hole has been a fine meal ticket for the Connor family. Since they bought him for $500 "on time" last July he has earned $6,775 for them. This amount, coupled with the claiming price of $1,800, gives the Connors of Louisville a clear profit on the old fellow of $8,075.

Pigeon Hole Steps Briskly.

It was a dash at a mile which Pigeon Hole won. He had no trouble whatever winning it by three lengths after speeding over the mile course in 1:38. This was spectacular time on a track which was soft and soggy. Son o' Sweep finished second and Englewood was third. Pigeon Hole had backers in every part of the crowd. He was at odds on, paying $3.84 for a $2 ticket.

Jockey M. Calvert, the brilliant youngster developed by the veteran John J. O'Byrne, scored a double in the two best races on the program. He won the Beecher purse on Jodie K. It was a dash at seven furlongs and Calvert had to throw all his riding skill into the stretch drive to get the decision by less than a length from Big Play. The favorite, Black Torch, after getting away slowly, landed third money.

Thirty minutes later Calvert crawled into the saddle on Sallie Bourland and got her home a length in front of Sarsita, with Meloy third, in the South Park purse. The favorite, Fayette Prince, wasn't in the money.

Jodie K. an Outsider.

Jodie K. and Sallie Bourland were outsiders in the betting. Jodie K. was a six to one shot, while Sallie Bourland, which has failed many times here this season, gave her backers $19.10 for each $2 they had bet on her.

Pigeon Hole wound up a successful daily double for the favorite players after Night Jasmine had won the second race. With the favorite players down hook line and sinker the daily double paid only $27.12.

Cock Robin, at 8 to 1, Is Victor at Aqueduct

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Hank Mills rewarded his followers by booting home an 8 to 1 shot, Cock Robin, in the claiming event at a mile and a sixteenth, featured on the Aqueduct race program today. Coming from behind with a rush in the last sixteenth, he won by a length and a half from Rod Rack while Aldershot was third, half a length behind. The time was 1:48 1-5.

Cock Robin had shown improvement, finishing third Wednesday to Sun Teatime, but was not considered seriously. Alcman was the red hot favorite. Alcman, however, played little part in the race.

Mrs. W. T. Anderson's Character led all the way in the opener, a dash of five furlongs, that brought out a dozen 2 year olds.

Gloria Maris outfinished Breezing Thru after a thrilling stretch drive and took the third event at seven furlongs by a neck. Turf God was third, half a length behind. The time was 1:27 4-5. Gloria Maris was 7 to 1, while Breezing Thru was the favorite at 2 to 1.

General A won another victory for Mrs. A. Carfano, his third in a row, when he took the second event at one mile by a length from Tetrachal. Al Neiman was third, four lengths behind.

RACE TOMORROW FOR STATE BIKE CHAMPIONSHIP

Nine bicycle racers, six from Chicago, two from Calumet City, and one from Zion City, will compete for the right to represent Illinois in the national championships next month when they race for the state title at Sherman park tomorrow morning. The six from Chicago are Frank Lemajeur, George Carmes, Wally Vertenten, Ed Triest, Albert Byrd, and Jerry Huvaere.

The riders will participate in four events, one-half, one, and five mile races, and a ten mile point race in which points are given every sprint. Before the state championship races Lemajeur, Carmes, and Vertenten will ride in a one mile match race to decide the city championship.

Tomorrow afternoon the Amateur Bicycle of America will hold the last of a series of eight one hour team races at the Humboldt park cement track. Among the twenty leading Chicago amateurs who will ride are Andy Ebgelhardt, former state and tri-state champion, who placed second in the national trials at Boston; Fred Guth, state champion; Ed Somedy, who broke the record for the 25 mile open a few weeks ago, and Jerry Rodman, south park titleholder.

52,000 TO SEE CUBS AND YANKS RESUME SERIES

always has been a great favorite here, as elsewhere, but it was predicted last night by several delegations of leather lunged fans that the only way Ruth will have a chance to hurt anybody's feelings today will be through the medium of base hits. On his showing in the series to date Babe is not expected to distress the Chicago partisans with his fielding.

Cub officials were hopeful that the prospect of another fine day such as Chicago enjoyed yesterday would bring out a capacity crowd. In this event the boys will play to a gathering of from 52,000 to 56,000.

All the 18,000 $6.60 box seats have been sold, it is said, and only a few $5.50 grand stand seats are unsold. At 6:30 o'clock this morning 13,500 bleacher seats will be placed on sale at $1.10 each and at the same time 2,500 standing room admissions to the grand stand will be available. The price of these admissions is $3.30. They call for positions in the passageways back of the grand stand seats.

A survey of the ticket brokers last night revealed the best business being done in tickets for single games. In some places the three game blocks were being sold at face value.

Has Friends Here.

Manager McCarthy will be on the third base coaching line—his old familiar spot—for the first time in more than two years. Joe has visited Comiskey park a half dozen times since he became boss of the Yankees, but, of course, his appearance there had none of the sentimental aspects that his appearance today affords.

McCarthy, though leading a wicked enemy crew to this port, is in for a rousing greeting. Joe never forgot his poise during the month following his dismissal from the Cubs. He hasn't done or said a thing to lose a Chicago friend or create a Chicago enemy. The fans will be for the Cubs this afternoon. But it is not likely they'll be mad at Joe, no matter what happens. And besides there are enough Yankees to be mad at, what with those cracks of Ruth and those base hits of Gehrig's, etc.

In case you had forgotten, the Yanks have won 10 straight world series games. Who do they think they are, anyhow?

DE PAUL DEFEATS WESLEYAN, 6 TO 2, IN 4TH PERIOD

The second annual game between De Paul university and Illinois Wesleyan at Loyola stadium last night ended as the first one. After enjoying a 2 to 0 lead, a fumble again cost Illinois Wesleyan the game in the final quarter, De Paul winning, 6 to 2.

De Paul threatened several times in the first half, but each time the downstate squad held. Then, in the third period, Capt. Matty Steffen fumbled on an attempted play a few yards from his own goal line after an exchange of punts. He recovered the ball, but was tackled by Bob Neuman, Illinois Wesleyan end, for a safety.

The period ended without further scoring, and for the first five minutes of the fourth quarter it appeared that Wesleyan would even the series.

With the ball on Illinois Wesleyan's 35 yard line, Kaska received the ball from Center Sweat. Kaska juggled the ball and it bounced into the hands of Cherney, De Paul's right tackle, who ran several yards before being brought down. Several plays, with Capt. Steffen and Covington carrying the ball, brought De Paul to the Wesleyan 15 yard line.

Delaney	R. E.	Conroy
Clancy	R. T.	Berry
Basquetta	R. G.	Cutlip
Kelly	C	Sweat
Schuester	L. G.	Sweasy

TWO GAMES FOR ILLINI.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The 20th Illinois football team coached by Robert Zuppke will open its season against Coe college and Miami university tomorrow in the first double program ever held in Memorial stadium.

The Miami team, which will play the first game, arrived today and had a short limbering up drill. Coe will not arrive until tomorrow morning.

Capt. Gil Berry probably will be teamed with Ed Snavley, Chuck Andrews and Jack Cravens in the starting back field, with Frink, Cummings, Van Dyke, Bennis, Bodman, Kamm and Schustek in the line.

Bourbonnais, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—St. Viator defeated Wisconsin State Teachers, 19 to 0, tonight. Two touchdowns followed 12 first downs in the first half. Red Harding carried the ball over from the 15 yard line first. Bernard kicked the extra point. Westray scored the second Viator touchdown. Babe Fuche made the last score in the third period.

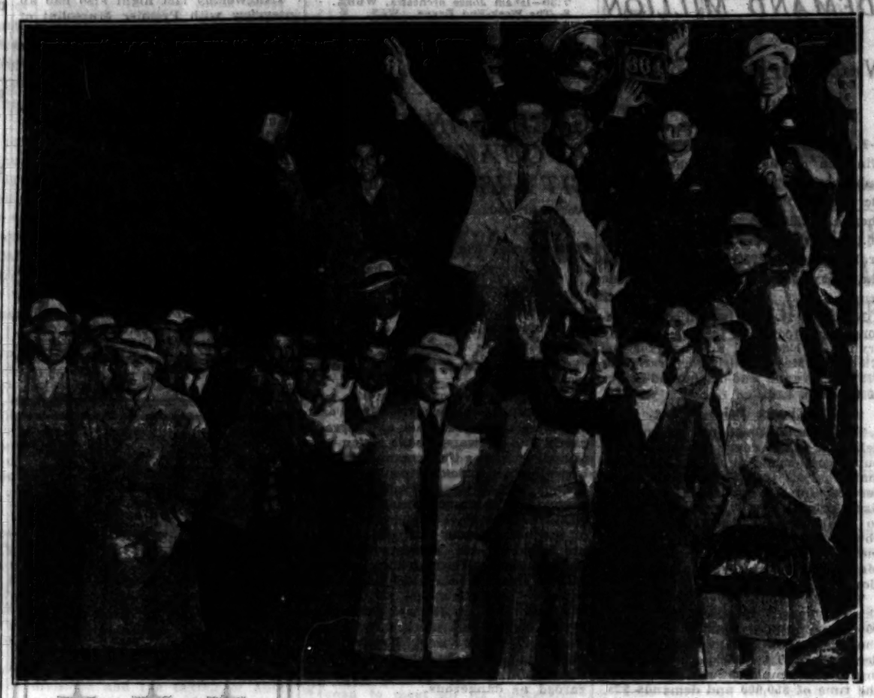
CARIDEO LEADS MISSOURI INTO WILDCAT DEN



The Tigers are in town. And it's no circus. You can take it from Frank Carideo, the Little Napoleon of Knute Rockne's last great eleven, who is embarking on a coaching career today by tackling the stanchest foe of his collegiate days. It's a big assignment, but Carideo is a big man in football. The Tigers are pictured here arriving over the Wabash at the Dearborn street station for their game against Northwestern today. get the ball over. Gomez added eight strikeouts the second day.

The fanning habits of the Cubs recall vividly that same weakness displayed by them in the world series of 1929. The difference then was that they were swinging freely at balls that came right across the plate, some of them speedy, others with curves, and, in the case of Howard Ehmke, with nothing. Ehmke whiffed 13 in the first game. Grove and Earnshaw hung up 13 more strikeouts in the second battle. Bush beat Earnshaw in the third game, but the latter fanned another 10. In the wild fourth game, decided by ten Athletic runs in the seventh inning, there were eight more victims of various Mack pitchers. In the final game Ehmke fanned a half dozen. That was 50 strikeouts by one team in a series.

Make Passes Count for Hits.

Another thing that proved the Yanks' hitting superiority was what they did with bases on balls. They made their passes count for base hits. Bush walked five and Grimes one in the opener. All of these became runs. In the second rout Warneke walked four, one intentionally. The first three grew into runs. The other also was damaging because it brought up Chapman, who singled with the bases filled. Some of the experts couldn't understand just why Manager Grimm figured Chapman wasn't as dangerous as Dickey, the recipient of the intentional pass. Nine runs scored on ten passes is a pretty fair world series record.

The one remaining ray of hope for the Cubs is that they still have two good pitchers in reserve—Charley Root and Pat Malone. Root when he is right has perfect control, and that's what is needed more than any other one thing to beat the Yanks. Malone's danger is that one bad inning has beaten him out of deserved victories so many times in the recent campaign. But the Cubs will have to get them some runs and that brings it right back to the question of whether the National league entry can even do much damage to the pitchers Joe McCarthy will pit against them. The home park idea might bring the Cubs back to their senses.

KID CHOCOLATE AGREES MANAGER SHOULD BE BOSS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, the Cuban fighter, and his manager, Senor Luis [Pincho] Gutierrez arrived today for Chocolate's bout with Johnny Farr of Cleveland at Olympia Thursday night, and explained that the double postponement was caused by nothing more serious than a "family spat."

"The keed," explained Senor Gutierrez, "tried to become the boss, and when I am manager no fighter can boss me. So I told him to beat it, get off my nerves; get out of my life; scram.

"The keed beat it, but after a while he comes around again. I have been the boss since he was 11 years old. I'm still the boss, so here we are."

Miss Van Wie Steps Out.

Miss Glutting conceded a birdie three on the 352 yard 13th, increasing Miss Van Wie's lead to 2 up. Miss Van Wie's second was two feet from the pin, while Miss Glutting's second rolled far out to the apron of the green. Miss Glutting chipped back within five feet of the pin, but two putted.

Miss Van Wie got a par three on the 14th to go 3 up, when her drive hit the crest of a bunker and caromed on to the green, dropping dead about 25 feet from the pin. Miss Glutting's drive found a hazard and she blasted out ten feet past the pin. Miss Van Wie was short with her first putt, but nudged in her second when Miss Glutting missed the long one she needed for a half.

The longest hole on the course, the 525 yard 15th, saw the defeat of Miss Glutting when Miss Van Wie got down in a par five. Miss Glutting's drive, like so many others on the afternoon round, found the rough. In the meantime Miss Van Wie was getting on with three good wood 150 short of the apron, but she dropped a chip dead seven feet from the pin. It was useless, however, when she two putted for a six.

Mrs. Vare Starts Slowly.

From the way Mrs. Vare played the first hole it appeared as if she intended to give the gallery the same heart throbbing moments it had had on the day before when she won out after being 3 down to Miss Wattles with only seven holes to play.

She hooked her drive into the tall grass and with Miss Mackenzie's ball lying in a bunker went after her own with a spoon. She hit it three times without getting any place in particular and finally picked up after she had taken six shots to reach the green while the Canadian girl's ball was on, four feet from the cup, after a good recovery.

It didn't require long for Mrs. Vare to take command of the situation, however, for she won the second hole to square the match and the third to take a lead which endured to the turn.

Mrs. Vare drew away rapidly after that and it was all over in five more holes, Miss MacKenzie getting into bunkers playing the eleventh, thirteenth, and fourteenth holes and losing the tenth when Mrs. Vare dropped a 6 foot putt after being short of the green with her second shot.

Purdue Meets Heavy Kansas Aggies Today

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Just what success Purdue is to have in the Big Ten football race will be determined tomorrow afternoon, when the Boilermakers play a nonconference game with Kansas Aggies, who will be seeking revenge for the defeat they were handed here in 1929. The Aggies outgained Purdue, only to go down in defeat, 26 to 14, as the result of forward passes.

Kansas Aggies' victory hopes are based on a line averaging around 195 pounds and a 184 pound back field built around Ralph Graham, leading scorer of the Six Six last season. Speed and a versatile attack are designed to put the Boilermakers over the top.

Both teams will start veteran lineups. The probable starting lineups:

PURDUE.		KANSAS AGGIES.
Moss	L. E.	Blaine
Busar	L. G.	Zerkuse [G.]
Letsinger	L. T.	Wertzberger
Oehler [C.]	C.	Russell

Ed Dolly, guard, and Marvin Kuhn, full back, were in uniform for the final workout, but are not expected to start the game. Howard Mofitt and George Teyro alternated at the first string quarter back position.

GOPHERS PLAY TODAY.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—South Dakota State invaded Minneapolis today with a squad of huskies who will battle Minnesota in Memorial stadium tomorrow afternoon. From the size of the visitors it was evident that they will be a physical match for the Gophers, although Minnesota is expected to win by a decisive margin.

Only four men, Proffit, subbing for the injured Jack Manders; Lund, sophomore back, and Wells and Oen, veteran tackle and end, respectively, are certain of starting for the Gophers.

BUCKEYES MEET WESLEYAN.

Columbus, O., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Only one sophomore is scheduled to start for Ohio State as the Buckeyes meet Ohio Wesleyan tomorrow. Regis Monahan, captain of last year's freshman team, will play right tackle, a place vacated by Bill Bell, while Conrad, a substitute last year, will fill in Bob Haubrich's old place at left tackle. The remainder of the line will include Gilman and Ferrall ends, Fallus and Varner guards, and Smith center.

Two combinations will be used in the back field with Cramer, quarter, Hinchman and Carroll, halves, and Vuchinich full back starting the game. This combination is expected to give way to McAfee at quarter, Oliphant and Heekin at halves, and Wetzel at full back.

400 IRISH CLASH TODAY.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Four hundred football players—150 varsity and 250 freshmen—will meet tomorrow in four hours of play on the occasion of the annual Notre Dame freshman-varsity game.

Freshman Coach Jake Kline named three teams which he claims to be of equal strength to start the game. Coach Hunk Anderson was content to name only two varsity teams, although he has 13 ready for action. Among the stars on the frosh squad are William Shakespeare of Port Richmond, N. Y., and Mike Layden, brother of Elmer Layden, full back in the Four Horsemen back field of 1924.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL FORECAST.

NINE Big Ten elevens swing into action this afternoon, Chicago having registered its inaugural a week ago. By sundown followers of Northwestern, Michigan, and Wisconsin will have a much clearer idea of what to expect from their favorites during the impending season.

While Northwestern generally is expected to take Missouri, there was a time five years ago when Northwestern had similar expectations and the Show Me's went home on the long end of a 34 to 19 count. At any rate, it will be a test for that Wildcat line which is under suspicion because it has failed to charge effectively against its freshmen.

Michigan and Michigan State look like a cat and dog fight after their scoreless tie of a year ago. Psychologically, the advantage may be with the Lansing boys, whose dearest ambition is to down the State university while the Wolverines have conference contests in the offing to worry about. State has two great backs, while Hewitt and Morrison are missing behind the university line. The Wake cannot choose between this pair, although general sentiment favors State, partly because of Michigan's reputation of starting slowly and working to a climax at the end of the season.

Coach Spears makes his bow as Wisconsin coach. It will be a stern test against a strong foe with odds slightly favoring the Badgers. Here's the forecast:

FRESHMAN BACK SPEEDS THROUGH U. OF C. DEFENSE

Yale plays, as they were charted from last year's appearance of the Blue team on the Midway, again proved effective against the University of Chicago's line when the Maroon freshmen scrimmaged the varsity yesterday. There is a nonscouting agreement for the Yale-Chicago return game to be played at New Haven a week from today.

Part of the gains registered by the freshmen yesterday, however, were due less to the Yale plays than to the eye opening running of Jay Berwanger, freshman half back from Dubuque, who picked holes with a sure instinct and ran through them. Berwanger's relentless driving and a few long passes captured by Balfanz and Wells, freshman ends, would have been good for several Yale touchdowns had the scrimmage been a regulation game.

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—The football battle of the decade, so far as Wisconsin is concerned, will take place on Camp Randall field here tomorrow afternoon when the University of Wisconsin and Marquette university revive a football feud after a lapse of 13 years. A crowd of 30,000 is expected. One-fourth of those will be from Milwaukee.

The kickoff is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Little is known of the strength of Dr. C. W. Spears' first Badger eleven. Even with eight letter men in the starting lineup, including Capt. Gregory Kabat, one of the best in the Big Ten last season, Wisconsin coaches haven't been taking the Marquette game lightly.

Badgers Drill in Secret.

Practices have been long and many, and they have been held behind locked gates. Three days this week the Cardinal squad drilled until long after dark.

Marquette already has proved its strength, although many of its followers anticipated a more decisive score than the 25 to 0 licking the Golden Avalanche handed Lawrence last Saturday.

Marquette will have nine letter winners in its opening lineup, among them Capt. Eugene Ronzani, who does all things well. Capt. Ronzani, who weighs 194 pounds and is a three sport athlete, runs and blocks effectively and also passes, kicks, and directs the team.

Other Wisconsin letter winners who will start include Ralph Lovshin and John Schneller, ends; Moon Molinaro, tackle; Harvey Kranhold, guard, and Charles Goldenberg, Walter Maguire, and Harold Smith, backs. Marquette veterans in the line are Gorychka and Meagher, ends; Rosmarynoski and Rosemark, guards, and Kreuger, center.

Backs All Letter Men.

All the Hilltop backs are letter winners. The Hilltoppers, who never have beaten Wisconsin and have scored only once in seven meetings, will be outweighed in the line. In the back field, however, they will hold a slight edge.

Both camps today reported injuries at a minimum. Nello Pacetti, 181 pound Kenosha senior on the Cardinal squad, has a nose fracture, suffered more than a week ago, but will be ready to play if needed. Both teams today went through signal drills to wind up their preparations.

Head Coach F. J. Murray of Marquette said today: "We'll win." Dr. Spears said he expected a hard battle.

Opinion among the fans on both sides was that the game will be a close one, particularly if the field is dry. For some reason the Badgers seem to be favored on a wet field.

OHIO U. AT INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Indiana opens the football season here tomorrow against Ohio university. Bernard Dickey, end, who was injured several days ago, was definitely declared out of the game, and Martisch is expected to replace him. The probable lineup is Lyons and Martisch, ends; Rehm and Anglemyer, tackles; Keckish and Nylec, guards; Spannuth, center; Opasik, quarter back; Saluski and Sawicki, half backs; and Jones, full back.

37 STATES JOIN IN MEETING HERE TO AID RAILROADS

Workers and Small Stockholders Unite.

Representatives of thirty-seven state organizations of railroad employes and small railroad stockholders met yesterday at the Congress hotel to consider the formation of a national organization. The meeting decided that the first thing to be done, however, is to perfect state organizations in the remaining eleven states.

The central organization's purpose would be to urge the public to ship goods and to travel by rail, and to urge congress and state legislatures to pass law regulating buses, trucks and inland waterway carriers so that the railroads can compete with them on an even basis, delegates said.

Seek to Improve Finances.

The ultimate aim is to place the railroads in better financial condition, with a resulting benefit to both employes and stockholders.

The meeting was called by W. L. Hullinger of St. Paul, who presided as temporary chairman. He declared the organization would not accept any railroad executives, large stock owners, or any brokers as members. The thirty-seven state organizations from which the national body is to be formed have a membership of about 1,000,000, according to Archer A. Page of Richmond, Va., president of his state body. The state organizations were formed as the Railroad Employés and Taxpayers' Association, Inc.

200 Delegates Attend.

More than 200 delegates attended the meeting yesterday and are expected to reconvene today for further discussion of the proposed national organization. Mr. Hullinger said that it was doubtful if the national organization would be perfected at this meeting and officers elected, but that that action would probably follow the organization of the remaining 11 state groups. The meetings yesterday were closed to the public.

"The railroads are not contributing anything and we will not accept any support from them," G. L. Phillips of Louisville, Ky., declared. "We feel that this is an issue which belongs to the railroad employés and their supporters. If we fail to receive the undivided support of the railroad employés, their families, friends and their supporters, our cause will be lost."

HAROLD TEEN—DAME RUMOR HAS IT

CONCRETE IS POURED ON NEW GLEN ELLYN HIGHWAY SEPARATION

Concrete was poured yesterday on the floor of a grade separation in Glen Ellyn at the intersection of Roosevelt road and Illinois route 53, a new north and south highway. Six weeks ago the contractor, S. J. Groves & Sons of Libertyville, said the structure would be open to traffic on Oct. 1 —today. George Lamb, district engineer of the state highway department, said yesterday that the Roosevelt road detour for this job will be eliminated not later than Oct. 15.

"The contractor is ahead of the program the state scheduled for him," said Mr. Lamb, "but we are rushing the job so that Roosevelt road traffic can be freed of the detour on narrow, jogging pavement that will later serve as ramps for the grade separation. It takes ordinary concrete a couple of weeks to harden, but I have directed the use of quick hardening cement if necessary to open the structure on Oct. 15."

DR. W. A. O'BRIEN FREED OF WIFE MURDER CHARGE

Judge Edgar A. Jonas yesterday dismissed a charge of murder against Dr. William A. O'Brien, 41 years old, 4043 Melrose street, who was arrested following the death by poison on Aug. 1 of his wife, Vera. Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne told the court he did not have sufficient evidence for an indictment or trial.

"We have slim evidence," the prosecutor said. "We have only a note allegedly written by Mrs. O'Brien before she took poison, but which handwriting experts say was a forgery. The coroner's jury returned an open verdict, and the police are still investigating."

J. Fordyce Wood, handwriting expert, declared the handwriting in the note had none of the characteristics of Mrs. O'Brien's handwriting and did have some of the characteristics of the doctor's handwriting.

ESTATE VALUED AT $275,000 LEFT BY E. M. GRAVES

An estate estimated to be worth at least $275,000 was left by Edward M. Graves, 55 years old, president of the Central Dredging company, it was revealed yesterday in Probate court proceedings in Waukegan. Mr. Graves shot himself in his home at 230 South Sheridan road, Lake Forest, last week.

Terms of the will provide that Mr. Grave's widow and his brother, Michael E. Graves of Indianapolis, shall receive $25,000 each, and shall share the income of a $200,000 trust fund. The widow also receives the real estate, valued at $75,000.

Mr. Graves also remembered twenty-three relatives, both his own and those of his widow. The will was filed by Attorney John Neil Campbell. He said the $275,000 estimate was conservative.

MRS. JOSEPH FIFER, FORMER GOVERNOR'S WIFE, DEAD, AGED 84

MRS. J. W. FIFER.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Joseph W. Fifer, wife of former Gov. Fifer and mother of State Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer, died here today at the age of 84.

She was born in New York, Feb. 29, 1848, and married Joseph Fifer in 1870, shortly before Mr. Fifer was admitted to the bar. After his service as state senator and his election as governor of Illinois in 1880 the family moved to Springfield for four years, where Mrs. Fifer gained wide repute as a gracious hostess at the governor's mansion.

She is survived by the former governor, a daughter, and three grandchildren.

SPEEDING AUTO STRIKES BRIDGE; DRIVER MAY DIE

Louis Levine, 43 years old, a real estate dealer of Marquette, Mich., was probably fatally injured yesterday when he drove his speeding automobile against a bridge support in McCormick boulevard, near Oakton street. Levine was taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston. He had been in Chicago with his wife since Sept. 21, staying at the Congress hotel.

Rudolph Maiseo, 27 years old, of 953 Willow street, died in the Alexian Brothers' hospital last night of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he was crushed in front of 904 Center street by the automobile of his brother-in-law, John Damush. Damush stepped on the starter as Maiseo walked in front and the car, in gear, jumped ahead, pinning Maiseo against a truck.

This death and one other increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 852. The other victim:

Harry Watson, 39 years old, of Thornton, killed yesterday when an automobile struck a tree in Chicago road, near Glenwood. Herman Peters, 20, also of Thornton, the driver, was cut and bruised.

MRS. WM. RYAN, CRASH VICTIM, IS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. William Ryan, who was injured in an automobile and train crash in which her mother, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley, was killed on Sept. 6, has been under treatment at the Evanston hospital for more than a week, it was learned yesterday.

Following the accident, which occurred near Berkeley, Mrs. Ryan was treated in a hospital at Maywood and then taken to her home in Wheaton. It was reported then that she was soon to be a mother.

Dr. William C. Danforth of Evanston, who is one of the physicians in charge, said Mrs. Ryan had no internal injuries and that she was improving daily.

TRUST CHARGED IN JAZZ MUSIC, DEMAND MILLION

New York-Chicago Interests Sue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Nineteen of the largest sheet music publishers of "tin pan alley," the Music Dealers Service, Inc., with which they are affiliated, and the organizer of the service, were sued today in federal court for $1,250,000 on the charge that they conspired to form a music trust.

Notice of the suit was filed just before noon today in federal court by Irving A. Edelman, attorney for the Richmond-Mayer Music corporation of 119 5th avenue and Richmond-Mayer of Chicago, Ltd.

To Charge Price Fixing.

The complaint will not be formally delivered to the court for a few days, but a copy made public by Mr. Edelman charges that the music dealers' service and the publishers arbitrarily fixed prices, used "coercive tactics" to compel independents to distribute sheet music through the service, and induced employés of the Richmond-Mayer companies to leave their positions.

The Richmond-Mayer company of this city asks actual damages of $250,000 and punitive damages of $50,000, the total of which may be tripled under the law. The Chicago firm, according to the complaint, was damaged to the tune of $50,000 and demands $25,000 punitive damages.

Irving Berlin's Firm Named.

Among those named in the action, besides the Music Dealers' Service and John G. Paine, its organizer, are Irving Berlin, Inc.; Harry Bloom, Inc.; Carl Conrad Music Publishers, Ltd.; De Sylva, Brown & Henderson, Inc., and fifteen others.

The suit charges violation of the Sherman and the Clayton anti-trust acts and a conspiracy for "wrongfully and unlawfully dominating and controlling the sheet music industry."

According to the complaining companies, the defendants formed an agreement taking effect Sept. 6 last to restrict the sale of all their sheet music to the Music Dealers' Service, Inc., as distributor. To this end, it is alleged, the publishers surrendered their right to agree upon prices, terms, and conditions with the jobbers, and to all independent discretion in connection with distribution.

50 WOUNDED AS VIENNA NAZIS AND SOCIALISTS RIOT

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 30.—Two days of street fighting between Socialists and Nazis, in which 50 persons are reported to have been wounded and 100 arrested, spread to the city hall today. A dozen of the city fathers were wounded.

The Nazis are holding a four day convention here. The Socialists, who control Vienna, mobilized their private army, the Schutzbund, and bands of Socialists have been waylaying Hitlerites and soundly thrashing them. Today insults were traded in the municipal council. Ink wells, rulers, pens, knives, and furniture were thrown. Finally the Socialists threw the Nazis out of the hall.

Street fighting continued tonight despite efforts of the entire police force to restore order. Socialists are reported to have fired on a policeman, wounding him. Police, returning the fire, are said to have wounded a passerby.

SALONIKI, Greece, Sept. 30.—Eleven more earthquake shocks in the last twenty-four hours have kept the inhabitants of Saloniki in a panic. All business has been suspended and the people are still in the streets and squares, where they spent all last night. The quake toll is now over 300.

Huge fissures produced in the soil, some three miles deep, extending east and west to the seacoast and already partly full of water, have given rise to apprehensions that communications between the Chalcidice peninsula and the mainland will be severed and the peninsula will become an island. Such was the geological history of many of the islands now scattered in such profusion in the Aegean sea. One mountain in North Chalcidice has been split in two by a crevice two miles long.

The village of Ierissos was bombarded today from the sea by British warships. This was deemed the quickest way to bring down houses already in a ruined condition and regarded as dangerous.

JUDGE TELLS BAR ANTIQUATED LAW AIDS CRIMINALS

Illinois law is still in the horse and buggy stage, Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady yesterday told 150 lawyers at the annual meeting in Waukegan of the District Bar association of the 7th Supreme district.

"The law is not equipped to function in this modern age," the judge declared. "I have often wondered why lawyers, formed in groups like this one, haven't organized to modernize the law. The present statutes are full of technicalities which give the racketeer, the bomber, and other criminals an advantage over the state's attorney."

The lawyers discussed the program of the Illinois judicial advisory council, which has been drafting new statutes to speed up law suits and abolish outworn legal technicalities.

POPE AND IL DUCE TO SEND EXHIBITS TO CHICAGO FAIR

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 30.—Vatican City and Italy will each have exhibits at the Chicago Century of Progress in 1933. This became assured today.

The Holy See will send a collection of historic, religious, artistic and scientific objects, including a model of the early 19th century telephone system from the Vatican museum, it was announced.

Msgr. Pizzardo of the Vatican state department is communicating with Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago about the details of arranging the Vatican's exhibit.

Duce Doubles Appropriation.

Yesterday in an interview with Elmer Langworthy, European representative of the Chicago fair, Msgr. Pizzardo gave assurance of the Vatican's interest in the centennial.

Langworthy last night also had an interview with Premier Mussolini of Italy, who has decided to double the appropriation formerly set aside for participation at the fair. Il Duce said that a separate pavilion for Italy will probably be erected. Details of construction costs in Chicago are now being secured for Mussolini. Langworthy told Mussolini that Italy's enlarged appropriation would adequately cover the costs of a special pavilion.

City to See "Black Shirts."

Italy's exhibit will lay special emphasis on scientific discoveries and inventions, small industries, artisanship, and tourist travel. Venetian glass and shawls, Florentine ironwork and faience, and porcelain will be characteristic displays. Local color will be given to the Italian building by "black shirts" posted at the doors.

Langworthy said that Mussolini was highly interested in the exposition and in the 500,000 Italian residents of Chicago.

NORTH SHORE LINE IS PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP

Attribute Action to Drop in Revenue.

Receivers were appointed yesterday for the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the federal District court. The action was taken on petition of a creditor, the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, which listed claims of $3,897. The company consented to the receivership.

Britton I. Budd, president of the company, and Col. A. A. Sprague were named as receivers by Judge Wilkerson. Col. Sprague is commissioner of public works of the city of Chicago. He was recently named co-receiver with Mr. Budd for the Chicago Rapid Transit company, operator of the "L" lines. Mr. Budd is also president of the latter transit company.

The North Shore company owns and operates the electric railroad running from Evanston to Milwaukee along the lake shore with a branch line to Mundelein. It also owns a five mile extension from the lines of the Chicago Rapid Transit to Niles Center. North Shore trains enter the city of Chicago over the "L" lines, with which system it has a contract.

Utilities Hold Control.

Control of the North Shore as well as the "L" lines is held jointly by the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Prior to his removal as head of the two utility companies Samuel Insull was the chairman of both the transportation companies.

The receivership petition asserts that, in addition to its debt to the petitioner, the railroad owes other creditors a considerable amount. The road is unable to meet these obligations and in addition will be unable to meet interest and tax payments of $285,000 which fall due today, the bill adds.

The road obtained a loan of $1,150,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation last June which enabled it to meet interest payments and avoid receivership at that time. The road pledged its own first mortgage bonds with the federal relief agency as collateral for the loan.

Loan Is Insufficient.

Net revenues from operation have fallen short of interest requirements, and current liabilities at the close of June were more than $3,000,000 in excess of current assets, the bill sets forth.

Operating revenues for the 12 months ended June 30 showed a decline of $1,500,000 from the preceding year and $3,500,000 from the year ended June 30, 1929.

The falling off in earnings is attributed by the company to the general industrial condition and increase in unemployment.

The petitioning creditor asked that the court enjoin action by other creditors against the company until the receivership proceedings are adjudicated. In this connection the petition said: "Large numbers of inhabitants of the region contiguous to the line of the railroad are dependent upon it for transportation and the public generally would be greatly inconvenienced if the business should be suspended or impaired."

Statement by Company.

Following the appointment of receivers the company officials issued a statement reciting the conditions which led to the court action.

"The continued increase in unemployment and the general industrial conditions have greatly lessened passenger and freight traffic and seriously affected the revenues of the company," the statement said.

"Illustrating the effects of the depression, passengers carried in the first eight months of this year totaled only 5,237,840, as compared with 9,361,344 in the comparative period three years ago, a decrease of 44 per cent, and passenger revenues were 52.8 per cent lower."

Freight Revenues Decline.

Freight revenues, it was pointed out, have shown a decline of 61.1 per cent in the same period. In addition to the $285,000 due today in taxes and interest the company faces additional obligations of $615,000 during the balance of the year, officials stated.

The funded debt of the railroad totals $21,522,600. There are first mortgage bonds of $15,115,000 in three separate issues. The balance of the funded debt is represented by debentures, notes, and equipment trust certificates.

STANDARD OILS PLAN TO COMBAT CANADIAN TARIFF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—The Imperial Oil company, controlled by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, is embarked on an expansion program to enable it to operate on an extensive scale through the prairie provinces of Canada, it was learned today.

Heretofore most of the oil and gasoline used in western Canada moved there from the United States by railroad, but since the imposition of the import duty on refined products from other than empire nations American companies have had to make other plans.

The Standard subsidiary will refine its products at Halifax, where expansion is under way. It has applied for acreage at Fort Churchill, Hudson bay, for storage facilities and from there plans to supply the west.

Asserts U. S. Control Will Wreck Buses

REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES BRAND.

Representative Charles Brand [Rep., O.] told delegates to the convention of the National Association of Motor Bus Operators at the Congress hotel yesterday that the federal regulation they are seeking would be the worst thing that could happen to them. Bus operators soon will be in the same financial straits as the railroads under federal supervision, he declared.

"Former President Coolidge is the most dangerous man in the country today for your interests," Mr. Brand declared. "He will give you what you want, which is federal regulation to the degree that it has developed for the railroads. The railroads are being strangled to death, and you bus operators will be strangled with them."

RESET

Mr. Brand referred to the nonpartisan railroad commission of which Mr. Coolidge has been named chairman. Other members include Bernard M. Baruch, Clark Howell, Alexander Legge, and Alfred E. Smith.

"The federal regulation of bus and truck rates and the higher automobile tax charges advocated by the railroads, or anybody else, are indefensible," he declared.

Auto Users' Taxes.

Answering the railroad charges that highway transportation is subsidized, Mr. Brand declared that "the average passenger car pays in total taxes about $30 per year, the 5 ton truck about $255 and the average bus about $812. The total expense on the highways last year for maintenance and construction was about one billion dollars and the total highway revenue was nearly the same amount, so we have approached the limit of fairness in taxing highway users.

"State contributions to highway building, the taxation of political subdivisions and the taxing of abutting property are things of the past as far as highway construction and maintenance are concerned.

"The railway right of way, in every case I have had an opportunity to investigate was in the form of an outright present. Towns and cities through which the original railways were built paid for the location of railways in much the same fashion we pay now for the location of a factory. The nation contributed more than 100,000,000 acres of the public domain to the railroads, a territory larger than all the New England states and of more value than all the combined federal contributions to highways.

Encourages Extravagance.

"The interstate commerce commission, through permitting excessive railway rates, has encouraged reckless and extravagant rail operating expenses which have resulted in depressing business and, peculiarly enough, the depletion of railway funds.

"Because of this bad financial condition, brought on by themselves, the railways now turn to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans to meet their obligations and these may or may not turn out to be direct subsidies. Subsidy in highway transportation does not exist.

"The original investment in highways before automotive traffic became heavy cannot be considered a subsidy to highway users. Such investment was absolutely necessary to the economic life of our different communities and had not relation to anticipated heavy automobile use.

Ireland Offers Bounties to Exporters of Cattle

DUBLIN, Sept. 30.—(AP)—For the purpose of assisting Irish cattle breeders hit by tariff barriers outside Ireland, the government announced today that bounties will be paid to exporters begining Oct. 5. The bounty will be 12½ per cent on the declared value of cattle leaving Free State ports and 10 per cent on shipments across the border to Ulster.

September Bank Closings Decline from August

Bank suspensions during September totaled 56, compared with 86 in August, the best showing this year with the exception of March, the American Banker reports.

EXPORTS OF WHEAT, COTTON, PETROLEUM FEATURE U. S. TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Increased exports of wheat, cotton, and petroleum were the outstanding features of American export trade during the first half of 1932, the United States chamber of commerce stated today in an analysis of export figures for the six months period.

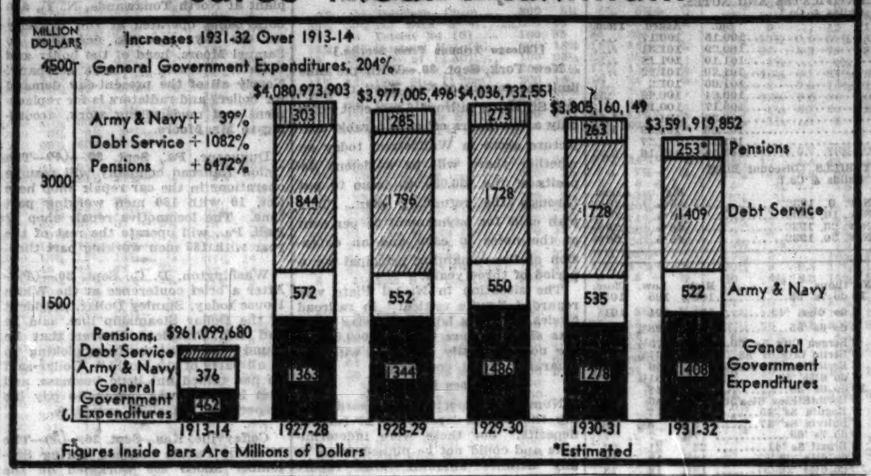
"Not only were those important commodities exported in far larger quantities than in the same half of 1931," the report said, "but they also exceeded the five year averages, 1927-31, by considerable margins.

"Seven cent cotton," according to the chamber, "found foreign markets to the extent of 2,267,834,000 pounds—an increase of 56 per cent—above the amount exported in the first half of 1931 and 29 per cent above the five year average.

"Sixty-one cent wheat also made a real showing for these subnormal times. Exports of 37,192,000 bushels of wheat were 77 per cent greater than last year and were 22 per cent above the five year average.

"Crude petroleum exports set an all-time high mark in the January-June period of this year. Shipments totaled 14,176,000 barrels, by far the largest volume ever shipped abroad during the first half of the year, exceeding any full year's exports prior to 1923."

British Government Cuts Debt Service Cost—Other Expenditures Near Maximum



North Western Gets U.S. Loan; Rehires 200

The Chicago and North Western railroad has recalled 200 men in its shops here. Announcement of this step yesterday marked the first material increase of railroad shop employment among the western lines.

The road announced the recalling of the workers following the receipt of word from Washington that the interstate commerce commission had approved the road's application for a loan of $12,461,350 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Last February the North Western received a loan of $7,600,000 from the federal relief agency.

To Extend Loans.

The present loan will enable the road to meet all its obligations for the remainder of the year. The commission's approval is contingent on the extension of the road's bank loans for two years and the release by the bankers of half the collateral securing the loans. It is reported that the bankers have tentatively agreed to extend loans in the amount of $5,000,000 for two years upon payment of a similar amount at the present time.

The express purpose of the loan as approved by the commission is as follows: $5,000,000 on Oct. 13 to be applied on bank loans; $4,619,891 on Oct. 31 for fixed interest charges of $4,436,891 and $183,000 for equipment trust principal payment; $1,565,465 on Nov. 30 for interest charges of $1,153,465 and equipment trust certificates of $412,000, and $1,275,994 on Dec. 31 for interest charges of $611,094 and equipment notes of $644,900.

Follows Traffic Gains.

The plan of the road to enter on an equipment rehabilitation program follows the recent improvement in the lines' traffic and earnings. Earlier this week the company reported that August was the first month since March that operations had failed to result in a deficit.

Favorable reports on employment were received from other western carriers yesterday. The Burlington and the Rock Island were said to be calling a number of workers back.

FRANCE BOOSTS IMPORT QUOTAS OF 40 PRODUCTS

PARIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Substantial enlarging of the quotas for importation of 40 industrial products permitted entry into France for the final quarter of this year were announced today by the ministry of commerce.

Average increases in certain quotas which hit American business in the last year were from 20 to 30 per cent. In some cases increases were as great as 200 per cent.

A ministry of commerce communique said "business facilities which will result from these new quotas will have the effect of stimulation of our commerce and favor the general interest of the consumer."

Quebec to Lift Ban on Export of Power to U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 30.—Bans on the export of hydro electric power to the United States from the province of Quebec are about to be relented, according to current gossip today. The depression is the cause. Several years ago the province enacted a law forbidding such export except that already in effect. The idea was to attract branch United States factories here.

92 PCT. OF 10 BILLION BRITISH WAR LOAN BONDS CONVERTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The treasury tonight issued final figures on the result of the government's 5 per cent war loan conversion scheme—a result which exceeds the most sanguine expectations of the financial optimists. Of the 10 billion 425 million dollars issued, holders of only 8 per cent—$825,000,000—will require payment in cash on Dec. 1 next. The holders of the balance of $9,600,000,000 have converted their bonds into 3½ per cent security. The resultant saving to the exchequer in interest charges will approximate $144,000,000 annually.

The treasury statement discloses that an additional $175,000,000 has been converted since Sept. 16, and a total of $350,000,000 since the bonus period expired July 31.

Simultaneously Chancellor of Exchequer Neville Chamberlain announces removal of the ban on new capital issues—with certain exceptions. The latter provides that the benefit of cheap money in London is to be reserved for empire industry. No foreign country or foreign industry is yet allowed to raise capital here and remit the proceeds abroad. The new capital raised must remain in the United Kingdom. The chancellor's object is towards the encouragement of new ventures and to assist employment in British industries.

HEAR RAIL UNIONS SEEK EXTENSION OF PRESENT PAY

New York, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that heads of the railroad brotherhoods were understood to be seeking the consent of members to an indefinite extension of the present 10 per cent wage cut in order to comply with President Hoover's wish for a postponement of wage reduction negotiations until the end of the year.

Railroad men hold, it was stated, that carriers can comply with the President's request only if the labor unions agree to an extension of the present cut, inasmuch as the roads would have only one month in which to negotiate another agreement to take the place of the agreement which will expire next Feb. 1.

Farmers' National Profit on Grain ½ Cent a Bushel

In the story appearing in these columns yesterday disclosing the financial condition of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, the statement that its total income per bushel of grain handled had been 2.65 cents and its expenses ½ cent per bushel was partially incorrect. The income was 2.65 per bushel and the net profit ½ cent per bushel. Total net profits of the corporation were $1,093,000 for the year ending May 31, 1932.

Chicago Area Firms Report Business Gains

A number of companies in the Chicago district yesterday reported business as improving in a survey made by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Among the companies reporting and their statements are the following:

Edward Hines Lumber company—"Our business in September is about 25 per cent above the low point of July and August. For the first time since the depression we see signs of recovery in our business in Chicago. We expect real activity next spring in remodeling, repairing and beautifying of homes; remodeling of factories, increase in industrial uses of lumber, and some new home construction, providing the finances are made available. There is still a great oversupply of apartment buildings, hotels, factories and office buildings. We see no immediate hope for this type of construction for the year 1933 at least."

Mrs. Snyder's Candy company—"Business is on the upward trend. The number of sales is increasing, which indicates more customers. Volume is not quite up to the same standard of last year, but the increase in the number of sales is most encouraging."

Increases Its Pay Roll.

E. L. Mansure company, manufacturers of drapery and embroideries—"Both our sales and our pay rolls have shown a material increase during the month of September over the month of August of this year. An interesting comparison which we have made shows that our increase in September, 1932, over August, 1932, is proportionately greater than our increase of September, 1931, over August, 1931. If this continues into next month it will then be indicative that the pickup is more than a seasonal increase in business."

James H. Rhodes & Co., manufacturers of felts, pumice, abrasives, and colors—"A decided improvement has taken place in our business in the last 60 days. Where in July our factories were practically closed down, they are now operating on approximately a 60 per cent basis and if improvement continues we expect to be running 85 per cent within another 30 days."

Mid-States Gummed Paper company—"Our items go to such a diversified trade that a pickup in our business represents a general quickening of business throughout the country. Actual figures show that orders received in the last four weeks for immediate shipment are 50 per cent greater than the first four weeks of July. Moreover, on account of the advance in cotton and cotton cloths, our cloth tape department has booked very substantial orders for the balance of the year."

Pickup in Printing.

Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company — "Our plant was practically shut down for the months of June, July and August. We resumed operations on Sept. 19, starting with about two hundred employes, which within the next couple of weeks will be increased to about three hundred, operating twenty-five hours per week. There seems to be more activity in the printing industry."

Paasche Airbrush company—"Our records indicate that the low point in business arrived during July. An appreciable upturn occurred in August and to date September has shown a slight increase over August. Although there has been no need to enlarge our production forces, this happy and much desired action will take place with just a little additional increase in business."

Edward Katsinger company, tinware manufacturers — "Betwen June and September the number of men on our pay roll has increased 61 per cent and the pay roll itself 85 per cent. During the last month alone we have added 11 per cent to our working force and 20 per cent to our pay roll."

Holds Gift to Charity Be Charged to Earnings

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—The Interstate commerce commission today held that a $75,000 contribution of the New York Telephone company to the emergency unemployment relief fund of New York City should be charged to profit and loss and not to operating expenses.

Kenosha Pay Rolls Show Gain of 200 Men in Month

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Kenosha Factory Superintendents' league reports for the month of September showed an increase in the total factory pay rolls of 200 workmen. August was the first month in 1932 to show no decrease in pay rolls.

AGREE ON PLAN TO CHECK FARM FORECLOSURES

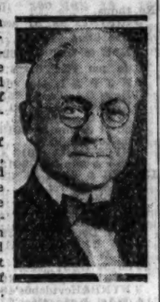
BY PAUL POTTER.

A new national policy toward farm land credits was established yesterday in a conference of federal farm financing agencies, banking systems, insurance companies and representatives of the federal government.



HENRY M. ROBINSON. [H. & E. Photo.]

At the end of a two day session, it was announced that a drive against the "needless foreclosures of farm mortgages" had been launched at the insistence of President Hoover. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, Gardner Cowles, chafrman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and some forty others joined in a statement which pledged "that the whole power of the R. F. C. is to be thrown back of the agencies who lend money and receive farm mortgages," in an effort to help the farmer keep his farm.

Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, chairman of the central banking and industrial committee of the federal reserve system, presided.

Will Aid Worthy Farmers.

While no moratorium on farm debts could be seriously considered, the conferees found, a policy of aiding those farmers who "make an honest effort to meet payments" but are unable to do so was agreed upon. Cowles and Wilson McCarthy, speaking for the R. F. C. declared they would recommend to the board of directors a policy of aiding farm financing agencies and believed the board would act favorably.

Federal land banks also have adopted a more lenient policy, according to Paul Bestor, loan commissioner of the federal farm loan board. Only in cases where these banks felt compelled to act in self-protection would the farmer be forced off his farm, and those who have made special efforts to meet obligations would be given the "opportunity to succeed," Bestor said.

Avoid Land Sales.

That land banks, privately financed, did not wish to acquire farms if that could be prevented was the position assumed by Frank W. Blair, president, Union Stock Land bank of Detroit. Every attempt is being made by the joint stock banks to avoid sales that tend to demoralize land values, he said.

Insurance companies represented at the meeting also agreed to "continue activities relating to farm loans with a view to contributing as effectively as possible to the solution of the problem. Stating that insurance companies avoid foreclosures wherever possible, G. S. Nollen, Bankers Life Insurance company of Des Moines, Ia., said the insurance companies were uniting on a policy "recognizing the importance of continuing the farmer in possession of his land."

Farm Banks Nearly Ready.

The agricultural credit banks just created by the Reconstruction Finance corporation will all be in operation by the end of next week, it was announced at the meeting. All but those in St. Louis and Chicago already are prepared to receive applications and make loans on live stock.

Branches of the Regional Agricultural Credit corporation have been established in each of the federal land bank districts. They are created "to take care of feeder loans and breeding herds," each having a capital of not less than three million dollars.

"Ample funds are now ready and available for the purpose of carrying into immediate effect the provisions of the act" which created these banks, it was announced. The prevailing rate is 7 per cent, without extra commissions or fees.

N. Y. Central Adds to Force at Hammond, Ind., Shops

The New York Central railroad shops at Hammond have added 50 men to the pay roll, expect to add 50 more Monday, and will keep the 100 additional workers employed all during the month of October, at least, reconditioning grain cars. E. M. Wilcox, terminal master car builder, said the men might work indefinitely.

Trade Revival Is Forecast in Final Quarter

BY SCRUTATOR.

Today ushers in the final quarter of the year. It is the period when normally business men expect the largest activity. Crops are gathered and sold, the customary summer doldrums are past, and industry accelerates its pace.

How does the situation stand and what is expected from the last three months of the year? It may be said with certainty that the final quarter starts with business men much more confident and cheerful than they have been in many months. That intangible but vital factor called "general sentiment" also is more optimistic.

Expect Improvement.

So it appears that the basis for expansion in trade and industry has been laid. Whether it will carry through and to what extent it may go remains for the future to develop. However, most of the estimates forecast at least moderate improvement, even taking the national elections into consideration.

There is no doubt that the general business situation is much improved over three months ago. It is rather surprising how much progress was made during the summer, which is the traditional period when trade and industry do little except fill low current needs. Let us see a few things that have happened during the last three months.

Stocks' Decline Halted.

The long decline in commodity and securities prices was stemmed, which probably did more to restore confidence than anything else. On June 30 the average for 50 stocks used in compiling THE TRIBUNE averages stood at 35.77, whereas it now stands around 65. Thus the quoted value of stocks has almost doubled on the average, while at the same time bonds generally have advanced. All told, many billions of dollars have been added to quoted values.

Wheat sold in Chicago around 49 cents a bushel on June 30, whereas now it is selling around 53⅛ cents. This has meant millions of dollars to farmers, as also has the higher price of cotton. Hogs, bulk of sales, sold between 4.10 and 4.90 cents a pound on June 30 against the present price of 3.50 to 4.20 cents. But the average in the last three months had been higher than in many previous months. Cattle, bulk of steers, sold at 6.50 to 8.10 cents a pound on June 30, but now are selling at 6.50 to 8.50 cents.

Carloadings Increase.

Now let's see how some of the chief industries, particularly those in which operations are regarded as barometers, have fared. Most of them have made considerable progress despite the summer lassitude. One of the most inclusive barometers is the movement of commodities by the railroads. We find that loading of revenue freight for the week ended July 2 totaled 489,273 cars, whereas the next weekly report of the American Railway association is expected to show around 600,000 cars loaded during the final week of September, making an expansion of nearly 25 per cent. Moreover, a number of railroads recently have reported improving earnings.

Consumption of electric power is another index of general business activity. At the end of June the output of electricity was running about one billion 440 million kilowatt hours a week, whereas it exceeded one billion 490 million kilowatt hours for the week ended Sept. 24 and has probably gone seasonally higher since.

Steel Industry Up.

The steel industry also has perked up a bit. At the end of June the steel mills of the country were operating at an average of 15 per cent of ingot capacity, whereas last week the rate had risen to 17½ per cent, with predictions of another increase this week. In the petroleum industry, despite weekly variations, production is about on the same level as three months ago.

Besides these tangible statistics the last month has brought many reports of better conditions. The textile mills have been unusually active, a number of the railroads are employing more workers, and recently automobile production and sales have pointed upward. Thus in almost every direction there is definite promise of better business in the next three months.

REMINGTON ARMS GETS BIG ORDER FROM COLOMBIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 30.—Saunders Norvelle, president of the Remington Arms company, said today his company had received a very large order for munitions from Colombia.

Norvelle said orders from other South American countries were reported to be on the way and that one order from Brazil was expected within the next twenty-four hours.

Norvelle refused to estimate the extent to which employment would be speeded up at the Remington plant until all orders now pending had been received. He asserted, however, the order from Colombia was an unusually large one.

Coolidge Rail Commission to Organize Next Week

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—The committee headed by Calvin Coolidge which is to investigate the railroad situation will hold an organization meeting here next week, Walter H. Bennett, president of the Emigrant Industrial Savings bank, said today. Mr. Bennett said the members of the committee "have accepted and agreed very generously to serve without compensation." It was believed he issued this statement to end rumors that they would be paid.

Reserve Bank Reports $3,275,500 Gold Increase

New York, Sept. 30. — (AP) — Gold stocks of the United States increased $3,275,500 today. The New York Federal Reserve bank announced imports of $1,079,300 from Holland, $218,760 from Mexico, and $10,000 from Switzerland. In addition, $1,967,500 was released from earmark.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—The stock market held up fairly well today despite the realization that the third quarter was ending without having ushered in the "upturn" in business forecast by the late summer rally in share prices. Continued weakness in wheat futures and uncertainties on the score of politics handicapped efforts to extend the advance. The prospects of a batch of poor earnings reports, due shortly, was not without its sobering effect.

Trading was again extremely light and price tendencies irregular. In the forenoon the drift was downward and leading shares gave up a point or so but enough buying appeared in the later dealings to restore most of these early losses. A majority of the pivitals were slightly higher at the close with the figures on secondary issues mixed. On the whole, the market wound up about where it started.

Trade Mainly Professional.

Professionals once more had the field entirely to themselves and they seemed to be waiting for some news development by which to steer a course. Some concern was evinced over the so-called "Nickle Plate" situation, but brokerage house spokesmen professed confidence that the threatened trouble for the road would be averted in some manner.

Individual price swings attracted scant attention. The oils were held firm by the stand of producers to maintain price structure, but the rails, amusements, coppers, chemicals and motors drifted with the tide. Public utilities were a bit narrower than usual. Some rather heavy selling came into American Telephone in the first half of the session but at the close showed a fractional gain.

United Cigar Active.

International Business Machines broke to 98, a drop of nearly five points, but rebounded to close at 102, off ¾ net. United Cigar Stores was active and duplicated its record low. United States Steel held within a point and emerged with a modest plus sign.

With business slack as it was the speculative community found time to talk politics and the discussions revealed some degree of nervousness over the outlook. The talk had mainly to do with recent developments in the Democratic camp and their probable portent for business.

Incidentally predictions of a "fairly sharp advance" in the market next week were rather freely offered, although retailers of such forecasts were a trifle shy on reasons for the hope that was within them.

SALES OF AUTOS IN SEPTEMBER ABOVE AVERAGE

Twenty-two hundred fifty-five new passenger automobiles were sold in Cook county during September. This was a decline of 24.6 per cent from the total of 2,990 sold during August. However, according to the planning department of THE TRIBUNE, Chicago automobile sales in September have been smaller than in August every year since the beginning of the industry. The average seasonal decline in September from August for six preboom years was 32.5 per cent. Thus, the sale of cars last month was better sustained than is usual.

In Illinois outside of Cook county 2,070 cars were sold last month and for the state the total was 4,825. For the same month in 1931, the total for Illinois was 7,597. Cook county's September sales of automobiles were 41.9 per cent smaller than August, downstate they were 44.2 per cent smaller.

EXPORTS OF FARM EQUIPMENT UP 34 PCT. IN AUGUST

Washington, Sept. 30.—August exports of farm equipment increased 34 per cent over July and were the largest monthly shipments since March, according to the department of commerce.

The commerce department said, in placing a total value of $1,383,944 on the August exports, that industrial machinery exports as a whole last month were valued the same as the July $4,200,000 total. Exports of sewing machines in the month almost doubled the number in July, being valued at $142,000.

During the second quarter of the year, the United States held its own in the British market, supplying 18 per cent of the total British imports from non-British countries. The total compared with 18 per cent in the first quarter and 16 per cent in the second quarter of 1931.

SAYS PUBLICITY WILL BRING BACK MORTGAGE BONDS

Realtor Gives Advice to Bankers.

BY AL CHASE.

Annual audits, combined with detailed information as to income, expenses, and net earnings of mortgaged properties, all available to the public and kept on file with the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, will do much to restore public confidence in real estate bond issues, according to John P. Hooker, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board. He outlined a program for self-regulation of the real estate security business last night at a banquet of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association at the Union League club.

"How can we prevent the bootlegging loan man from again raising hell with the business?" Mr. Hooker asked his audience.

"I suggest, first, that on and after a certain date every trust deed to real estate bond issues secured by property in Cook county, which are to be offered for sale to the public, shall contain a provision that in January of each year an audit of the property for the preceding year be made by a responsible firm of certified public accountants.

Available to the Pub'c.

"That a copy of this audit shall be retained by the house of issue and a copy of said audit shall be furnished to the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association and be available to the public.

"2. That the Chicago Clearing house shall pass a rule that on and after a certain date no real estate bonds secured by property in Cook county that have not conformed to this rule regarding annual audits shall be eligible as collateral security for loans by any member banks.

"3. The Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association shall arrange for an office for the filing of such audits and at regularly designated intervals furnish its members and to the clearing house and its banks detailed information from the audits; all to be open to the public.

Suggests Annual Audit.

"4. Houses of issue selling real estate bonds to the public on a building to be constructed, shall furnish to the Mortgage Bankers' association an estimate of the cost of land and building, the annual income, and expenses of the building, and an annual audit to commence and continue after the building is a year old.

"5. No house of issue shall, at any time, advance either interest, taxes, or principal on behalf of the borrower, without formal written notice to the trustee named in the trust deed.

"Billions of dollars of real estate bond issues have been sold to the public which is almost without information as to income, expenses, and net earnings of the mortgaged properties. This isn't right. These investors are as much entitled to information as are investors in railroad and industrial bonds."

Would Restore Confidence.

Mr. Hooker declared that his suggestions would prevent excessive loans and also restore public confidence in real state bond issues.

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, who also spoke, urged the consolidation or elimination of overlapping state bodies, which he declared would save Illinois vast sums now wasted in duplicating services.

DELAY IN DEPOSIT OF NOTES PERILS NICKEL PLATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—With the time limit for deposit of New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad 6 per cent notes only a few hours off considerable conjecture arose in Wall street today on whether there will be sufficient deposits of the $20,000,000 issue to put through the refunding plan. This plan calls for payment of 25 per cent of the notes in cash and an extension of the remaining principal for a period of three years.

The situation in Nickel Plate was regarded "quite critical" in railroad circles. Up to a late hour today there was slightly more than $11,000,000 of the notes actually deposited with the Guaranty Trust company.

Promises Indefinite.

Numerous reports were heard during the day of "promises of further deposits," but these were indeterminate and could not be pinned down to any definite amount. One report placed the "promises" at more than $2,000,000, which would bring the total to approximately $13,000,000, or about 65 per cent of the total outstanding notes.

Under the plan, unless holders of "substantially all" of the notes due tomorrow are deposited, the Reconstruction Finance corporation will not lend the needed amount.

However, the company has the sole right, in its discretion, to declare whether or not the plan becomes operative. In the final analysis, holders of undeposited notes alone have the responsibility of determining whether or not Nickel Plate can avoid the consequences of a default on Oct. 1.

May Extend Time.

It has already been stressed that unless the plan is made operative the railroad sees ahead no alternative but a receivership. It was pointed out late today that Nickel Plate is likely to declare the plan operative and at the same time extend the date up to which bonds may be deposited.

Meanwhile the interstate commerce commission has authorized the road to issue $20,000,000 of new or extended promissory notes. The securities will be in payment of or exchange for an equal face amount of maturing notes due tomorrow.

BUYING OF WHEAT IN CANADA HALTS DECLINE IN PIT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Buying of December wheat at Winnipeg, which some interests there thought might have been for the dominion government, effectively put a check on the declining tendency in the market yesterday. Prices in the Canadian market, however, sold down to the lowest levels in the history of that exchange, with the October touching 49c and the December 51¼c on the break, quotations being in Canadian funds. On a gold basis October there was around 44½c at the extreme. The previous low was established in December, 1930, when the December delivery touched 49½c.

Confirmation of government support in the Canadian market was lacking. Final trades were unchanged to ⅛c lower, with October quoted at 49½c, and the December at 51¼c at the last, in Canadian funds, which were around 9¼ per cent discount. Aggressive buying of December was in evidence there at 51⅛c on Wednesday and at 51½c on Thursday, while yesterday there were apparently scale orders in the market to take the future at 51¼@51½c.

Liquidation by scattered longs carried wheat prices in Chicago off around 1c in the early trading, weakness in Winnipeg having some effect, but later there was short covering which disclosed a lack of pressure and a rally followed which recovered a good part of the early loss. The finish was at a net decline of ¼@⅝c. September expired at 51¼@51⅝c, with evening up operations under way throughout the day. December was 53⅜@53½c and May 53⅛@58⅝c at the last.

Rumors Cause Nervousness.

The wheat trade again had a varied assortment of rumors, and one that a new bull pool had been formed in the east to help the wheat market was again in circulation, although it was first heard on Wednesday. The reported originated in New York, as near as could be determined. There was also a New York report received during the day claiming that an eastern pool had been liquidating long wheat. Brokers who stood in the pit all day said there was no evidence of any aggressive buying or selling which had the earmarks of untoward operations, and they were inclined to scout the rumors.

Low Prices in Canada.

Low prices are being paid for cash wheat in the three Canadian provinces. Based on average freight rates and deduction for elevator charges, it was figured on the basis of yesterday's close for the December future in Winnipeg that farmers in Manitoba were receiving somewhat less than 32c per bu for No. 1 northern, while in Saskatchewan the average price was slightly under 29c, and in Alberta a little above 27c.

Reports to the Searle Grain company of Winnipeg indicate a downward revision in estimates on the wheat crop in the three Canadian provinces may be necessary owing to disappointing threshing returns in the northern sections of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Export sales of around 600,000 bu Manitobas were estimated yesterday, although there were intimations of a larger business.

From Aug. 1 to Sept. 28 farmers delivered around 140,000,000 bu wheat at interior points in the three provinces, compared with 55,000,000 bu during the same time last year. Liverpool closed ¾@⅞c lower, with December at 56¼c.

Corn at New Low for Season.

All deliveries of corn sold at a new low for the season, with prices dropping around ½c from yesterday's finish on the active futures. Scattered liquidation was under way early, with some stop loss orders. The September declined to 25c, where it closed with a net loss of ⅝c, and at the lowest figure since June, 1897. The distant futures received fair support and rallied to close unchanged, with the December 27½@27⅝c, and May 32⅝@32½c.

Around 60,000 bu No. 2 mixed corn were reported as having been sold by eastern interests yesterday to exporters. According to the reports the corn will be shipped from Buffalo to Montreal, with the price equal to ½c over Chicago December. No general business, however, was regarded as likely, as it was claimed Argentine offerings abroad were 2c per bu lower than American, while Danubian grain was said to be obtainable around 4c cheaper. The country sold 195,000 bu corn to arrive during the day.

December and May oats sold at the lowest figures so far this season, with the December touching 17⅛c, the lowest price since December, 1896, when it was down to 15⅝c. There was no trading in the September. Moderate buying made its appearance on the break, and the finish was unchanged to ½c lower, with December 17⅝c and May 20c. Rye was ⅝c higher to ⅝c lower, with September showing the strength. The latter closed at 33c, while December was 34¼c and May 37⅛c.

LIQUIDATION IN LARD

Belated longs in September and October lard started to liquidate early yesterday and found support lacking for a time. Prices dropped around 30c from Tuesday's close, but on the decline leading cash interests took the buying side and a rally followed, with the close 2½c lower on the September while the October was 8c higher. The distant futures showed little change. Cash demand for lard is reported as holding up well, and a bullish showing is expected to be made in the monthly report on local stocks today. Bellies were neglected and closed unchanged to 7½c lower, with October showing the decline. Cash lard was quoted at $4.82½, loose $4.80, and leaf $4.75, while bellies were $5.75. Deliveries of 5,300,000 lbs lard were made on September contracts, the greater part of which was put out late in the day. Prices follow:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 30.—The foreign section was the feature of today's bond market for strength and volume. South American and German issues scored the best gains. Prices ran up 1 to 3 points, with not a few breaking through 1932 highs.

While the trend was somewhat soft, there was an underlying demand for high-grade corporation bonds, in contrast to nervousness and light buying in the speculative list. Treasury issues ranged lower in a dull market.

Buying of German bonds lifted the Government 5½s, to 52, a new high mark for the year. Rumors were current in Wall street that Germany and France had arrived at an understanding with regard to armaments, the chief remaining obstacle to political accord between the two countries.

Brazil Issues Rally.

Brazilian bonds rallied sharply, chiefly in the case of issues of Sao Paulo, following reports today that rebel forces were seeking a truce with the government. Gains in Sao Paulo 7 per cent and 8 per cent series amounted to 4 points during the session.

Second grade and speculative rails and industrials were quiet and followed no definite trend.

Sales in U. S. Bonds Small.

The turnover in Treasury bonds was the smallest in many days and their prices were slightly lower. Discussion of the treasury's probable plan for meeting the Oct. 15 maturity may cause the market to mark time for a while, just as it did before the Sept. 15 plan was made known.

NEW ISSUE.

The Harris Trust and Saving bank and Breed & Harrison, Cincinnati, are offering $600,000 Hamilton county, O., 4½ per cent emergency relief bonds. The bonds are due serially Sept. 1, 1934, to 1940.

Timken Roller Bearing.

Will you please give me information on Timken Roller Bearing company? —J. M.

Timken Roller Bearing company specializes in the manufacture of tapered roller bearings. A subsidiary, Timken Steel and Tube company, is one of the world's leading electric and alloy steel producers. About half its output is consumed by the parent company.

Timken Roller Bearing supplies most of its bearings used by practically every automobile manufacturer except General Motors. Its products are also widely used in heavy duty machinery. In 1929 successful experiments in the application of roller bearings to railroad equipment were completed. The excess of railroad rolling stock and the strict economy program by the roads since then have checked expansion in this field.

Net income of $200,000 for the second quarter of 1932 brought net for the first half to $418,000, or 17 cents per share. For the first half of 1931 net was $2,463,000, or $1.02 per share.

Net income for 1931 was $2,571,000, or $1.07 per share, against net of $7,524,000, or $3.12 per share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $14,926,000, against $14,591,000 for 1928 and $10,222,000 for 1927.

The company finished 1931 with current assets of $21,487,000 and current liabilities of $1,144,000. Cash assets alone were $14,000,000. Working capital was $20,343,000, against $22,335,000 the year before.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 2,411,638 shares of no par capital stock.

On Aug. 1, 1932, directors declared a dividend of 25 cents per share, paid Sept. 6. The June 6, 1932, dividend was 37½ cents per share. Dividends of 50 cents per share were paid in each of the three preceding quarters.

The company dominates its fields. It is in a position to profit by increased activities of its customers. There is also the possibility of additional future earnings from the development and application of new uses for its product.
